SENATORS VOTE NEW TAX BILL AND CUT RATES

Mills Acts as Whip at Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Under the whip of a two hours' talk by Secretary of the Treasury Mills today, the senate finance committee came out of the tussling muddle of the last three weeks, tore up a great part of the provisions it had placed in the new tax bill, and in a frenzied session virtually wrote a new measure.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

With Mr. Mills impressing in person the administration's dismay at income tax and administrative items that were the result of the committee's wrangling and logrolling with business, industry, and the financial markets fearful of the unknown tax burdens to come, the senators struck out the extra high income tax rates they had voted no later than yesterday, and remedied provisions meant to be a penalty on big business.

The bill which will be reported out next Monday and which will start a stormy senate passage next Tuesday will carry many fundamental features recommended last December by former Secretary Mellon.

Calls for Over Billion.

In its present state the bill is expected to raise an additional revenue of 1 billion 10 million dollars, leaving 231 million to be made up by economies in order to meet the expected deficit of 1 billion 241 million dollars, not including sinking fund requirements, at the end of the fiscal year 1933.

Secretary Mills warned the committee that the bill they had fought over and finally succeeded in patching together was due to add another serious blow to public confidence.

By way of answer, the senators cast out the income tax rates of the 1921 act which they voted yesterday and wrote in in their stead rates which are almost double the present rates, but which are less than the rates they replaced.

Final Vote 13 to 4.

The final vote of adoption was 13 to 4, as follows:

FOR ADOPTION.

REPUBLICANS—Smoot, Watson, Reed, Shortridge, Keyes, Bingham, Thomas [Idaho], Jones, and Metcalf.

DEMOCRATS—Harrison, King, George, and Walsh [Mass.]

REPUBLICANS—Couzens and La Follette.

DEMOCRATS—Connally and Hull.

The income tax schedule fixed by the committee makes the normal rates 3 per cent on the first $4,000 of income, 6 per cent on the next $4,000, and 9 per cent on all above $8,000. It makes the surtaxes begin at $6,000 and rise by graduations to 45 per cent on incomes in excess of $1,000,000. The 1921 act rates would have made the maximum surtax 55 per cent.

As in the house bill, the personal exemption for a single taxpayer is set at $1,000. Married persons, if earning less than $5,000, will receive a $2,500 exemption; if their income exceeds $5,000, their exemption will be only $2,000. As now, $400 will be allowed for each dependent.

Mr. Mills' appeal for the elimination of the 1½ per cent penalty on consolidated returns of affiliated corporations was obeyed, and a flat 14 per cent rate, as against the present 12 per cent and the 13½ per cent rate of the house bill, was approved. The 12½ per cent credit for earned income, struck out yesterday, was restored.

A new source of revenue was settled upon by imposing a tax of 5 cents per pound on rubber imports.

Auto Rates Increased.

In place of a 10 per cent increase in the tobacco taxes as recommended by the treasury the committee voted 11 to 7, to increase the tax on automobiles, making the rates 4 per cent on passenger cars, 3 per cent on trucks, and 2 per cent on accessories, with tires excepted.

The exemption on the 10 per cent admissions tax was lowered from the 46 cents of the house bill and the 45 cents voted by the senate committee to 10 cents.

It was a rout for the committee, victory for the treasury.

When the work was done Secretary Mills characterized the result as a

HOOVER RENEWS HOUSE ATTACK; URGES ECONOMY

He's Under Fire on Two Fronts.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—While he was being assailed and defended in both houses this afternoon President Hoover loosed another excoriation of congress and of lobbyists for special groups for playing fast and loose with the national welfare and national credit.

JOSEPH W. BYRNS.

Apparently stung into retort by Democratic ridicule of his message of yesterday, the President depicted himself as the champion of the people's cause against the delay in balancing the budget and such "destructive legislation" as involved in the house tax bill, the Goldsborough inflation measure, and proposals for enormous additional expenditures.

Solemnly asserting that this is a "serious hour" for the nation, Mr. Hoover appealed to all elements of the government and the people to "rise with stern courage above partisanship to meet the needs of our national life."

Report Against Bonus.

While deeming it necessary to answer his critics, the President, it was learned, views with satisfaction certain events of today, which he attributes to the scolding he gave congress in his message yesterday. The senate finance committee virtually junked the tax bill it had written and accepted in large part the tax increase proposals originally made by the treasury.

The house ways and means committee reported adversely all of the bills providing for immediate cash redemption of the veterans' bonus certificates, which would cost 2 billions 400 millions. In addition, the stock market made its strongest rally in weeks.

Called Belated Convert.

The house spent the afternoon wrangling over the President's message. The Democrats accused Mr. Hoover of being a belated convert to economy, while such Republicans as took up the cudgels for the President taunted the Democratic majority with incapacity to legislate. Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the appropriations committee, dwelt on the opposition of the cabinet to the reductions in appropriations already under way and the extravagance of the President, with his four secretaries and nine automobiles, who is increasing, instead of decreasing, the cost of the White House. Representative Andrew L. Somers [Dem., N. Y.] asserted that the President and his party have put the country on the rocks with a five billion dollar deficit.

Hoover Issues Statement.

The President paid his latest respects to his foes on Capitol hill at the semi-weekly press conference.

"The issue before the country is the reëstablishment of confidence and speed toward recovery by ending these delays in balancing the budget through immediate passage of revenue measures and reduction of government expenditures," he said. "It is not a partisan issue. This was one of the most important steps of the nonpartisan program for restoring stability proposed by me and patriotically accepted by the leaders of both political parties last December. Effective programs, projects, estimates and possibilities for both economy and revenue have been presented and are known in every detail."

In this manner the President sought to dispose of the criticism that his December message and budget proposed no radical retrenchment.

Makes Attack on Lobbyists.

"This is not a controversy between the President and congress or its members," Mr. Hoover continued with increasing grimness of expression. "It is an issue of the people against delays and destructive legislation which impair the credit of the United States. It is also an issue between the people and the locust swarm of lobbyists who haunt the halls of congress seeking selfish privilege for special groups and sections of the country, misleading members as to the real views of the people by showers of propaganda.

"What is urgently required is im-

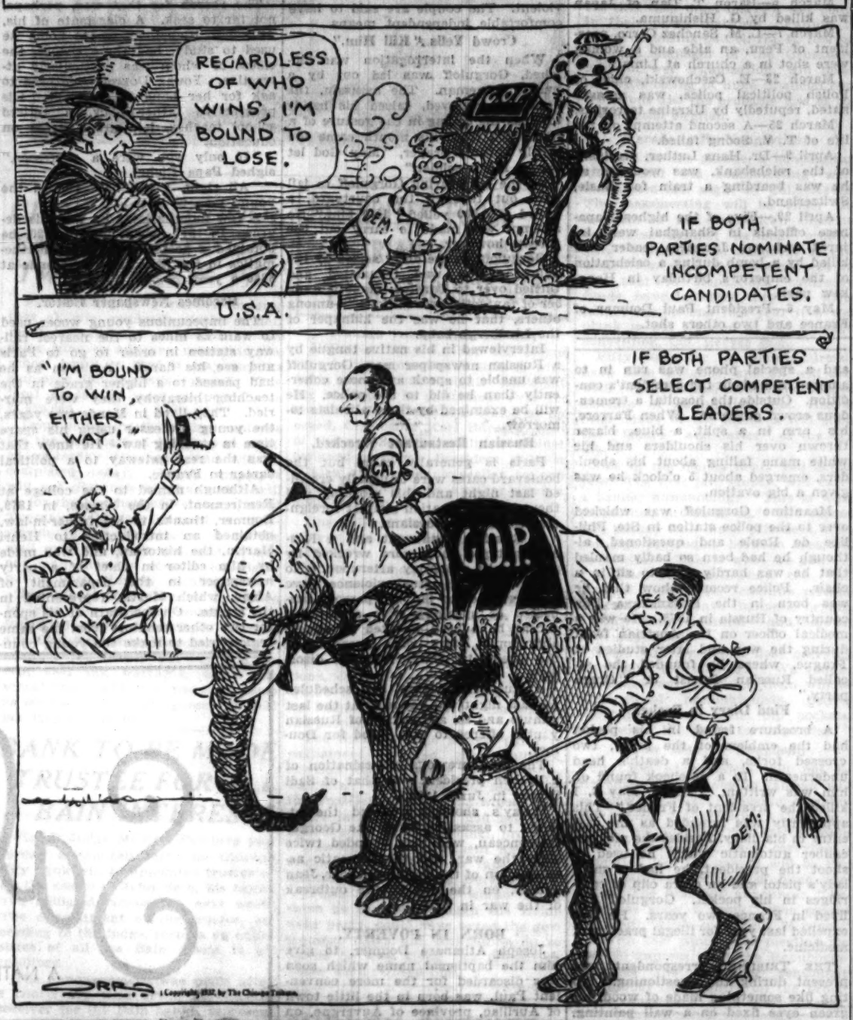
THE GREAT AMERICAN DERBY



Joliet Youth Is Set Free by Kidnapers

Gustave Miller, 22 years old, son of Max Miller, wealthy Joliet grocer and malt shop owner, who was kidnaped near his home a week ago Thursday, was returned to his family shortly before midnight last night.

Denial was made that any part of the $50,000 ransom demanded had been paid, but it was believed that the abductors succeeded in getting a cash settlement. Since Sunday the family and the kidnapers had been negotiating near Gary, and it is understood the hoodlums asked $10,000, and that the family offered $7,500.

Brother Tells of Return.

Details of the return of Gustave were told this morning by his brother, Martin, a lawyer, who dealt directly with the kidnapers. He said that he was telephoned early yesterday morning, and advised to visit a certain address in Chicago. At that spot, the caller said, he would find a note waiting for him.

"I went to Chicago," said Martin Miller, "and I found the note as promised. I cannot say where. The letter directed me to go to Deer Park, near Starved Rock, at 10 o'clock at night, and wait."

The attorney and his mother, Mrs. Mannie Miller, drove to the designated place, which is 65 miles southwest of Joliet. They waited nearly half an hour and soon saw a figure walking in the road. It was Gustave. He was driven home speedily, and later police learned of his return.

Youth Tells of Kidnaping.

The kidnaped youth told his story this morning. He said that when he was seized a white towel was wrapped over his head, leaving only room to breathe.

"I never saw the men," said Gustave. "They drove me around for hours, then took me into a house and put me in a basement. They handcuffed me and kept me blindfolded all the time. They were nice to me in many ways. They gave me anything to eat or drink that I wanted.

"The last time they took me out they still blindfolded me and then we drove around for about four hours. Finally they put me out. One man took off the blindfold. 'Don't look around,' he warned. I didn't. A few minutes later I met my mother and brother."

Convicts Raise $800 Purse to Buy Gift for Warden

Convicts at Stateville and Joliet penitentiaries yesterday donated $800 to be used in the purchase of gift for Warden Henry C. Hill, who is leaving the prisons on July 1. Warden Hill has been appointed warden of the new federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa.

STOCK PRICES RALLY IN RESPONSE TO NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Good times came back to Wall street today in the form of a stock market rally that boosted share values anywhere from $2 to $5 apiece. It was the first real upturn the market has enjoyed in nearly three months.

Advices from Washington indicating progress in the congressional effort to frame a satisfactory revenue bill following the administration's drive for action to this end combined with the announcement of a further cut of 15 per cent in United States Steel wages to bring about the result so devoutly wished for so long a time.

Traders with short accounts made haste to take in their lines, and by midafternoon were devoting themselves to the task with such vigor that the ticker was distanced by more than two minutes—a phenomenon that made traders long soured by ingrowing dispositions fairly gasp in astonishment.

United States Steel common rose more than $3 a share, and the preferred stock of the corporation jumped nearly 7 points. Such favorites as American Can, Allied Chemical, Auburn Auto, American Telephone, Union Pacific, Eastman Kodak, and the like were up $3 to $5.

All groups shared in the improvement.

Brave Mother Fails to Save Boy from Lake

A mother of Spartan courage risked the loss of two young sons in the choppy waters of Lake Michigan late yesterday in a futile attempt to rescue another boy, the son of a neighbor. The mother is Mrs. Marie Baillies of 6830 Jeffery avenue.

During the afternoon one of her sons, Jack, 10 years old, and two playmates, Willard Duft, 8 years old, of 6858 Euclid avenue, and James Bridge, also 8, of 6838 Jeffery avenue, pushed out into the lake at the foot of 66th street on a home made raft.

Raft Is Wrecked.

They had paddled 150 feet from shore when the crude craft broke apart, throwing them into the cold water. Young Bridge and the Baillies boy swam toward shore. Duft clung to a part of the raft. Just about that time Mrs. Baillies and her other son, Morris Jr., 12 years old, reached the lake.

Mrs. Baillies saw Jack make his way toward her. She saw the Duft boy clinging safely to what remained of the raft. She also saw the Bridge boy struggling far from shore. In a few more strokes Jack reached bottom, then waded out of the water.

He ran toward his mother, who quickly removed his shoes and stockings.

"Now go out and save that boy," she commanded. Without a word Jack plunged into the water and out toward young Bridge. Mrs. Baillies turned to Morris.

Morris Also Obeys.

"You, too, must help save that boy," she ordered. Like his brother Jack, Morris also obeyed. He removed his outer garments and dived into the water.

Jack, tired by his earlier struggle, found the rescue task too great and was forced to return to shore. His older brother, stronger, reached young Bridge and brought him to shore just as a coast guard crew from Jackson park saved the Duft boy from the raft.

As Morris carried the Bridge boy to shore, Mrs. Baillies tried to revive him. An inhalator squad also worked, but their efforts were in vain. Examination revealed that he was not drowned but died of shock and a skull injury, suffered in falling from the raft.

8 Reds Shot in Suburban Police Battle

More than 1,000 communists and sympathizers holding a massmeeting in a vacant lot at 24th avenue and Lake street, Melrose Park, without authorization yesterday afternoon were met by a detail of the village policemen, less than a dozen in all, and ordered to disperse.

Instead of obeying, the Reds, armed with knives and clubs, attacked the policemen, witnesses said. One of the police, James Bronze, carrying a Thompson submachine gun, was hurled prone to the ground. From that position the rapid fire gun, according to the report made by police, was discharged many times and eight of the rioters were wounded.

Hose Turned on Reds.

After the shooting the Melrose Park fire department, which had been summoned to assist the police, turned streams of water on the communists and drove them from the lot into Lake street. There they continued to resist for a short time until seventy-five policemen from the county highway forces and from other western suburbs, who had been concentrated in Bellwood in anticipation of rioting there, arrived and scattered them.

Thirty-seven men and two women were arrested. According to Chief of Police Arthur Leeseberg of Melrose Park and Assistant State's Attorney Edward D. Markham, two pistols, twelve knives, three blackjacks, and a piece of hose filled with lead were taken from the prisoners.

Struck in Legs.

The injured communists, all of whom were struck in their lower legs by machine gun bullets, are: Paul Pelas, 2727 West Austin avenue; Otto Schultz, 3010 Fulton boulevard; John W. Miller, 1426 Newberry avenue; Weste Swanson, 3242 Sheffield avenue; Frank Valacenka, 2409 North Halsted street; John Wickstrom, 3228 Opal avenue; Anton Bezozolkowski, 23 South Lincoln street, and John Helfritch, 2232 North Pioneer avenue.

Miller, Swanson, Schultz, and Valacenka all suffered fractures of their legs and were taken to the county hospital. Injuries of the others were less serious.

Peter Di Francesca, building commissioner of Melrose Park, who assisted the police in quelling the riot, was cut on the right hand with a knife wielded by a communist.

Treated by Physician.

Six of the injured Reds were first taken to the Westlake hospital, where they were treated by Dr. Edward G. Brust, village president of Melrose Park. Dr. Brust, Chief Leesberg, and Assistant State's Attorney Markham were named in a pamphlet distributed by the communists which asserted that they had approved "the murder of the workers."

"It appears that the Reds came out here looking for trouble," said Mr. Markham last night. "We shall prosecute all those under arrest."

The meeting yesterday was to have been held at Eureka hall, 221 South 25th street, Bellwood. Refused entrance to the hall by Bellwood police, the communists adjourned to Melrose Park.

Police Are Hooted.

When the first announcement of their meeting reached Sergt. Louis Boni in the Melrose Park police station he went out with three men and was hooted. He then called out all his available men and went with them to the scene. Fire Chief Anthony Prignano sent for his men.

Boni and Lieut. Paul Maggio led their detail up to the crowd and gave the command to move on. The attack and the shooting then occurred. Bronze, it was reported, was severely beaten. He asserted that he had not intended to fire and that the submachine gun was discharged as he fell.

Lieut. Make Mills of the Chicago detective bureau, who has investigated Red activities, said the communist organization has several hundred dues paying members in Chicago and several thousand in the United States.

W. S. WAKEM FALLS TO DEATH FROM HOTEL WINDOW

W. Seldon Wakem, 38 years old, son of Mrs. J. Wallace Wakem, 1120 Lake Shore drive, was killed early this morning in a leap or fall from his apartment on the tenth floor of the Edgewater Beach Apartment hotel, 5555 Sheridan road.

He crashed upon the second floor roof. Attaches found him dead. An investigation was begun immediately to determine whether or not his fall was accidental.

Wakem lived at the apartment hotel with his wife and two children. He was identified with radio and was said to be connected with station KYW. He was a son of J. Wallace Wakem of Wakem & McLaughlin, custom house brokers, who died in 1928, leaving an estate of $1,000,000.

ASSASSIN ENDS DOUMER'S LIFE; RUSSIAN'S DEED

End Comes 17 Hours After Shooting.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

PARIS, May 7 [Saturday, 5 a. m.].—President Paul Doumer died at 4:40 a. m. [10:40 p. m. Chicago time] from gunshot wounds inflicted yesterday afternoon by Paul Gorguloff, a Russian fanatic. The assassin calls himself a White Russian Fascist, but some high officials think his hand was guided by Moscow.

Doumer was the second president in the history of the Third republic to die by assassination and the third to die in office.

By coincidence, Doumer, the 13th president, who was elected on the 13th of June, 1924, died after exactly 13 hours of suffering. His body was immediately transported from the hospital to the Elysee palace, where it will lie in state.

Fight to Save Life in Vain.

Death came after a long and heart breaking struggle, during which doctors hoped at first they would be able to save the 75 year old statesman from the shock and loss of blood caused by the two bullets he received. His wife and his daughter, Mme. Emery, were at the bedside when the end came. They were helped out of the hospital bordering on collapse.

President Doumer was shot down while attending a book sale for war orphans. Gorguloff, the assassin, is the self-styled president of the Russian Fascist party and a seeming lunatic.

Death came after four blood transfusions had been administered and the greatest surgeons of France worked over him all through the night. Oxygen was administered to help the president's heart action, but the labors of the doctors proved in vain.

Premier at Bedside.

Premier Tardieu was at the bedside when Doumer died, after lapsing into a coma at 3 o'clock. After the coma came on the president did not regain consciousness. Earlier in the evening he had talked lucidly with doctors and his family. He expressed the opinion that Gorguloff's crime must have been the deed of a madman.

Albert Lebrun, president of the senate, arrived at the hospital almost at the moment Doumer passed away and conferred briefly with Tardieu. It is believed that an immediate meeting of the national assembly will be convoked at Versailles to elect a new president, as provided by law.

Le Brun himself, Fernand Bouisson, president of the chamber of deputies, and Paul Painleve, deputy for Ain, are mentioned as the most likely successors to the assassinated president.

Pictures Are Forbidden.

A big ambulance was waiting in the courtyard of the hospital. By orders of the head of the president's military household no photographers were allowed to take pictures in the court, where 150 newspaper men had kept a death watch into the dawn.

As the clock struck 5 the body was carried out, a silk covering over the face.

Tardieu and most of the cabinet members who were present, as well as most of the presidential household and high police officials, slowly followed the body out of the hospital and stood bareheaded while it was lifted into the ambulance.

Shot at Charity Event.

The setting of yesterday's crime was unique in the annals of political violence. The gentle, austere, and aloof old man, who was only a figurehead in the French state, was not shot down in public ceremony, but at a social gathering at the Rothschild foundation in Rue Berryer—the annual charity book sale conducted by the association of literary war veterans. He arrived at the foundation at 3 o'clock, accompanied by Defense Minister Francois Pietri, Budget Minister Paul Reynaud, and other notables.

He was chatting with Claude Farrere, famous novelist, when a man slipped up beside him and fired a bullet through his head and another through his back from a distance of only a few inches. The assassin, a sinister giant from the Cossack country named Paul Gorguloff, fired in the name of fanaticism which has hitherto not been heard of in Europe—Russian fascism.

"I fired because France is aiding the bolsheviks to ruin my country," the assassin told police later through bruised lips.

Despite this declaration of hatred for the bolshevists, a sensational twist was given to the crime with the issuance at 1:30 o'clock this morning of a semi-official statement which said that according to dispatches from Prague police, Gorguloff was considered as a suspect by White Russians there and that at the moment he founded his Fascist party he held a membership card in the Czechoslovak communist party.

The Paris Humanite, communist paper, issued an extra edition featuring alleged admissions of Gorguloff that he was working in concert with White Russians. The paper demander the immediate expulsion of all Russian émigrés.

Think Reds Inspired Assassin.

Russian circles in Paris declare that Gorguloff has a dubious reputation and they are inclined to think that he was inspired by bolshevik agitators to stir up indignation against Russian refugees.

Gorguloff fought like a demon and fired wildly as he was seized by Pietrie and Paul Guichard, security director of the Parisian police, after he had fired the second shot at doumer. Farrere received a bullet through his left arm trying to shield Doumer and Guichard's hand was grazed by one of the bullets.

Meantime strong arms carried the unconscious body of the president, blood pouring from the wounds in his head and body, to the nearby Beaujon hospital. A blood transfusion was immediately performed.

The examination at the hospital disclosed that one bullet had entered the right cheek, ranged across the front of the head, grazing the cranial bone, and emerged from the left temple, where the bullet flattened into a dum-dum and shattered a terrible hole. The other bullet entered the back, near the right shoulder blade, and came out under the armpit, severing the axillary artery.

Scene of Crime Described.

I arrived at the Rothschild Foundation within 20 minutes of the shooting. Already a bewildered crowd was milling around in front. Inside was the silence that comes after hysteria. Detectives, officials and belated spectators wandered about. The room where the tragedy occurred was closely guarded.

The room looked like a remodeled chapel or hall of armor, long and narrow with a 30 foot ceiling. It was dimly lighted by opaque windows above the balcony which circled the room. Tarnished gilt fixtures and hanging tapestries added to the Baroque atmosphere—in keeping with the elegant but rich blooded taste of the Semitic financier of the empire period.

Blood Covers Floor.

Stalls of books had been set up around the room. At the corner of one of the stalls, directly facing the entrance, was a great pool of blood. That was where the president had fallen. In the center of the room on the floor lay a book—Farrere's "La Bataille"—The Battle. On top lay a pair of broken horn rim glasses and three exploded cartridge cases from an automatic pistol. A ring of detectives warded off visitors who might be tempted to touch the exhibits.

The book lying on the floor had been dedicated by Farrere to Gorguloff in the name "Paul Bradde." It was flecked with the president's blood. Back of the stall at the foot of which Doumer fell a glass case containing 16th century porcelain was shattered by a stray bullet.

Over at Beaujon hospital, around the corner from the Rothschild Foundation—a fact to which Doumer owed his life, if only for a few hours—there was indescribable confusion. Massed lines of police held back a gathering crowd, while under the archway of the rambling 18th century palace, which is one of Paris' most antiquated hospitals, a handful of policemen struggled vainly to keep out reporters each time the gates opened to admit cars of some official caller.

Severed Artery Is Clamped.

The president had been carried directly up to the operating room on the third floor, where the house surgeon, Dr. Tzanck, clamped the severed artery and gave an immediate blood transfusion. Three more transfusions were necessary shortly afterward. A nurse, Mme. Kriedel, and the head waiter of a small hotel named Rebatel, a professional blood giver, were among the donors.

While the first blood transfusion was going on a group of the most famous surgeons of France, including Prof. Goesset of the Academy of Medicine, rushed to the hospital.

From eyewitness accounts it is possible to give an accurate description of what had happened at the book sale. Many had noticed Goruloff because of his huge bulk and fierce expression of face. Something about the man made people shiver. He kept prowling about the crowded hall where intellectuals and social leaders were chatting in groups.

Although Gorguloff was well dressed —conventional black frock coat, white shirt, and smoked glasses—he aroused suspicion especially since he kept loitering around the stall presided over by Farrere, president of the association. To divert suspicion he bought two books, one from Farrere, the other from Robert Bouchard. He had the authors dedicate the books to him in the name "Bradde." When Bouchard asked, "Who are you?" he replied that he was a newspaper man.

Bouchard was one of the first to greet the president on his arrival. He was dedicating a book to Gorguloff while Doumer walked over to shake hands with Farrere. Nobody noticed Gorguloff edge up to Doumer. After the shot which caused the president to crumple, Pietri, the defense minister, was the first to grab the assassin.

"I was looking over the president's shoulder at the shelf of books when suddenly I saw a hand holding a revolver slip between the president and myself," Pietri said. "There was a loud explosion, then another.

Grabs Gun Arm.

"I jumped at the assassin and grabbed his gun arm. The fellow was strong as a gorilla and with his left hand tore loose my grip. Just then Guichard jumped on him and pinioned his left arm. 'Pull his hands down,' I shouted to Guichard, for he was trying to aim his revolver at the crowd and kept on shooting.

"Everybody was punching at him then, but it is not punches which are needed at such a time; it is grips. Some one even grabbed the assassin by the lip, trying to tear his mouth. Guichard floored him once with a punch, but he was struggling to his feet when two policemen seized him." Guichard, who was a friend of Doumer's, was broken by the thought that he was powerless to prevent the tragedy, although all the usual police precautions had been taken.

"Usually I stand behind the president, but by some unhappy coincidence I happened to be a few feet in front of him and could not see the assassin in time to prevent the tragedy," he said.

Notables Rush to Hospital.

Premier Tardieu, looking sick and worried, and former Premier Laval, now minister of labor, were among the first ministers to arrive at the hospital. They were followed by all the notables of French politics and a number of the diplomatic corps, including the German ambassador, Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, the papal nuncio, the Japanese ambassador, and the soviet ambassador, Valerian Dovgalevsky.

Tardieu was the only minister admitted to the operating room. Doumer spoke to him and is understood to have said:

"It must have been a raving maniac."

Mme. Doumer, accompanied by her daughter, arrived at the hospital about 4 o'clock and spent the afternoon there.

A "Little Elysée" was installed in the waiting room on the third floor and a special phone was run in to answer calls about the president's condition. Outside the hospital a tremendous crowd gathered. When Farrere, his arm in a split, a blue blazer thrown over his shoulders and his white mane falling about his shoulders, emerged about 5 o'clock he was given a big ovation.

Meantime Gorguloff was whisked over to the police station in Ste. Philipe de Roule and questioned, although he had been so badly mauled that he was hardly able to sit in a chair. Police records show that he was born in the Labanskaya Don country of Russia in 1875. He was a medical officer on the Austrian front during the war and later studied at Prague, where he founded the so-called Russian fascist or "Green party."

Find Diary in Pocket.

A brochure found in his pocket had the emblem of the party, two crossed forks, and a death's head underneath. In a notebook found on him was written: "Today, May 6, I killed the president of France." This apparently was intended as the last entry in his diary. Besides the medium caliber automatic which he used to shoot the president, he had a small lady's pistol and an extra clip of cartridges in his pocket. Gorguloff had lived in France two years. He was expelled last year for illegal practice of medicine.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent was present during the questioning. Sitting like something made of wood, his green eyes fixed on a wall painting, he replied in a monotonous sing song to questions. His hands were pinioned behind his back with handcuffs. His left eye was completely closed from the beating he had received. His coat had been torn off his back. His shirt was spotted with blood—the blood of Doumer.

Says Friends Betrayed Him.

"I am not a bandit," he mumbled. "Banditism is ruining the world. France, America, and Europe have been ruined by banditism and the bolsheviks. I kill for my country. May God give me force to die like a good soldier. I kill for my ideal. I die—I know I am to die—but my ideal lives forever."

With difficulty, his inquisitors brought him down to facts. He had been living in Monaco, he said, and had left his wife down there the day before yesterday to come to Paris. He spent last night in a hotel on the left bank of the Seine with a street walker. Questioned about the coöperation of possible accomplices, he said:

"I have an organization, but I have been betrayed. I was betrayed by a friend last fall, so I act alone. No one knows, not even my wife. No one helped me. My party? I have thirty or forty friends in my party, Russians, but they have all betrayed me."

Goes Under Assumed Name.

"How did you get into the book sale?" Gorguloff was asked.

"With a ticket I bought yesterday. I bought two books of tickets."

He produced the two books of tickets and a visiting card bearing the name "Paul Bradde."

"Where did you get that name?" he was asked.

"I am Paul Bradde when I write my books and when I am a poet," he replied. "I do films in Prague. I am an idealist. I want France to make war on the bolsheviks. I love Mussolini and Hitler. I am a Cossack and Fascist. I act alone. France is helping the bolsheviks to ruin my country."

The man's wife was identified as a Swiss girl whom he married last July. They have been living in Monte Carlo, where they were well regarded. Mme. Gorguloff is said to be extremely religious. She said last night at Monte Carlo, where she was arrested tonight, that Gorguloff was always gentle, had a kind nature, and was never violent. The couple are said to have comfortable independent means.

Crowd Yells "Kill Him."

When the interrogation was finished, Gorguloff was led out by a husky policeman. The assassin, the handcuffs removed, raised his hands towards the ceiling in the gesture of a ritual and from his mouth came the slowly babbled prayer, "May God let me die like a soldier."

As the car bearing Gorguloff to jail sped out through the courtyard, a crowd of 3,000 yelled "Kill him." No attempt was made to carry out the threat, however.

Gorguloff, in the diary seized by the police, which was translated and turned over to Tardieu, made a number of fantastic "revelations"—among others, that he was the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby.

Interviewed in his native tongue by a Russian newspaper man, Gorguloff was unable to speak any more coherently than he did to the police. He will be examined by three alienists tomorrow.

Russian Restaurant Wrecked.

Paris is generally calm, but the boulevard cafés were unusually crowded last night and this morning and there was indignation against foreigners, especially Russians.

A Russian restaurant and a Russian antique shop were wrecked by small mobs yesterday afternoon. No other cases of actual violence have been reported so far, but persons suspected of speaking with a Russian accent have been insulted in streets and shops. Extra police forces are in the streets to prevent possible disorders.

A Russian students' ball scheduled for last night was canceled at the last minute and an association of Russian youths offered to give blood for Doumer.

The only previous assassination of a French president was that of Sadi Carnot in June, 1894.

Today's shooting recalled the attempt to assassinate the late Georges Clemenceau, who was wounded twice since the war, and the dramatic assassination of the Socialist leader, Jean Jaures, on the eve of the outbreak of the war in 1914.

BORN IN POVERTY.

Joseph Athanase Doumer, to give him the baptismal name which soon was discarded for the more convenient Paul, was born in the little town of Aurillac, province of Auvergne, on March 22, 1857, the son of Jean and Victorine France Alexandrine Doumer. His father, who had started as a railway track worker, was boss of a section gang when his son was born and earned 50 cents a day. The furnished room in which the child first saw the light was rented for $1 a month.

Soon afterward the family moved to Paris and settled in an old house, now torn down, on the hill of Montmartre. Though that region may connote nocturnal gayety to tourists, to the Doumers it meant nothing but hard work and penury.

When Paul's father died his mother became a day household helper, earning 2 cents an hour by sewing, cleaning, and mending. The boy won his school diploma, first of his class, and at 14 went to work as apprentice to an engraver. His job paid him $10 a month, which in those days enabled him to spare his ageing parent much worry.

Wins University Degree.

The boy was ambitious. After his ten hours a day in the shop he attended a technical night school. Then he took up chemistry in his few spare hours and studied Latin and Greek, for he wished to acquire a university degree.

The reason for that was, perhaps, not far to seek. A classmate of his, Anthenor Richel, at whose home he used to study, had three sisters, the eldest of whom was particularly attractive. Young Doumer ventured to ask for her hand in marriage. His prospective father-in-law, a retired school teacher, laid great stress on education.

"If only you were a professor," sighed Papa Richel.

"All right, I will be!" replied the young man in love.

A few months later he won his degree. In 1877, when just over 20, he obtained a post as teacher of mathematics in the little town of Mende at $360 a year.

Becomes Newspaper Editor.

The impecunious young wooer used to walk 28 miles to the nearest railway station in order to go to Paris and see his fiancé. As soon as he had passed to a higher grade in the teaching hierarchy they were married. They lived in Mende two years, the young professor using his spare time in studying law. He knew that was the real gateway to a political career in France.

Although named to the college at Remiremont, in the Vosges, in 1879, Doumer, thanks to his father-in-law, obtained an introduction to Henri Martin, the historian, and was made by him editor in chief of a party newspaper in the department of Aisne, which Martin represented in the senate. On the death of his sponsor two other senators from the same region tried to make the young country editor modify his radical views. He refused and was discharged.

Thereupon he founded a rival sheet, the Tribune of the Aisne. He was his own circulation and business manager and principal writer. So hard did he work for his political ideas that the candidates he backed made a clean sweep in the 1885 legislative elections, beating those patronized by his former paper. Doumer came out of the mêlée an alderman and assistant mayor of Anizy-le-Chateau.

Three years later, at 31, he was elected to the chamber of deputies, where he soon distinguished himself by his grasp of financial questions. One of his earliest successes was engineering, a reform in France's treasury system that saved the nation $400,000,000 a year.

In 1895 he became governor general of Indo-China.

Doumer ruled Indo-China for seven years, reorganizing the great colony's administration and finance, quelling local uprisings and introducing labor-saving farm machinery. On his return to France his old department of the Aisne sent him back to the chamber. In a short time he was chairman of the budget committee. Three years later, in 1905, he was elected president—or speaker—of the lower house.

Defeated For President.

The presidential election of 1906 saw Doumer pitted against Fallieres, then president of the senate. The latter beat him by 449 votes to 371. Thereafter his political star was rather in the descendant.

The war years took heavy toll of the Doumer family. Three of his five sons were killed in battle and a fourth died soon after the armistice from wounds. The stricken father was busy through the war with minor government posts, although he held a ministry without portfolio in the Painleve cabinet of 1917, which was overthrown to make way for Clemenceau.

Doumer was in eclipse then until 1921, when Briand, as premier, made him minister of finance. He held the same office in another Briand government in 1925 and in 1927 was made president of the senate.

He held that post until on May 13, 1931, the national assembly, sitting at Versailles, elected him the thirteenth president of the third French republic, for which post he defeated the late Aristide Briand.

Doumer proved to be one of the most democratic of French presidents, having an abhorrence of the formalities of the office. He was the first to emancipate himself from red tape and to go and come as he pleased without official escort or outward honors. Despite his reputation as a frugal liver and a rigid economist in state affairs, he entertained amply and well and did all that was required of him as official host of the republic.

Famous Assassinations in History

The fanatic Russian assassin who yesterday took the life of President Doumer of France joins a large gallery of men who have tried to kill national rulers.

One of the most outstanding crimes of this sort was the killing of Abraham Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth in a Washington theater on April 14, 1865.

Two other United States Presidents met death at the hands of assassins—President Garfield on July 2, 1881, who was shot by Charles J. Guiteau, and President McKinley, on Sept. 6, 1901, who was shot by Leon Czolgosz at the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo.

A lunatic tried to assassinate President Roosevelt Sept. 1, 1903.

Marie François Sadi-Carnot, president of France, died on June 24, 1894, following an anarchist attack.

Other assassinations that have shocked the world include:

Abdul Aziz, sultan of Turkey, June 4, 1876.

Emperor Alexander II. of Russia, March 13, 1881.

Jose Barrios, president of Guatemala, Feb. 18, 1898.

Empress Elizabeth of Austria, Sept. 10, 1898.

Gen. Ulisses Heureaux, president of Dominican Republic, July 26, 1899.

King Humbert I. of Italy, July 29, 1900.

King Alexander I. of Serbia, with wife, June 11, 1903.

Francisco I. Madero, president of Mexico, and José Pino Juarez, vice president, Feb. 23, 1913.

King George of Greece, 1913.

Guillaume Sam, president of Haiti, July 28, 1915.

Alvaro Obregon, ex-president and president elect of Mexico, 1928.

Assassinations and attempted assassinations have been numerous since the first of this year throughout the world. They include the following:

Jan. 3—An attempt on the life of T. V. Soong, former Chinese finance minister, was frustrated.

Jan. 8—A Corean youth attempted to kill the Japanese emperor.

Jan. 9—C. Gentile, Italian consul in Paris, was wounded in an anti-Fascist demonstration.

Jan. 16.—Four Heimwehr members made an attempt on the life of F. Winkler, Austrian minister of the interior.

Jan. 17—A priest and 200 others were arrested for an attempt on the lives of President Carmona e Fragosa and Finance Minister Oliveira, in Lisbon, Portugal.

Feb. 7.—Sir S. Jackson, British governor of Bengal, was shot at by a young girl.

Feb. 10—J. Inouye, former Japanese finance minister, was assassinated by S. Konum, member of a reactionary society.

March 5—Baron T. Dan of Japan was killed by G. Hishinuma.

March 7—L. M. Sanchez Cerro, president of Peru, an aide and a woman were shot in a church at Lima.

March 23—E. Czechowski, chief of Polish political police, was assassinated, reputedly by Ukraine terrorists.

March 25—A second attempt on the life of T. V. Soong failed.

April 9—Dr. Hans Luther, president of the reichsbank, was wounded as he was boarding a train for Basle, Switzerland.

April 29.—Five of the highest Japanese officials in Shanghai were injured and one Japanese leader was killed by a bomb during a celebration of the emperor's birthday in Hongkew park.

May 6—President Paul Doumer of France and two others shot.

WIFE OF ASSASSIN SEIZED; HORRIFIED BY HER MATE'S ACT

MONTE CARLO, May 6.—[U.P.]—Mme. Paul Gorguloff, wife of the Russian who shot President Doumer in Paris today, was arrested tonight by Monaco police and held pending instructions from French authorities.

Mme. Gorguloff sobbed violently when police informed her of her husband's attack on the French president. Later she became calm and said she had just returned from church where she had been praying.

"My husband told me he had gone to Paris to attend a book sale in an effort to sell his poetry," she said. "He has no bolshevist friends. He never attended a bolshevist meeting. I cannot understand his act."

Tribune Writer Is Witness as Doumer Is Shot Down

An eyewitness story of the assassination of President Doumer is given herewith by Mme. A. Dorchitz of the Paris edition of The Chicago Tribune, who attended the ceremony at the Rothschild foundation and was standing within a few feet of the president when he was shot.

PARIS, May 6.—President Doumer arrived at 3 o'clock sharp to attend the annual sale of goods by the war veterans for the benefit of war widows and orphans. He went first to Paul Achard and congratulated him on his literary abilities, and then bought a book.

He then went to Claude Farrere, famous novelist and author of "The Man Who Killed," and shook hands with him. Farrere turned to introduce his wife to the president. The writer's broad back came between me and the scene and I could just get a view of the president's white beard.

Suddenly there was a loud explosion. I was about five yards away, but it sounded as if it were right in my ears. Four others came in quick succession.

I don't remember anything that happened for the next few seconds. Everything was in wild confusion, people struggling and crying out. Nobody seemed to know what to do or what had happened. It was one of those incredible things that paralyze you for a moment while your brain is trying to grasp the significance of what your eyes have seen.

Some one shouted: "They have killed the president." The crowd was agitated as if struck by a whirlwind. Between swaying bodies I could see the president lying on the floor, his beard streaked with blood and blood pouring out of his head. Farrere was standing to one side holding his arm.

Some one called for a doctor and presently one came and knelt over the president. He thought Doumer was already dead, for he asked every one to pause for a moment.

Somehow the assassin had been hustled out of the place. Every one tried to beat him and I thought he would be torn to pieces. The French writer showed me his hand, bloody from having struck the assassin.

U. S. SCRUTINIZES MEANS ANGLE OF LINDBERGH CASE

McLean Charges Before Grand Jury.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—While the grand jury listened today to a $100,000 swindling charge against Gaston B. Means department of justice agents were investigating the amazing possibility that Means was in close contact with the actual kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

They also started on the trail of the fortune which Mrs. Edward B. McLean, heiress wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, says she gave Means for the promised return of the stolen child. On receipt of a search warrant from Rockville, Md., they immediately started to comb the Means estate at Chevy Chase, just across the Maryland line from Washington.

From El Paso, Tex., came word that a man identified by the authorities as Harry Fleisher, long sought Detroit gangster, was registered at the same hotel as Means when the former crony of President Harding was there to "meet the kidnapers."

Nurse Tells of Conference.

Mrs. McLean accompanied Means on the Texas trip. With them went Miss Elizabeth Nelson, Mrs. McLean's nurse, who today told of the "conference."

"While we were in El Paso we talked with a group who said they were the kidnapers," she said. "They told Mr. Means they wanted to talk to Mrs. McLean herself, so she came down. I don't know what arrangements were made.

"They were very rough looking individuals, and the whole time we were in El Paso they trailed us constantly.

"The negotiations cost Mrs. McLean much more than $100,000. She was told by the kidnapers that they wanted to get rid of the $50,000 they had collected from Col. Lindbergh because it was marked money and they could not spend it.

"They offered to give her the ransom money in return for $35,000 and the assurance that the serial numbers would not be copied. She agreed.

"The next day a man dressed in priest's clothes appeared and was given the money. But he did not turn over the $50,000. He just took the $35,000 and left."

Carried Messages for Means.

Miss Nelson, an attractive middle-aged woman who is now on duty at the Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore, said she had frequently carried messages from Mrs. McLean to Means. Her "number"—Means had given a number to everyone connected with the negotiations—was 19. Mrs. McLean's was 11 and Means' own designation was 27.

"Most of the messages were assurances from Mrs. McLean that despite the lack of progress in the negotiations, she had every confidence in him.

"I heard him offer a dozen times to give back the $100,000, but each time she refused to accept it and reiterated her faith in his ability to bring her the Lindbergh baby."

Albert W. Fox, Mrs. McLean's attorney, denied she had paid the $35,000 for the return of the marked bills, but admitted she had received such an offer and had considered it seriously.

"Means advised her to accept the offer and urged her to pawn her jewelry to get the additional funds," Fox said.

Grand Jury Hears Charges.

It took the grand jury less than an hour to hear the strange story of the will o' the wisp chase that began on March 4—three days after the Lindbergh's heir's kidnaping—and ended Thursday when Means was arrested as he crossed the line into Washington.

The witnesses were Mrs. McLean, Nelson T. Hartson, one of her attorneys, and Gustave Griffoni, her butler. Their testimony, of course, was not made public.

Mrs. McLean, for years a leader of Washington society, was dressed in black satin, shiny black straw hat and fur to match. She is in mourning for her mother, who died recently, leaving her other millions to add to those bequeathed by her Colorado mine magnate father.

After testifying Mrs. McLean and Hartson conferred with Leo A. Rover, United States district attorney. Justice department officials talked with the butler.

Department of justice agents and Maryland police late today searched Means' house in Maryland, near Washington. The officers thoroughly ransacked the two story structure from top to bottom and even tore up part of a small playhouse of Means' little son. They refused to say whether or not they found anything significant.

Action Is Withheld.

The jury deferred action on an indictment until Tuesday.

Means, who is charged with larceny after trust, is confined in the District of Columbia jail having failed to post $100,000 bond.

"There is no 'larceny' involved," he insisted. "I did not solicit employment in this case. She came for me. I was hired at $100 a day and expenses. Not at any time was any money given me by Mrs. McLean disturbed in any way."

He insisted he had turned over the $100,000 at Alexandria, Va., to a supposed agent of Mrs. McLean who had whispered "eleven"—the number he had assigned to the heiress.

CALDWELL HAS NEW LEAD.

H. Wallace Caldwell, member of the board of education, was reported yesterday to be investigating another clew in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case. He conferred with United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the secret service yesterday. Following the conference, the three refused to disclose the subject matter. Mr. Caldwell conferred with Col. Lindbergh at his home in Hopewell, N. J., several weeks ago.

$100,000 Fraud Recalls Means' Part in Famous King Will Case

Many Chicagoans recalled yesterday how Gaston B. Means, who is held in Washington, D. C., as a $100,000 faker in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, figured in the famous King will litigation that dragged through the courts for many years. In the history of that case there were adventure, romance, riches, intrigue, forgery, tragedy, and charity.

The three principal characters were James C. King, Mrs. Maude A. King, and Means. King was one of Chicago's first millionaires. He was born in Vermont in 1830 and, coming west, wrested a fortune out of the lumber business and as early as 1860 was established in business in Chicago as a partner in the firm of Gillette & King.

Means "Advises" Widow.

At the age of 71 King married Maude Robinson of Morrison, Ill., who was then 24. He died four years later—in 1905—and a half dozen years later Gaston Means was the financial adviser of the widow.

Before he died King established the James C. King Home for Old Men at Garfield boulevard and Calumet avenue, which still exists. His will bequeathed more than $2,000,000 for the maintenance of the home and the Northern Trust company was selected by him to handle the trust fund to finance this home. He left his widow $:00,000 and stated that she had received a large prenuptial fund from him. The will was probated and the widow went to Europe, married again, was divorced and returned to live in New York.

Widow Shot While with Means.

Several years later her sister, Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, became acquainted with Means, who had been a detective. Testimony was given later that Means undertook the task of preventing the widow King again from remarrying. So thoroughly did he worm his way into Mrs. King's confidence that he soon became her financial manager, having power of attorney and handling her money as though it was his own, and losing her money, as well as whatever he had of his own, in speculation. He was fully in her confidence, however, when on Aug. 29, 1917, Mrs. King died of a gunshot wound in Concord, N. C.

According to Means, who was with Mrs. King at the time, they were shooting for target practice and Mrs. King accidentally shot herself. The body was shipped to Chicago, where suspicion first was directed against Means. The body was exhumed and an autopsy held, and an expert opinion was given that Mrs. King could not have shot herself. The wound was back of the left ear.

Finds a Second Will.

Means had just announced the finding of a "second" will signed by Mr. King on his deathbed. This gave the entire estate to the widow and nothing to the home for the aged. Means was indicted for the murder of Mrs. King, tried and acquitted. He claimed the charge was a plot to defeat the probating of the second will.

If the second will had been accepted Mrs. Melvin, sister of the dead woman, would have inherited the King fortune, then estimated at $3,000,000. She had contracted to give Means $1,000,000. She was one of the witnesses to the alleged will that turned up 12 years after King's death and which, it was claimed, was found by Means in an old tin box full of unimportant papers. Means was represented by Attorney Roy D. Keehn.

Probate Judge Henry Horner held the will to be a forgery. An appeal was taken to Circuit Judge Jesse A. Baldwin who also decided it was a forgery and the Supreme court approved both decisions. The estate remained in trust for the home. Means went to Washington, later to prison, and now reappears as an agent entrusted with $100,000 with which to ransom the Lindbergh baby, who has not been ransomed, even though the money has vanished.

CITY AND SCHOOL EMPLOYES TO GET TWO WEEKS' PAY

Mayor Cermak yesterday ordered that all city employés receive a half month's pay, and arranged at the same time to advance money to the school board so that it may pay its employés for a similar period. The total needed to meet all payrolls is $3,950,000.

Issue of paychecks to city employés for the last half of March was started yesterday afternoon, and will be completed today. School employés will not get their checks, which will be for the last half of February, until Tuesday. Officials deemed it inadvisable to let the checks lie in the mail over the week end, and so will not mail them to schools for distribution until Monday evening.

The school board has no securities to give the city as collateral for funds advanced, but Mayor Cermak and City Treasurer Kearns agreed to advance the money anyway and accept 1932 tax warrants, which the school board will have power to issue as soon as the council passes its 1932 tax levy ordinance.

BANK TO BE MADE TRUSTEE FOR ALL BAIN INTERESTS

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday announced that the Chicago City bank will be appointed trustee of all the assets of John Bain, his banks and affiliated companies, next week. The appointment of the trustee, according to the judge, insures an equal share of all the Bain assets to all creditors.

The announcement was made after a conference with Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver for the Bain banks, representatives of the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for John Bain personally, and George Lederer, attorney for the receiver for the Bain investment company.

Lederer will present an order for the appointment of the trustee along with a petition for the dissolution of John Bain, Inc., either Monday or Tuesday. Judge Feinberg said that he would grant both orders and instruct the receivers to turn over all assets to the new trustee.

CAR MEN'S UNION CALLED FOR PAY CUT CONFERENCE

Representatives of the Car Men's union will hold their first formal wage conference with President Guy A. Richardson of the Chicago Surface Lines Monday. Contracts affecting about 12,000 employés expire May 31.

The employés will be asked to take a 10 per cent salary reduction, it has been indicated, but the first sessions probably will deal with the general topics of business and working conditions.

Wage contracts affecting about 3,500 employés of the Rapid Transit company also expire at the end of this month, but company officials indicate little or nothing will be done pending the outcome of the Surface Lines conferences.

HITLERITES FORCE AUSTRIAN CABINET TO RELINQUISH RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, May 6.—For the second time in three months Austria is without a government tonight. Anticipating his defeat in parliament over the question of new elections which he opposed, Chancellor Karl Buresch, head of the anti-Socialist coalition cabinet, resigned at noon. President Wilhelm Miklas asked the chancellor to continue in office until another government is selected.

Chancellor Buresch resigned on Jan. 27 and then formed a new government after ousting Foreign Minister Johann Schober, whose pro-German sympathies displeased France. Buresch's resignation today was really due to the sensational gains of the Hitlerites in the municipal and provincial elections two weeks ago. The Nazis clamored for new national elections, complaining that parliament, where they haven't a single seat, is no longer represented by the will of the people.

The Socialists, the largest party in parliament, accepted the challenge, anxious for a straight fight with the Fascists. The Socialists, aided by the Pan-German party, which was angry because Schober had been dismissed from the last cabinet, proposed a dissolution of parliament and new elections. Unwilling to face parliamentary defeat today, Buresch quit.

Prince Stahremberg, whose eight votes he controls through the Heimwehr party, could have saved the government today but declined to do so unless he was given two ministries. These were refused him.

SUDDEN SHOWER SPOILS AN OLD CAMPUS CUSTOM

Some of the members of the cast of the University of Chicago Blackfriars production, "Whoa, Henry," were in doubtful voice yesterday as they prepared for the first performance last night.

In keeping with campus tradition, the cast marched en masse to Beecher hall to serenade the co-ed residents Thursday night. They had scarcely raised their voices in the opening effort when tradition was shattered by a shower of cold water.

The deluge was directed by co-eds in the hall who used glasses, pails, and all other available containers to halt the song service.

Evanston Student Admits He Peeps Into Windows

John Culver Jr., 18 years old, 2526 Jackson avenue, Evanston, a senior in the Evanston High school yesterday confessed that he is the person who has frightened Evanston residents during recent weeks by peering in their windows. He was arrested Thursday night after he had utilized a flashlight in looking into a house at 1409 Lincoln street. He will be turned over to his sister, Evanston police said.

ANTI-DRY PARADE TO DEMAND WET G. O. P. PLATFORM

Demonstration Is Set for Eve of Convention.

An anti-prohibition parade with dozens of floats satirizing the story of the dry movement will be held downtown on June 13, on the eve of the Republican National convention. The parade will be followed by a massmeeting in the Coliseum.

The dual demonstration is intended as a warning to the Republican leaders that they must insert a wet plank in their party platform. Failure to do so, according to Col. Ira L. Reeves, regional manager of the Crusaders, militant wet organization, will mean the withholding of huge financial contributions and the probable loss of the presidential election.

Parade to Be Nonpartisan.

Plans for the parade, a nonpartisan affair, and the massmeeting were announced last night by Col. Reeves. The massmeeting will be under the auspices of the Republican Citizens' committee against national prohibition. Thousands of members of this committee, who have contributed in the past to Republican campaign funds, have indicated they will withhold contributions this year if a wet plank is not adopted at the Chicago convention, Col. Reeves said.

Fifty floats for the parade already have been designed, and all will deal with the influences, results and alleged benefits of prohibition, Col. Reeves said. Many of the tableaus will show the "before" and "after" of the dry law.

One of the double floats will depict jails. The first jail, empty, will carry a banner announcing: "This is what prohibition promised us." The second jail, packed with mock prisoners, arms and legs protruding between bars, will be labeled: "This is what we got."

Another float will show the "it" girls of prohibition, feminine reformers who will wave banners crying. "Down with cigarets!" and "Down with happiness!"

There will also be a float carrying doughboys proclaiming: "We fought for Democracy." Behind them will be long nosed prohibitionists, bottles sticking out of their hip pockets, shouting: "We fought for 'hipocrisy.'"

Show Rise of Gangdom.

The rise of gangdom will not be overlooked. In a moving tableau will be shown a huge limousine carrying this banner: "Prohibition's Children." Behind the limousine will trail a dozen Austin automobiles, each carrying a gangster. Not far behind will be two floats carrying pictures of huge beer steins. The first will announce: "Before—one stein, 5 cents." The second will read: "After—one stein, 25 cents."

"With this parade and meeting we hope to impress upon the Republican delegates the changing sentiment throughout the country on the prohibition question," said Col. Reeves.

HOOVER AGAIN ATTACKS HOUSE; URGES ECONOMY

President Under Fire on Two Fronts.

mediate action upon the conclusion of these questions. This is a serious hour which demands that all elements of the government and the people rise with stern courage above partisanship to meet the needs of our national life."

With that the President fiercely snapped his jaws and ended the interview.

The angry passions loosed by the President's message of yesterday kept the house in an uproar for three hours.

Defending his party, Mr. Byrns said that the house appropriations committee had slashed a total of $161,455,101.56 under the President's budget estimates. "In my judgment that is a most remarkable showing, especially when we are told in the President's message on yesterday that the reductions must come from a sum not exceeding 1 billion 700 million dollars.

"The question of appropriating money is by no means a partisan matter. It has no place in politics and I am sorry that any one, no matter how high the position he holds, has sought to drag it into politics and make it a political football, possibly, in the coming campaign.

"Let me remind that had it not been for your committee on appropriations in this house which was so sharply criticized yesterday you would have been in the attitude of appropriating at the request of the President 161 million dollars more than you have for the year 1932."

Points to Criticism.

Mr. Byrns said that the only criticism of the committee had come from the gentleman from Nebraska. [He referred to Representative Simmons.] "He told this house that these reductions did not amount to more than $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 or some figure like that, and that we would have to come back here next winter and make deficiency appropriations to cover it, when his President and mine in his message yesterday said that the estimates could be cut—his estimates, mind you—700 million dollars. I wonder what the gentleman from Nebraska will have to say to that."

Returning to his criticism of the President, Mr. Byrns continued:

"And while I mention that let me call your attention to the fact that these estimates were sent up here last December. I say it is an indictment of the President, and I am speaking plainly, and an indictment of his budget and an indictment of every head of his departments when he comes and tells us within four months after he submitted these estimates that they ought to be cut 700 million below the amounts that he told us last December we ought to appropriate.

Time for Plain Speaking.

"I do not like to talk this way, but the time has come for plain speaking. If my word can be a criticism of any one I will let the facts speak for themselves.

"Why was it that the President of the United States last December did not tell congress to cut these estimates 700 millions? Why did he not go further and do what the budget law imposes upon him as a sacred duty under his oath as President and cut them himself, if he thought they could have been cut in that way?

"I repeat, I do not know a greater indictment that could be drawn gainst the President of the United States, if you permit me to say it, and his budget than the statement contained in his message of yesterday with reference to what ought to be appropriated."

Comment by Pettingill.

Representative Pettengill of Indiana interjected:

"Every one remembers that when the first bill, the agricultural bill, was reported to the house carrying a reduction of $10,834,000 plus, the secretary of agriculture, a member of the President's cabinet and supposed to stand for him and represent his views, gave out an interview in which he criticized the committee on appropriations for having reduced the estimates in that amount.

"Then when the interior department bill came along, the secretary of the interior, generally supposed to be closed to the President than any other member of his cabinet, gave out an interview in which he harshly criticized the committe and the congress and in which he said they had absolutely crippled his department because they reduced his estimates in the sum of $5,600,000. Then the secretary of war added his notes of protests against the reduction in some speech he made or some letter he wrote to a paper in Missouri."

Simmons Makes Reply.

Representative Robert G. Simmons [Rep., Neb.] was the first of the Republicans to answer Chairman Byrns. Replying to the Democratic leader's statement that 161 million dollars had been saved thus far through clipping supply bills Mr. Simmons said a check up disclosed that the actual savings amounted to but $39,000,000.

"The Democratic leaders," he asserted, "have failed miserably to effect economies and are now attempting to place responsibility for their failure upon President Hoover and the Republican minority in the house. The President is even being blamed for their lack of leadership."

A moment later Representative Earl C. Michener [Rep., Mich.] followed Simmons with the assertion that Chairman Byrns had been speaking not as the chairman of the appropriations committee but as chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee. He said Byrns' whole speech was simply a political tirade. He taunted the Democratic leaders with inability to control their membership. He said that as the country was running behind at the rate of $5,000 a minute the deficit had jumped up $300,000 while Byrns was speaking, his remarks taking one hour and one minute.

Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.] called upon Chairman Byrns to resign. He asserted that the chairman had been a "colossal failure" as head of the committee.

SENATORS VOTE NEW TAX BILL AND CUT RATES

Mills Acts as Whip at Committee Session.

"peace program." Though he did not approve of every feature of the bill he said he would give it the treasury's blessing.

But as one gloomy senator expressed it, it was the "most hysterical show ever seen in the senate."

The committee approved the rates set on telephone, telephone, radio, and cable messages. Telegrams will pay a 5 per cent tax; the tax on telephone messages will be 10 cents on charges from 50 cents to $1; 15 cents from $1 to $2, and 20 cents over $2.

Capital Losses Spread.

Two important administrative changes were agreed upon.

Capital losses are to be allowed to be spread into one successive year. Securities losses are to be divided into two classes, those on securities held more than two years and those held less. Losses on securities of the former class will be treated as under existing law. On securities of the latter class deductible losses will be limited to the amount of gains in similar transactions in that year, as stipulated in the house bill, with the exception that any excess loss may be carried over to the next year to be applied against gains in like transactions, and provided it does not exceed the taxpayers' ordinary income.

The committee raised the proposed tax on lubricating oil from 2 to 4 cents; approved a flat 4 cent tax on stock and bond transfers; approved the increased rates on first and second class mails; approved a 2 cent tax on bank checks, 3 per cent on oil pipe line charges, 3 per cent on chewing gum, 15 cents a gallon on wort, 3 cents a pound on malt sirup, 20 cents a gallon on grape concentrates, 5 per cent on radios and phonographs, 10 cents per $100 on srock and bond issues, and 50 cents for each $500 above $100 on real estate conveyances.

PARIS, May 6.—[U.P.]—Art students and their ladies will go back 3,000 years for the inspiration of their undress for the 50th of the famous "Quatz' Arts" balls to be held June 6. This year's motif will be early Egyptian.

SENATE PASSES BILL FOR NAVY OF TREATY POWER

Britten Sees House O. K., Hoover Not Opposing.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Adequate navy forces won a signal victory today, when the senate approved the Hale bill authorizing the construction of all warships needed to bring the United States fleet up to the tonnage limits of the Washington and London naval treaties. The vote on the measure was 44 to 21 with the major opposition coming from radical Republican ranks.

As the bill goes to the house it provides for modernizing five of the newest American battleships, the construction of all new ships permitted this country by treaty, and the replacement of over-age vessels. If all ships needed to bring the fleet up to treaty limits were laid down prior to 1936 the cost of the bill would be approximately 800 million dollars. If the fleet were brought up to treaty strength over a ten year period the cost would approximate a billion dollars, an average of 100 millions a year.

Called Constructive Economy.

Passage of the bill was hailed with gratification by Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval affairs committee and Republican members of the Democratic controlled house naval committee which thus far has failed to report out a warship authorization measure. Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], ranking minority member of the house committee, described senate approval of the bill as constructive economy in this time of wide spread world unrest.

Whether it will be possible to push the Hale bill or a similar measure through the house before adjournment is problematical. The bill's success in running the pacifist and little navy gauntlet in the senate augurs well, however, for its enactment into law during the short session begining next December if it fails of passage this spring.

Britten Sees Hope of Passage.

Representative Britten was of the opinion today that it would be possible to obtain house approval for the Hale bill if the White House would not oppose its passage and the Democratic controlled house naval committee would agree to substitute it for the Vinson 700 million dollar warship authorization bill. This latter measure was pigeonholed by Mr. Vinson at the direction of the Democratic policy committee in the house.

No funds are carried in the house bill and according to its advocates its passage this year will not interfere with the balancing of the 1933 budget. The navy department plan is to expend between $80,000,000 and 100 million annually on new construction over a ten or twelve year period so as to gradually bring the American fleet up to parity with that of Great Britain and the treaty ratios with Japan.

Hale Shows Navy Weakness.

Approval of the bill came after Chairman Hale and sponsors of the measure had called attention to the dilapidated condition of the American fleet and the rapid strides made by other nations to strengthen their navies. Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], radical Republican, led the fight against the bill today, asserting it represented a waste of money.

Although he opposed taking the measure up at this time, Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, voted for its passage.

ANN HARDING FILES RENO DIVORCE AFTER EMBRACING HUSBAND

Reno, Nev., May 6.—(AP)—Scarcely four hours after they had greeted each other with an affectionate embrace Ann Harding, noted film star, filed suit here today to divorce Harry Bannister, whom she want to free so he may pursue a career of his own.

Miss Harding's complaint, which was prepared after her arrival here this morning from Hollywood, simply charged cruelty. It gave no details, except that she and Bannister were married in New York City on Oct. 21, 1926.

The court was asked to approve an agreement which arranges custody of the couple's 4 year old daughter, Jane. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

Although still professing to love each other, Miss Harding and Bannister decided on a divorce as the only way in which he can reestablish himself as an actor and not be overshadowed by his wife's fame.

Already their plan has brought Bannister several offers to appear in films both here and abroad, he indicated today.

One "particularly attractive proposition," he said, has been made to him by a London producer, but before deciding whether to accept he will go first to Hollywood and then to New York to consider other openings.

BONUS DOWNED IN COMMITTEE; UP AGAIN TODAY

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—After voting virtually to strangle the cash bonus issue in a parliamentary tangle, the house ways and means committee will meet again tomorrow to decide whether this action was final.

Today, the committee on a 15 to 10 ballot, dealt the 2 billion dollar new money plan what its sponsors conceded was a fatal blow unless congress reconvenes after the national political conventions.

At the request of bonus advocates, including Representatives Patman [Dem., Texas], and Connery [Dem., Mass.], Acting Chairman Crisp later agreed to a review of this decision.

The committee not only rejected, 14 to 11, the Patman plan for an issue of treasury notes to redeem the veteran certificates but also voted 15 to 10 to return all cash bonus bills to the house with unfavorable reports.

GETS 60 DAYS ON DOPE CHARGE.

Roy L. Juhre, 45 years old, 1241 West Adams street, was sentenced to 60 days in the House of Correction yesterday by Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the Des Plaines street court for possession of narcotics. Neighbors charged that he gave narcotics to his 20 month old daughter.

EXPECT 300,000 AUTOS ON ROADS THIS WEEK-END

Warm Weather Brings Rush for Maps.

BY HAL FOUST.

Traffic authorities are prepared for the first heavy touring of 1932 this week-end. Unless the weather is highly discouraging they expect 300,000 automobiles with 750,000 passengers on the pavements of Chicagoland this afternoon and tomorrow. The mid-summer temperatures yesterday and Thursday precipitated a rush for road maps at touring bureaus, including THE TRIBUNE public service office.

The week-end motorists will encounter new detours this year. Many of the highways are closed for construction projects. The most important of these are as follows:

MILWAUKEE ROAD—Closed from River road to Central road; detour on River road and Central road. Closed from Touhy avenue to city limits of Chicago; detour on Raven street and Newark avenue. Closed at Lake Villa; detour west from Lake Villa on Grand avenue road to Ill. 59, thence north to Antioch.

NORTHWEST HIGHWAY—Closed from Des Plaines to Park Ridge; detour on Touhy avenue, Busse highway, and Minor street.

MANNHEIM ROAD—Detour on Joliet road, Willow Springs road, and Archer avenue.

EVANSTON-ELGIN HIGHWAY—Closed northeast of Des Plaines; marked detour through Evanston to Dempster street to Northwest highway, to Evanston-Elgin highway. Another detour on Elgin streets.

HIGGINS ROAD—Closed from River road to Cumberland avenue; detour on Cumberland avenue, Lawrence avenue, and River road.

HALSTED STREET—Closed in Chicago Heights; detour on new Ill. 1 cutoff to Dixie highway, to 13th street, to Halsted street.

OGDEN AVENUE—Gravel run-around grade separation at Lisle.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY—Detour in Joliet for bridge construction over Des Plaines river.

LAKE STREET—Closed for grade separation at North avenue in Elmhurst; detour on Mannheim road, Grand avenue, and York road.

NORTH AVENUE—Detour on Mannheim road, Grand avenue, and York road. St. Charles road can also be used.

While all of these detours are marked, motorists are advised to avoid the temporary routes if possible, since for the most part the pavements are inadequate for the main highway traffic they are now forced to carry.

What Difference does a tooth or two make?

Ask the man who has just lost a few

If you have ever lost a tooth in the front of your mouth, you know how precious all your natural teeth are. The days with the toothless gap . . . the silly, lisping sound of your own voice . . . the strange embarrassment that made you keep your hand over your mouth. You'll never want to go through it again.

Start now to protect your teeth. Protect them against pyorrhea—the thief of half the adult teeth which are lost. Pyorrhea starts at the gum line and works downward towards the tooth sockets. It may be working in your mouth five or ten years before you know it, before it takes a single tooth. But, sooner or later, beware . . .

Give the dentist a chance to prevent. It's much better than repairing. Visit him twice a year and make a point of it. That is prevention—and sensible prevention too. Then there is the question of home treatment and care. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The gums must be considered as well, Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's. All druggists.

RESIST SMALL'S BID FOR RULE OF COUNTY G. O. P.

Reports that Len Small is attempting to take control of the Cook county Republican central committee with the aid of his old city hall allies were confirmed yesterday.

Committeemen elected on April 12 received telegrams from the former governor asking them to call on him at his headquarters in the Hotel Morrison, and when they went there they were urged to "sign up" for the election of Patrick Sheridan Smith as chairman of the committee.

A number of them said they protested against this interference from downstate and refused to sign. Others said they do not consider Smith, former city clerk, a leader able to handle the present situation.

Because election credentials have not been issued a second postponement of the committee meeting is expected on Monday. A majority of the members are said to favor the election of George F. Barrett as chairman.

SUBURB'S ZONING SUIT COOKED UP ON 2 GAS STOVES

Reagan Brood to Fight for a Common Roof.

Such a simple thing as the installation of two medium sized gas ranges constitutes the legal alchemy by which village authorities or Riverside allege the old Reagan mansion at 82 Nuttall road was converted into an apartment house. Such, at least, is the understanding of the three young couples whose residence there has brought on a lawsuit based on the zoning ordinance prohibiting apartment houses in the west side suburb.

It's all pretty farcical to the three couples—the John Silverthornes, the George S. Hellyers, and the Robert F. Grims — who returned to the old homestead to live in the absence of their mother and the presence of the depression. Mrs. Silverthorne, the former Elizabeth Goddard, and Mrs. Hellyer, who was Ethel Reagan, discussed yesterday their own attitude and that of their mother in the suit, on which a hearing is scheduled for June 17.

Mother Is in Italy.

"We haven't any idea who the anonymous party was that made the original complaint," declared the blond and lovely Mrs. Silverthorne. "Suit was brought last September, and mother waited for it to come to trial. It didn't, so she went to Italy and she won't be back perhaps for a year.

"As for the house, we will show photographs to prove that it hasn't been altered in the slightest on the outside, and that the only interior changes are one wall knocked out between a sewing rom and closet, to make a kitchenette, and one beaverboard partition erected at the top of the stairway. It wasn't necessary to install additional bathrooms—they've always been here. And the one point on which the suit will be tried, they inform us, is that we are using two additional stoves.

One Big Family.

"It all seems pretty silly, since we've lived here ever since we were children. Actually, we still count ourselves one family, though I suppose we are three. We've tried to sell the house, but it is so huge nobody wants it. Just fancy my mother and two youngest brothers living here alone—why, they'd rattle in the place."

Mrs. Reagan had five children by her first husband, Joseph S. Goddard, and two by her second, Herbert E. Reagan, both of whom are dead. The house was the property of Reagan, who also had five children by a first marriage.

Nine persons in all occupy the home now, the three daughters, their husbands, and three children—each has a daughter. No rent is paid, Mrs. Silverthorne explained. Instead, they share the expenses of the place, which otherwise might be standing empty.

A plan to do away with all but one stove was being discussed by the three couples yesterday.

REGARD SUIT AS FARCE

Mrs. George S. Hellyer (at desk) and her sister, Mrs. John Silverthorne, in the old Reagan mansion in Riverside, which the village authorities declare has been transformed into an apartment house, by changes which enable three families, all related, to live there. They say they do not regard the proceedings seriously.

ILLINOIS WOMEN 75% FOR HORNER, LEADER ASSERTS

With a smiling protest Mrs. Dorothy L. Kay of Watseka consented yesterday to venture into the field of prophecy in reference to the outcome of the governorship election next November. Her principal forecast was that Judge Henry Horner will receive 75 per cent of the votes of downstate women.

Mrs. Kay was interviewed because on Thursday the Democratic state central committee in session at Springfield selected her to take charge of the task of building up women's organizations in all the downstate congressional districts. Eventually she is to have a lieutenant in command in each of the fifteen districts, but for the time being she is to have complete control of the work.

She was found by the interviewer at the family home at 805 Fourth street, Watseka. Her husband is Wilfred S. Kay, an attorney, who also operates a farm, and they have one son, Louis, 17 years old.

At first, Mrs. Kay was reluctant to discuss her new duties—said she was not looking for publicity, that she was not a professional politician and was actuated entirely by a desire to aid in the present situation. But under the pressure of questions, she eventually expressed some of her views concerning the outlook.

"There are many women anxious to aid in the election of Judge Horner," she said. "They know that he is sympathetic toward the problems of the state in which women are most deeply interested as well as the general problems that appeal to all citizens. Because of his fine record and wonderful personality, more and more support is coming to him every day."

"What do the women of the state think of Len Small?" she was asked.

"Just what they always have thought," she said, "and they are sick of his shallow pretenses and extravagant promises."

RICHBERG TRIES NEW ATTACK TO BAR WILKERSON

Charges Concern Traction Receivership.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Charges that Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson was party to a scheme to "deliver the people's traction rights to the Insull interests" and that he had approved exorbitant receivers' fees in cases brought into his court were made today before the senate subcommittees before which Judge Wilkerson's promotion to the Circuit Court of Appeals is pending.

DONALD R. RICHBERG.

The witness was Donald R. Richberg, labor spokesman and attorney for the Railway Labor Executives' association.

The promotion of Judge Wilkerson to the higher court as recognition of his fearless handling of the Al Capone case was referred back to the subcommittee last week in order to give Attorney Richberg opportunity to offer new evidence, of which today's testimony is the first installment.

By a vote of 3 to 2, with Chairman Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] and Senators Walsh [radical Dem., Mont.] and Robinson [Rep., Ind.] taking the affirmative, the subcommittee had previously recommended Judge Wilkerson's elevation.

Charges Excessive Fees.

It was Attorny Richberg's specific citation in which he alleged that Judge Wilkerson had allowed the late Henry A. Blair, former Chicago Surface lines president; James M. Sheean, Chicago attorney, and Weymouth Kirkland, senior partner of the law firm which represents THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, to draw exorbitant fees as receiver and receivers' counsel in the receivership and consolidation proceedings affecting the Chicago street railways, that chiefly interested the committee.

He asserted that Blair had been permitted to draw $80,000 a year as president and an additional $60,000 as receiver, and that Sheean had similarly drawn two $25,000 salaries. Attorney Kirkland, Richberg said, had not drawn a double salary, but he considered the $25,000 paid Kirkland as counsel for the receivers excessive.

In all, said Richberg, the various fees paid out with Judge Wilkerson's approval in the Surface lines case totaled $1,198,000.

Borah Halts Diatribe.

Richberg began his testimony with a formal statement in which he declared the committee had been "outrageously imposed upon by witnesses who have presented evidence in support of this nomination."

"Spokesmen for and participants in the big racket which has corrupted government in Chicago and Illinois and made uncounted millions for the political and big business racketeers," he went on, "have paraded themselves before this committee as leaders of an army of civic virtue and hurled mud indiscriminately at decent labor organizations or self-respecting citizens who have opposed them."

Senator Borah curtly interrupted.

"Did Mr. Richberg wish," he inquired, "to infer that Judge Wilkerson was knowingly a party to such a conspiracy?"

The witness hedged, expanded his charges, saying that Sheean had received $224,000; Kirkland, $107,000, and Walter L. Fisher, who was appointed to represent the court, $125,000.

Refuses to Be Pinned Down.

Mr. Richberg sidestepped further insistence on the part of Senators Borah and Walsh to pin him down. He disagreed with the philosophy of these men. He brought in the citizens' committee, which was organized to deal with the traction tangle.

"Let's find out who these criminals are, then," said Senator Borah. "If a man is taking money out of my pocket I don't care about the differences between our philosophies. If some of these men acted, as they thought, honestly, then Judge Wilkerson might have done so."

James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., Mr. Richberg recalled, was one member of the citizens' committee.

"To foist him off as a disinterested person, I say, was fraudulent," he finished. Col. Albert A. Sprague was another citizens' committee member.

Glenn Enters Discussion.

Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, chief sponsor of the Wilkerson promotion, had been sitting by, his fire gathering. At the mention of Col. Sprague's name he could hold in no longer.

"Tell the committee what a criminal Col. Sprague is," Senator Glenn challenged.

Again Mr. Richberg fell back on his explanation that a man might be "high grade" and still lend himself to "a clever scheme to get the people to vote away their interest."

He returned to his prepared statement, read charges that Judge Wilkerson had appointed Edward J. Brundage, to whom he was politically indebted, as receiver for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway; that Brundage collected $244,000 in three years' fees at the same time that he was receiving $12,000 a year from the sanitary district during the district's "whoopee period."

Robert Isham Randolph, who also appeared to urge Judge Wilkerson's promotion, had with his associates collected more than $100,000 from the sanitary district, said Mr. Richberg.

Richberg continued his attack, specifying that Samuel Insull had secured the election of Chicago's previous mayor and had dominated that administration through S. A. Ettelson and Daniel J. Schuyler. He also commented further on THE TRIBUNE, charging that "men in its circulation and editorial departments had been intimately associated with gangsters, racketeering and gambling interests in Chicago."

Senator Borah here remarked:

"It isn't necessary to take up the time of this committee by showing the crookedness and skullduggery in Chicago. The question is, what connection did Judge Wilkerson have with it?"

Develops His Attack.

"I have had an intimate experience for over twenty-five years with the political and commercial interests that corrupt and eventually destroy government," was the witness' reply.

"The evidence which is available to this committee," Mr. Richberg concluded, "will show how these forces are operating and how they establish political control. Those who believe in democracy must believe in the supremacy of the legislative power. They cannot afford to approve appointments to the federal bench of men whose past conduct proves that they will aid or even tolerate the corruption of democratic government to serve the special interests of concentrated wealth. This issue is too vital and far reaching for compromise. The approval or disapproval of Judge Wilkerson's confirmation require that men takes sides upon the far greater issue of the preservation of our democratic institutions."

SEVENTEEN SLAYERS FROM COOK COUNTY DENIED CLEMENCY

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—The petition of Robert (Teddy) Webb, serving terms at Joliet for murder and robbery, was among fifty applications for executive clemency denied today by Gov. Sixteen murderers from Cook county were included, as follows:

Frank Biga, David Boggie, Antonio Macio Connor, Henry Fleming, Edward J. Gammell, James Hopson, John Meisner, Robert E. Morgan, James Nolan, Louis Pilarski, Piney Sims, Louis Spano, Slvatore Vinci, Robert Webb, David Willkin, Albert E. Miller.

Others from Cook county denied freedom, are:

Frank Culliton, embezzlement; David S. Groh, manslaughter; Louis Pilarski, manslaughter; Louis Alter, petty larceny; Frank Goehring, concealed weapons.

LIGHTNING HITS OIL TANK; FIRE PERILS BIG PLANT

Struck by lightning, a 6,000 barrel gasoline tank burst into flames late last night on the grounds of the Globe Oil and Refining company, four miles west of Lemont, and imperiled forty other tanks. The flames, fanned by a west wind and shooting hundreds of feet into the air, spread to one of these tanks.

Early this morning the fire was still raging. The fire departments of Joliet and Lockport sent apparatus, and the Chicago department offered help. More than 250 fire fighters, most of them plant employes, and some recruited from among farmers in the vicinity, fought desperately, under the direction of Harry Overton, the general manager, to prevent a general conflagration.

Chemicals were used almost entirely to combat the flames. Officials said that the safety trenches around each tank helped to prevent a spread of the fire.

EXPLORER AT 23, HE FINDS PERILS ARE OVERRATED

The hazards of expeditions into unexplored regions generally are exaggerated, in the opinion of Emmet R. Blake, 23 year old zoologist and explorer, who arrived in Chicago yesterday after his return from Venezuela. There he explored the top of Mt. Turumiquire, being the second man to reach the top. One shipment of rare birds and mammals he obtained has arrived at the Field museum.

$5,000 Extortion Threat Against Widow Revealed

The Woodlawn police revealed yesterday that they have been trying for three weeks to solve an attempt to extort $5,000 from Mrs. Robert L. Van Arsdale, widow of an insurance man, 6858 Chapel avenue. The widow received a note three weeks ago telling her to put $5,000 in a suit box and give it to a man, who would call for it. The alternative was to be injury to her daughter, Betty, 20 years old. A colored man called for the box, but he convinced the police that he had been sent by a stranger.

REPORT HOODLUM IS INDICTED FOR AUTO FIRE PLOT

True bills charging attempted arson and conspiracy were reported voted by the grand jury yesterday against Jack Sopkin, 27 years old, 1865 South Komensky avenue, a west side hoodlum who was caught in the act of setting fire to 75 trucks and 40 automobiles in the Midtown garage, 1105 West Monroe street. The police are searching for three companions of Sopkin, and Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan is trying to determine who was behind the arson plot.

A police guard was placed over Frank Mendyk, an employe of the garage, whose courage resulted in the arrest of Sopkin. Mendyk thought the garage was being robbed when he came to work and saw the hoodlums spreading gasoline over the cars in the garage. He obtained a revolver from a watchman and opened fire on the men.

Mendyk told the grand jury yesterday that an automobile he believes to be the same one used by the terrorists stopped in front of the garage Friday night. The automobile used by Sopkin is owned by Frankie Levine, north side club owner. Levine told the police that he loaned the car to Sopkin, but had no idea of what use he was going to make of it.

$480,773 TRACED TO SECRET BANK FUND OF PASCHEN

Admit Fictitious Account Was Defendant's.

Deposit slips showing that in 1927 and 1928 a total of $480,773.40 found its way into the "A. B. Anderson" bank account—admittedly an account opened in the Foreman National bank "by some one from Chris Paschen's office," were put into evidence yesterday in the trial of the former municipal building commissioner before Federal Judge Barnes, where he is charged with evading income taxes of about $114,000.

DWIGHT H. GREEN.

After presenting this evidence the government late in the day began to introduce checks to match the deposit slips in an effort to prove that in 1927, the year Paschen claimed he owed no tax and paid none, he actually had deposited $181,139.36 in the "Anderson" account. In 1928, the year he paid only a tax of $818, a total of $299,634.04 went into the same account, the federal prosecutors assert.

Ready to Rest Case.

The prosecutors, Assistant United States Attorneys Dwight H. Green and Sam Clawson, and Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich, are reported to be ready to rest their case when they have completed this evidence of Paschen's income.

The admission that the Anderson account was one of Paschen's was made at noon by Cassius Poust, chief of defense counsel. Mr. Clawson was trying to prove this point with the aid of the testimony of Max J. Thies, a former assistant vice president of the Foreman bank and now associated with the First National, which absorbed the first institution.

"There's no need of that," said Poust. "We admit that that was one of our accounts opened by some one from Paschen's office."

After this admission Clawson began the introduction of checks to match the deposit slips entered. At the close of the day he had succeeded in introducing about twenty, said to be only a small portion of the whole. He will continue the task this morning.

Ten For City Work.

Of those introduced ten were for work done for the city by the Chris Paschen company, or others of the three fictitious concerns he allegedly operated under the names of the Commercial Building and Cleaning company, L. Kuhn & Co., and the Commonwealth Cleaning company.

The largest of the city checks was paid to the Kuhn compay, a check for $7,420, dated Dec. 31, 1927. A board of education check for $4,043 was made payable to the L. Kuhn company. The Chris Paschen company benefited from out of town work, one of the checks being from the Lundoff-Bicknell company of Cleveland, in the amount of $12,260. The John Gill & Sons company of Cleveland was represented by a check for $928.

Eight Other City Checks.

The city checks, in addition to the one noted above, were as follows:

Date.	Company name.	Amount.
Dec. 15, 1927	Commercial	$ 95
Dec. 15, 1927	Commercial	170
Sept. 16, 1927	Commercial	5,100
Dec. 31, 1927	Commercial	170
Dec. 31, 1927	Able Wrecking	4,100
April 25, 1928	Commercial	115
June 1, 1928	Commercial	6,500
July 30, 1928	Commercial	2,310

Other concerns for which the alleged Paschen companies did work included: Continental Safe Deposit company, W. W. Kimball company, which, incidentally paid the largest check introduced yesterday—for $19,325—Insurance Exchange Building corporation and the Clark-Randolph Building corporation.

COUPLE ADMITS LEAVING BABY AT BANKER'S HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Payne of Plymouth, Wis., were held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $1,000 each by Police Magistrate E. A. Pettibone of Wilmette, on charges of child abandonment. They confessed that they left their 15 days old baby, Benjamin, on the back porch of the home of Judson F. Stone, 1234 Ashland avenue, Wilmette, president of the Wilmette State bank.

The Paynes said that they have another baby 11 months old and did not feel able to support both children as Payne is unemployed. They drove to Wilmette Wednesday night and selected the Stone home because it looked as if the owner was prosperous, they said. Neighbors in Plymouth who heard of the child being found brought about the arrest.

Gets Divorce.

Mrs. Ruth Morgan Converse.

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—A divorce from James Vail Converse, broker, of this city, prominent socially and in sporting circles of New York and Washington, was granted today in Westport, Conn., to the former Ruth Morgan, who, before their marriage a year ago, had been a Ziegfeld showgirl.

Miss Morgan, who was Mr. Converse's fourth wife, charged the broker and sportsman with "intolerable cruelty" and accused him of beating her. She asked no alimony.

The couple were married Nov. 29, 1930, six weeks after Mr. Converse's third wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Converse, was killed in an auto accident.

Mr. Converse's first wife was Miss Nadine Melbourne. Their marriage ended in divorce in 1919. His second wife was Miss Thelma Morgan, sister-in-law of Reginald Vanderbilt. They also were divorced and Mrs. Converse married Lord Furness, English shipping magnate.

Snipe Found on Street Near Loop Given to Zoo

A snipe, found at the corner of Wacker drive and Clark street, was presented to the Lincoln park zoo yesterday by M. S. McNeely, 1347 Eddy street. Driving home early in the morning, McNeely saw the bird perched on a curb and captured it. F. S. Young, first assistant in the zoo, said that the snipe had apparently become confused by the lights as it flew over the city and dropped to the street.

FALL FROM WINDOW FATAL.

Albert Jones, 31 years old, a Negro, was killed yesterday when he fell from a ninth story window in the Eastwood Beach Apartment hotel, 811 Eastwood avenue, where he was employed as a houseman.

U. of Chicago Students Recruit Crusader Unit

A battalion of the Crusaders, national organization against prohibition, is being organized by students at the University of Chicago. Fifty of the 100 necessary for a charter have been recruited and Jerome Jontry, prominent in campus dramatics, has been chosen commander. "This generation was not consulted in the matter of prohibition," Jontry said. "We are fighting for freedom, not beer." Willett Gorham, son of Sidney S. Gorham, former president of the Chicago Bar association, Louis Ridenour, editor of the Daily Maroon, and Bob Wallace, football player, are numbered among the members.

BLOCK ELECTION OF MRS. CUCHNA TO CICERO POST

Efforts to elect Mrs. Rose Cuchna as town collector of Cicero to succeed her husband, Frank, who was killed April 25 in an automobile accident, failed last night when the three Republican members of the town board remained away from the meeting.

The three absentees, Frank Kveton, Fred J. Loyda, and James Sedlacek, prevented a quorum at the meeting.

Mayor Joseph G. Cerny charged that by their absence the three trustees also prevented approval of a two weeks' pay roll for town employes.

ILLINOIS MOUNDS TELL OF A RACE 5,000 YEARS OLD

Scientists Add New Facts to Story of Man.

The story of man in Illinois, a record of invasions, long occupancy accompanied by slow cultural changes and sudden replacement by entirely new races, was unfolded yesterday by archeologists before the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Illinois State Academy of Sciences at the University of Chicago.

DR. FAY-COOPER COLE.

Step by step prehistoric Illinois was traced back 2,000 and possibly 5,000 or more years. Though excavations have scarcely begun, Illinois is now considered an exceedingly important state in its ancient historical background. Six cultures have been traced, one of an ancient people with long heads who buried their dead in sands centuries before a mound building people placed their dead above the same site.

Yields in Chicago Area.

The Chicago area, important as the meeting place of Indian trails and portages, has yielded but meager information to the archeologist due to the march of man, said Richard Morgan of the University of Chicago. Yet mounds in the area have revealed traces of several cultures. Two of the mounds are now fittingly portions of the Forest Home and Rosehill cemeteries.

Research has revealed that the Indians were the first to realize the natural advantages of Chicago. In what is now Cook county there were 18 major villages, 15 minor villages, 40 camps and 12 mound groups before the advent of the white man, making the area one of the most populous in the new world. The Illinois Indians were here first, Miamis followed; later came the Sac and Fox, and last the Potowatami.

Skull Is Recovered.

In the Coghill mounds on the Coghill golf course a skull and skeleton have been recovered. In Blue Island fragments of pottery and bone implements have been found. Findings show traces of the Hopewell and Fort Ancient cultures, so named because they were first found in Ohio at Hopewell and Fort Ancient. These cultures are believed to be about 2,000 years old.

What has been considered the most important archeological find in the state is at Lewistown, in Fulton county, in the pre-Hopewell or black sand man culture, reported by Thorne Deuel of the University of Chicago. The long, narrow, low skulls are of a people of the earliest known North American era, from 5,000 to 10,000 years old. These men are believed to have lived since the last glaciation, which was 10,000 to 12,000 years ago.

Papers were read on researches in Jo Daviess, Quincy, Adams, and Jersey counties, the Rock river and Wabash valleys, and the Joliet and Kankakee areas. These have uncovered traces of the Hopewell culture, in which the Indians used copper. Shells from the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic were found, showing extensive trade.

Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole, president of the academy, said the coming of man in Illinois coincided with the coming of man in Europe. In prehistoric times, he said, Europe enjoyed a warm climate with tropical plants and then slowly a great ice sheet formed in the far north and moved to the south.

More than 700 scholars attended the meeting which closes today with a tour of the city.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 6.—A reawakening of interest in the monarchy in Germany was illustrated today when former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm celebrated his 50th birthday in his castle in Potsdam. A delegation of former officers of the old imperial army and navy called to present their homage. The delegation was headed by Admiral von Schroeder, Lieut. Gen. Waechter, and Lieut. Col. Count von Moltke.

Tonight the "Clou," one of Berlin's largest halls, was jammed with monarchists, who cheered speakers describing and praising the former crown prince, extolling his resemblance to his ancestor, Frederick the Great. Particularly loud were the cheers when Lieut. Gen. Waechter said "recent weeks have proved that Germany needs a strong leader." The audience became even more enthusiastic when Maj. Gen. Count von der Goltz assured his listeners that "present conditions would have been impossible under the imperial regime."

The hall was decorated in the old imperial colors, with pictures of the former kaiser and crown prince adorning the walls. The former band of the Garde du Corps regiment paraded before the standards of the former kaiser and the former crown prince.

CHINESE HORDES RAID MANCHURIA; 70,000 IN FLIGHT

Nippon Troops Fight Roving Bands.

TOKIO, May 6.—[U. P.—Increasing warfare between Japanese troops and Chinese guerillas was reported today in dispatches from Harbin which said that an arsenal at Kowpangtze, on the Mukden-Shanhaikwan railway was dynamited. Seventy thousand refugees were reported at Harbin.

Four Japanese soldiers were killed and one wounded. One Japanese soldier and 30 guerillas were killed when Japanese repulsed an attack on Fangcheng, east of Harbin.

The Chinese quarter of Harbin was thrown into panic by the arrival of 300 guerillas at Ancheng-Hsien. The refugees at Harbin were said to be from 60 Manchurian towns which had been attacked by roving bands.

Chinese Minister Resigns.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, May 6.—Quo Tai-chi, who in a hospital here signed the Sino-Japanese armistice agreement yesterday, today telegraphed to the Nanking government his resignation as vice minister of foreign affairs. This action is no surprise in view of the nationwide storm of denunciation against the peace pact.

Chinese newspapers in Shanghai and other cities are publishing astonishingly bold criticisms of the government, some prophesying that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's régime is certain to be quickly swept from power.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, was hovering near death tonight, following a blood transfusion in the afternoon. His right leg was amputated below the knee yesterday after he had signed the armistice pact. He was one of the high Japanese officials injured by a bomb thrown by a Corean in Hongkew park on April 28.

"Nation Betrayed," Is Charge.

Although Japanese troops began to withdraw this morning from areas surrounding Shanghai, serious domestic disturbances are threatening as a result of the peace agreement. Nanking opponents are charging that Chiang Kai-shek's government "betrayed the nation."

The peace terms did not mention the matter of suppressing the boycott and other anti-Japanese movements in China, but immediately after the signatures were blotted the Nanking government apparently broadcast telegraphic orders for the suppression of all anti-Japanese organizations. The mayors of Peiping, Tientsin, and other large cities announced they received yesterday afternoon Nanking's orders instructing the police chiefs to dissolve all anti-Japanese associations.

DREXEL BIDDLE JR. NAMED IN $2,500,000 BANKRUPTCY SUIT

New York, May 6.—(AP)—A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr., two brokerage firms, and seven other individuals are defendants in a $2,500,000 suit scheduled to go on trial in federal court Monday.

A. J. DREXEL BIDDLE JR.

The Irving Trust company is suing as trustee in bankruptcy for the Sonora Products company, formerly the Acoustic Products company, of which Biddle and some of the other defendants were directors.

The action is based on a charge that in 1928 Acoustic Products company had a contract to purchase 200,000 shares of De Forest Radio company stock at 50 cents a share, and that the defendants purchased the stock themselves, reaping a large profit, which should have gone to the Acoustic Products company.

In addition to Biddle the defendants are Percy L. Deutsch, Harris Hammond, Victor C. Bell, Arthur D. Mendes, Adam Stein Jr., Roy G. Martin, Wiley R. Reynolds, W. R. Reynolds & Co., and B. C. Bell & Co.

$1,000,000 WILL RULING APPEALED BY ESPERT'S KIN

Mrs. Mary Louise Espert Ortseifen, 337 Essex road, Kenilworth, yesterday filed an appeal from a Probate court ruling approving the will of her father, Michael Espert, president of the Monarch Refrigerator company.

The will dividing the $1,000,000 estate gives Mrs. Ortseifen only $3,000 annual income from the property, which was left in trust. Mrs. Ortseifen's daughter, Marian, 14 years old, also is given a similar annuity. At Mrs. Ortseifen's death her daughter and her husband, George, divide the principal of the trust.

The will was approved by Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. His approval was given after several witnesses testified that Mr. Espert apparently was sane when his will was drawn while he was a patient at St. Luke's hospital, where he died Feb. 26. Other witnesses said Mr. Espert was "eccentric."

"ESSKAYE" RULER WILL GIVE BACK $1,000 RECEIPTS

Collections Error, Blue Sky Board Told.

Esskaye, Inc., the new organization headed by Edward Young Clarke, ex-kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, had its first encounter with the law yesterday. Authorities learned of its existence only a few days ago.

LEONARD GROSSMAN.

As the result of the investigation a citation was issued for Clarke to appear before the blue sky commission yesterday and explain why he had been selling preorganization subscriptions of the Esskaye Founders' syndicate in violation of the Illinois securities act.

Promises Full Refund.

Clarke appeared before Assistant State's Attorneys L. P. Holt and Herman N. Weinberg with the new "attorney general" for the "Esskaye Temple of Justice." This was Leonard Grossman, former alderman, who spoke up apologetically for the ex-kleagle.

"I only entered this matter last Monday," said the "attorney general." "I immediately saw that the sale of the preorganization subscriptions was in violation of the law and ordered sales stopped. Less than $1,000 has been taken in and all this will be refunded."

Mr. Clarke, organizer in the last few years of the Twentieth Century Motion Picture company, Knights of the Mystic Kingdom, Knights of the Supreme Kingdom, and Twentieth Century Land company, all now bankrupt, asked permission to say a word or two.

Tells of Court "Victory."

"It is not my intention knowingly to violate any law of this state," he told the assistant state's attorneys.

He was finally permitted to leave.

Last night at a "founder's meeting" in the Morrison hotel, Clarke told a gathering of "founders" who had paid $25 each for the title, that he had won a "rousing victory" in court and had been completely exonerated by the state's attorney's office. He did not mention his attorney's admission that Clarke had been violating the law and was refunding money to those who had purchased Esskaye Founders Syndicate subscriptions.

PERJURY CHARGE FACES PICKETT, DRY CHURCHMAN

Tinkham Alleges False Senate Testimony.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Documentary evidence purporting to show that Deets Pickett, secretary of the Methodist board of prohibition, temperance, and public morals, had committed perjury in testifying before the senate lobby investigation committee in 1930, was produced on the floor of the house today by Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.].

Mr. Tinkham charged that church funds were used in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign conducted by Bishop James Cannon in Virginia and alleged that a "conspiracy" existed between Bishop Cannon, Clarence True Wilson, Methodist dry leader, and Pickett to violate the federal corrupt practices act in the 1928 campaign.

Prosecution of Wilson and the clergyman is now impossible because of the statute of limitations, Tinkham said, but he called upon the attorney general to institute proceedings against Pickett for perjury.

Waybill Shown.

The charge was based on Pickett's testimony before the senate lobby committee that none of the Methodist board's files had been removed following Tinkham's demand that the files be turned over to the committee.

Referring to Pickett's sworn denial that material had been removed from the board's headquarters, the Massachusetts representative read photostatic copies of a waybill and a receipt showing that eleven "suspicious packages" had been shipped from the board's office to Baltimore, Md., on the same day he had made the demand for the files before the committee.

"In the light of this indisputable evidence," he said, "I charge that Deets Pickett was guilty of perjury in his testimony before the senate committee and I call upon the attorney general to prosecute him for this offense."

Brief Answers Cannon.

Meanwhile, another step was taken today by the government in its prosecution of Bishop Cannon on charges of violating the corrupt practices act when a brief was filed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals in answer to the petition of Cannon's counsel to dismiss the appeal. The case against the Virginia clergyman was retarded by a recent decision of the District Supreme court throwing out the grand jury's indictment of the bishop on technical charges. It is this decision which has been appealed by the government.

THREATEN THREE IN FLAT.

Three gunmen yesterday entered the apartment of Samuel Glickman at 165 Pine avenue with a pass key and fled with $105 after threatening Glickman, his daughter, and a friend.

Aviation Notes

This morning United Air Lines pilots will fly the 40,000,000th mile on the lines radiating from Chicago to New York, Dallas, Tex., and Pacific coast cities. That total is the highest attained by any air line in the world, company officials say. Of that figure, 16,000,000 miles have been flown at night, and air mail has been carried on 27,000,000 of the miles flown.

Northwest Airways was granted a certificate to operate an air line from Chicago to Elgin, Rockford and Janesville, Wis., yesterday by the Illinois commerce commission, according to dispatches from Springfield.

Twenty-nine per cent of the passengers traveling over Braniff Airways from Chicago to Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Tulsa leave Chicago on Mondays, records of the air line reveal. The second most popular day for air travel for Braniff Airways is Sunday, and the third is Thursday.

DEPUTIES MAKE 2D ATTEMPT TO JAIL BRUMLIK

Deputy sheriffs with a warrant are seeking Hugo Brumlik, manager of a dance hall at 1536 Clybourn avenue, as a result of his failure to appear at a hearing before Circuit Judge Phillip Finnigan yesterday. Brumlik had been summoned to answer charges of Attorney Mathilda Fenberg that he was in arrears in alimony to his invalid wife, Anna, who is in Albuquerque, N. M.

Brumlik was arrested recently on an order by Judge Daniel P. Trude for failure to support his wife according to the terms of her separate maintenance decree. An investigation subsequently disclosed that Brumlik was allowed to stay in a loop hotel after his arrest instead of being put in jail. Judge Trude summoned Sheriff Meyering to his court and ordered an inquiry.

SAYS WISCONSIN UNIVERSITY IS SOVIET HOTBED

Chapple Alleges Peril to Moral Code of Young.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Marshfield, Wis., May 6.—[Special.]—Radicals at the University of Wisconsin have turned the campus into a hotbed of Communism, John B. Chapple is telling his audiences in his campaign for the Republican nomination for senator against Senator John J. Blaine.

The Ashland editor charges that "pinks" are on the faculty. Seeds of communism, atheism and free love, he declared, are being spread among the student body.

Moscow, he argues, is seeking to penetrate Wisconsin through Madison and the state university, while modern La Follettism, working hand in glove with college professors, is traveling on lines parallel with Russia. The effort to turn students into socialists and communists, he declares, is going on upon 150 college campuses, but at Madison, the intelligentsia and the "half baked theorists" find unusual opportunity due to the close connection between college and state house.

With a portfolio crammed full of exhibits, pamphlets and papers, Chapple in his speeches this week has been tearing into the Madison professors, saying "the university is off the track." He was billed tonight for Park Falls.

Convocation Called.

His attacks of the past few months have led President Glenn Frank of the university to call a convocation May 13 in the Field house at Madison to discuss with students and faculty the issues raised by Chapple and the Republican Crusaders, composed of young blood Republicans, which now claims a membership of 20,000.

Chapple, who is 32 years of age, is a Legionnaire, a Yale graduate, and as a student of politics and economics he has visited Russia, England, Germany, Italy, France and other European countries. He gives the impression of a natural born fighter, and at Madison some time ago when communist students sought to break up his meeting he gave them a sample of rough and ready repartee that is still talked of.

Charges that a Haywood hall has been opened at the university for communist students, named after the late Bill Haywood, former I. W. W. leader who died in Russia, were made today by Chapple.

"And on the wall they say is a picture of Lenin," he shouted. "Radicalism in the student body is but the reflection of an element in the faculty which is aligned with the destructive forces in America seeking to supplant our system by socialism.

Pay for "Self-Destruction."

"Wisconsin parents are subjecting their sons and daughters to influences destructive to religious and moral ideas and Wisconsin taxpayers are actually paying the salaries of outspoken enemies of the very economic system which produces these taxes. Imported radicals are on the pay roll both at the state capitol and at the university.

"Prof. Alexander Meiklejohn, one time president of Amhurst and now head of the college known as the experimental college at the University of Wisconsin, a disguised scheme to instill revolutionary ideas into the students without arousing the suspicions of the taxpayers, says the reason students pay little attention to the things taught by the home, the school, and the church is because the things taught are not worth listening to.

"One member of the Wisconsin faculty, Lucien Koch, has been chosen to head a radical school in Arkansas supported by the communists and the I. W. W., the definite aim of which is to train men to 'lead labor out of the present economic system.'

Socialists in Elections.

"Other faculty members, Thomas of the English department, for example, lauded the Socialist ticket in the last presidential election. A committee for Thomas and Maurer, Socialists running on the Socialist ticket, included Percy M. Dawson, professor of physiology, and Jerome Davis, who was brought to the summer school. Another faculty member, Selig Perlman, announced recently that the Socialist Marxian theory correctly analyzes society so far as economics is concerned. He has presided at Socialist meetings on the campus.

"The president of the university, Glenn Frank, who is a committee member of organizations antagonistic to the American system, presided when the Socialist Norm Thomas came to the university in 1931. Frank has repeatedly raised doubts in the minds of the student body regarding the permanency of the American system. He has suggested that Russia thinks more about the welfare of the masses than we do and he has declared a student has as much right to be a communist as he has to be a Presbyterian."

Allied with "Political Racket."

Mr. Chapple pleads that radicals at the university are closely allied with leaders in "the La Follette political racket" in the state and that education itself is thus now under process of 'being racketeered.'

"The attack upon moral standards at the University of Wisconsin is indicated by La Follette group emphasis upon birth control before groups of Wisconsin sons and daughters who are still in their teens. What happened when Dora Russell, proclaiming free love and advising that girls should break the moral code in reference to marriage was scheduled to come to Madison. Aroused parents prevented her from talking on the campus or from speaking in the assembly chamber at the capitol. Organized labor opposed broadcasting this kind of philosophy and canceled a speech scheduled at labor temple.

"The La Follette political racket, however, fought vigorously to have her appear, disguising its views by saying it was interested in 'free speech.'

"Another illustration of the destructive attack upon morals is the advice given by Harry Elmer Barnes, who at intervals visits the university as a lecturer and organizer. Barnes wrote one of the chapters in the last Socialist campaign textbook and calls the church a mechanism for capitalist propaganda.

"You can't fill the minds of youth with sex ideas and not expect them to become infected. You can't sow communist atheism among our Wisconsin young people without getting that kind of product. You will recall how one Wisconsin professor championed the cause of a girl and a boy student who violated the code. The students were dismissed from the university, but the dean of women who defended our American moral standards in this case was dismissed a year later.

"President Frank is credited with helping La Follette write some of his speeches and messages. Frank has repeatedly directed the eyes of his student body to Russia where communism rules. In his address to a freshman class he urged social defiance and spoke of the 'need of traitors.' One north Wisconsin father who heard that speech said to his sons: 'Boys, pack your bags. I'm going to take you to the University of Minnesota, away from that kind of teaching.'

"Recently I heard Scott Nearing openly call for 25,000 young people to enlist to become revolutionary leaders in the destruction of the American system. He was not on a street corner but was speaking to students at the university in the magnificent memorial building."

WARM WEATHER LURES GYMNASIUM CLASS TO STREET

As the mercury rose to 84 degrees, the highest mark it has reached this year, yesterday, it became so warm in the Sunny gymnasium at the University of Chicago that the gymnasium practice class of the elementary school suffered from the heat and was allowed to take its exercises out of doors. The picture shows the youngsters lined up for a roller skating race. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mercury at 84

Yesterday was Chicago's warmest day so far in 1932 and the third warmest May 6 in the records of the local office of the weather bureau.

The maximum temperature was 84 degrees at 2 p. m. A shower soon afterward took the mercury down two degrees. The record for the date was set two years ago, when 86 was reached. The second warmest on this date was in 1889, when the top was 85.

April 2, with 71 maximum, was the warmest previous day in 1932. A normal maximum for May 6 would be 62. Forecaster C. A. Donnel said that the sudden rise, which began yesterday morning, was due to a shift of the wind from an easterly direction to the southwest.

Printing Company Cashier Is Robbed of Pay Roll

Two gunmen yesterday took a $799 pay roll from Hugo B. Smith, cashier of the International Printing company, 161 West Harrison street, in the lobby of the building which houses the printing company. Smith was halted by the bandits as he returned from a bank with the pay roll money. He was forced into a small closet used for electrical equipment and ordered not to move for five minutes.

EMILY R. CLARKE LIVING IN RENO; TO ASK DIVORCE

Mrs. Emily Ryerson Clarke established residence yesterday in Reno, Nev., according to dispatches from that city, with the intention of obtaining a divorce from George Hyde Clarke, to whom she was married in 1915.

Clarke has a large estate at Cooperstown, N. Y. The couple have five children. Mrs. Clarke would not say what grounds she will allege in her bill for divorce.

She was the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ryerson of Chicago. Her father lost his life in the Titanic disaster in 1912. Her mother, Mrs. Emily Borie Ryerson, was remarried in 1927 to Forsythe Sherfesse, financial adviser to the Chinese government. The Sherfesses now live in Washington, D. C.

BRITAIN SLASHES DOLE OF WOMEN FOR ILL HEALTH

Seeks to Put Insurance Plan on Sound Footing.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—Still another cut in the government controlled insurance plan, in order to place the fund on a sound financial footing, was announced today with the publication of the terms of a bill which alters the national health insurance and the contributory pensions scheme.

The sick benefit payment for married women under government insurance was reduced from 12 shillings per week—normally $3—to 10 shillings—normally $2.50. The benefit for disabled persons was cut from $1.75 to $1.25.

The sick benefit for unmarried women remains at $3 per week, but the disablement benefit was sliced to $1.50 from $1.75. The annual loss in the two classes from 1928 to 1930 reached $2,100,000 for married women and $2,150,000 for unmarried women. In 1930 a report was issued showing that sickness claims had increased 42 per cent and 29 per cent in the two classes respectively between 1923 and 1927, while the disablement claims had increased 87 and 54 per cent.

The enrollment of married women in this kind of insurance is 1,132,000 and unmarried women 4,295,000.

The bill also modifies the provision excusing the failure to contribute if the cause is unemployment. The new bill excuses half of the fund if the contributor is unemployed. This alters the situation, costing approved societies $10,000,000 annually.

TRIES TO END OWN LIFE.

Despondent because of unemployment and the loss of his savings, Ignatz Mandel, 62 years old, 1553 North Hoyne avenue, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by shooting himself on the steps of the Noel Safe Deposit company, 1601 Milwaukee avenue. Physicians said he would live.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE STATE OF THE NATION.

Mr. Hoover's message to congress on the state of the nation is at least recognition that the state is exigent. It is desperate. It may be made disastrous. Congressmen who feel themselves the objects of the President's criticism reply with criticism of the administration. It can be agreed that the criticisms are all well made. There have been only various degrees of irresponsibility and fatuity, of indifference or stubbornness in Washington.

On Capitol hill it is reasonably complained, principally, of course, by Democrats, that the White House has not been able to keep the bureaucrats in hand or has not tried to. Every person affected by any proposed reduction in costs has fought for his stake in the appropriations.

If Mr. Hoover's supporters produce the record to show that he has advised congress tc do much better than it has shown any disposition or willingness to do, there is, nevertheless, little in the record to indicate that the President has had in mind any of the thorough eradications necessary to make fundamental changes in the character, as well as the costs, of the federal government.

Retrenchment based upon approval of the present system in theory will not touch the major problem. The federal government has become the great American ailment. The trouble is that the wildest irresponsibles in congress have sanction for their undertakings in the doctrines prevalent everywhere in Washington. There is precedent for nearly every proposal they can make in some already accepted bureaucratic extension. The land has the system clamped down upon it. Mr. Hoover said the country could not be dictated to by organized minorities. Unfortunately it has been and it is now dictated to and Mr. Hoover is found with some of these minorities. When they pool their interests they are apparently irresistible.

An organized minority put the United States in the business of furnishing the Los Angeles region with a domestic water supply and electric power. Another is responsible for the farm board. Another operates under the Volstead act, etc., etc. The clamps are on. The wild men merely twist the screws.

The house of representatives appears to have turned hysteria into insanity. It tore the moderate economy bill framed by its committee to pieces. The committee could see reductions of only $200,000,000. That, in the light of the need, was pitiful. The cave men in the house acted not as if they merely did not approve of these savings, but as if they were enraged. When they had the fragments ready for the senate only $30,000,000 reduction remained. The scene was not political, but pathological. The newspaper men in the press gallery could have well given their places to psychiatrists.

It is true that other outbursts in recent weeks had prepared observers for the thing. Probably nothing that the house of representatives can possibly do hereafter will be wholly unexpected. It may be unexplainable by any reasons within sanity, but it will not be unexpected. By this time the country must be prepared to see the lower branch of congress concoct the known ruin of the land. The charitable thought is that the members have lost their heads, but it is apparent that this is too charitable. The frenzy is not one of panic, but of ideas.

The house of representatives proposes to compensate for lost incomes by imposing heavier income taxes, to restore confidence by wildcatting the currency, to meet a deficit by increasing it, to relieve productive wealth by making new levies on it, to reduce government by making larger appropriations. This is not a house of representatives. It is a house of madness.

It is no wonder the President sounds an alarm. If he should use his prerogative to describe the state of the nation in plain and full terms it would sound like the warning to a doomed nation. If the insanity has spread from the one chamber of congress to the other the fate is a fact accomplished.

Patriotism is bankrupt in congress. Treachery to the national good has been crowned, seemingly, by simpletons and roguish fellows.

LOOP PARKING.

Ald. Massen and the traffic committee of the city council of which he is chairman have undertaken to give prompt consideration to the complaints against the loop parking ordinance. Spokesmen for property owners and retail stores have said that the present rules forbidding parking during the business day have done them great injury. The merchants believe that their sales have been reduced as much as 75 million dollars by the ordinance.

There is, of course, another side to the story. Those who favor the present stringent regulations point to the increased speed of street car and automobile movement through the loop and to the greater convenience enjoyed by pedestrians in crossing streets.

The issue ought not be decided by prejudice. If the merchants can prove their case they are plainly entitled to some relief. It should be possible to permit parking for a relatively short period—say half an hour—particularly in the later morning and earlier afternoon hours, by persons with business to transact. There is room for a reasonable compromise between those who wish to get through the congested district and those who wish to do business in it.

THE MASSIE DEFENDANTS FREE.

The act of Gov. Judd of Hawaii in commuting the sentence of the Massie defendants to one hour, from ten years of hard labor, expunged the physical part of the punishment voted by the jury and imposed by the judge. Their counsel and their friends seek further relief in action which will restore citizenship lost by the conviction.

When justice has an initial misdirection the consequences may easily be deplorable at every subsequent step. There was one opportunity for this case to meet the requirements of law and justice. The local authorities failed in the first instance. Honolulu and its environs do not offer insurmountable obstacles to the prevention of such crimes as that which brought such consequences in its train, nor if such a crime could be committed in spite of police control ought the conditions to be such as to make detection and punishment of the criminals impossible.

The island authorities failed in a prosecution which should have been certain, and at that point responsibility for everything happening afterward begins. The victims of the first crime had submitted to the harrowing necessities of law in relying on it and they were repaid for their submission with increased injustice. For reasons which may be found in local politics, in social and racial feelings, in administrative weakness or indifference, the law failed.

From this moment nothing could be satisfactory to the requirements of a civilized community. The immunity of the criminals was intolerable. The feelings of the victims were unendurable. The execution of private justice was deplorable, but almost inevitable, given the code which prevails among the people wronged. The prosecution of the administrators of the private justice had to follow in due course, but the verdict which convicted them was an offense to the perplexed moral senses which could be disturbed by an act of justice outside the law and outraged by a formal act of justice within it.

The clemency which commuted the sentence of course made a travesty of the conviction and yet left a legal although not a moral odium attached to the persons twice victimized, once by the social and political laxness and again by the law's forms. Meanwhile, except for the criminal who was killed for his part in the original crime, the perpetrators of it evidently are to escape because everybody connected with the case is exhausted by it.

One failure of law and such have been the consequences.

R. O. T. C.

The recent award of decorations to members of the reserve officers' training corps at the University of Chicago furnishes the occasion for remarking again that these young men and their associates on a hundred other college campuses are entitled to all the glory they get and a good deal more. In an era when a college education commonly implies exposure to a concentration of wishful nonsense regarding international relations these young men are preparing themselves to fight for their country if occasion requires their services. In an era in which the combatant power of the United States is being steadily undermined the student corps in the universities are performing a function of incalculable value. Without them the problem of training and leading an American army for a major war would be well-nigh insoluble.

THE NAVY ON SHORE.

Senator Hale of Maine is making a gallant fight for immediate enactment of a bill authorizing ship construction up to the treaty ratios. Against him are arrayed all the pacifist elements in the country with their professional lobbies and many of the spokesmen for the churches. At this session the enemies of the navy are taking advantage of the demand for economy in governmental appropriations. Even if we needed the ships, they say, we cannot afford to build them.

The insincerity of the pacifist argument is obvious, but the fact remains that government costs must come down and naval costs should be pared wherever possible. The way out of the difficulty, a way which has been recommended for years, is plain. We can have the ships we need and save money besides if we cut down the navy on land and spend part of the money thus saved in building and maintaining the floating navy. Millions of dollars are being spent annually for shore stations which serve only political purposes. Hundreds of enlisted men know more about the handling of lawn mowers than they do about the handling of guns. The fleet does not need a score of stations which ought to be closed down and disposed of. The money saved would build many a ship.

Editorial of the Day

A TALE OF TAXATION.

[New York Sun.]

President Hoover's address to the governors conferring at Richmond was an excellent epitome of the fiscal conditions which this country has to face. He did well not to limit his survey of debts and expenditures to the national government. The tax evil has three faces; the imposts of the states and the local agencies are even more alarming than the amounts required by the federal power. If there was only the war to pay for the American taxpayer would not grumble too much. But we are paying now, when paying is most painful, for the extravagance and waste of the states, the counties, and the cities.

Total public expenditures have risen from three billions in 1913 to thirteen billions in 1930, and nearly ten of these thirteen billions are spent by state and local governments. Nearly half of the debt of thirty billions upon which the people pay interest is state or local government debt. In this state we find the income tax doubled, a levy which already has been made upon the pockets of men and women who, it seems, are about to have their federal income taxes doubled. In this city the tax rate is up, valuations are on the 1929 plane, and the city administration shows no sign of offering relief.

It is an old story, this tale of piled up taxation which the President retold, but it must be repeated until it is driven home.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SENATOR SWANSON, American disarmament conference delegate, wants the submarine barred as an instrument of war and calls it "the assassin of the sea." Personally we cannot see much difference between being blown to small pieces by a submarine or by a high explosive bullet or even killed by the ordinary military rifle. In all these cases, as far as our observation goes, one is quite dead, anyhow, and it really makes small difference as to just which engine of destruction was employed. We would much prefer not to incur the danger from either the submarine, the high explosive shell, or the military rifle did not the fact that in these piping times of peace—last year, for instance—33,000 people in this country were killed by autos and a million hurt. After thinking that over a while the submarine doesn't scare us any.

DO YOU IN YOUR FAR COUNTRY—

Do you in your far country—
Now May has come to mine—
Remember earth and springtime
When sweet May days decline?

And one white road that wanders
Up to a windy pasture,
Up a green hill and down

To where the wild thorn blossoms
Outside the pasture wall,
And two in the rose-washed evening
Who watched the petals fall?

Homesick do you turn earthward,
Spring-haunted, do you come
A fugitive from heaven
To walk your hills of home?

Oh, you who loved the fragrance
Of sweet May-petaled night,
Earth's colored dusks of springtime

SNOWSHOE AL GIVES THA BRONX CHEAR FER THA DOOK.

To the dook of Bakrak: I was amoozed no end to read your squawk about us not slippin' you no alligator pears to chew on when you staggered into our igloo the other Sunday afternoon, because I know that up till three weeks ago you always thought an alligator pear was two alligators. An' the reason my wife hesitated to accept the darlin' little bib you brought along was because she could see gravy stains all over the damb thing. However, that didn't surprise me because I will never forget the time you sent me a pair of sox for xmas an' they wuz both for tha left foot. Also, we saw that cockroach which you mention but, seein' as how he entered with you, we didn't pay much attention to him, figgerin' he was jist another Bakrak, although we wondered why you didn't interduce him. In fact, that's why we didn't invite youse to have somethin' to eat in our shack—my wife said she didn't know what the hell to offer your friend. Incidentally, Gertie got plenty sore when you wrote I wasn't a good business man but I certainly stuck up for you, dookie! You know me, kid—always goin' out o' my way to defend a pal! "You got no right to say that my dear friend the dook is a lame-brain," says I to her, "because I know that he is highly educated. The guy is really an algebra shark, in fact, up till he was 35 years old, 'X' equalled his signature." I forgot to tell her that your two uncles which now reside in the vicinity of Joliet are so nuts about mathematics that they have discarded their names and are known by numbers. So your little boy's monicker is Burton, huh? That name fits him like a pair of Primo Carnera's pants would look swell on a Singer Midget. Oh, well, I suppose he should be glad you didn't think of "Charlemagne." If you're asking me, "Dracula" would be a more suitable tag for him an' I don't think you got any right to make him wear that little emerald bracelet. Tell Burton he left his necklace at our house. So glad you liked our furniture, dookie, but you flatter us when you say it is oak. It's really made o' plasterboard with yellow pine veneer. Speakin' o' furniture, I still admire your 3-piece bedroom suite with the clever inscriptions under the varnish, such as "Use no Hooks," "Keep in a cool, dry place," "This crate contains 48 dozen eggs, guaranteed count," etc. By the way, do youse folks still live above the blacksmith shop? If so, did the blacksmith move out on account o' the noise, as he once threatened he would? If I recall correctly he complained that he couldn't hear himself wallop the anvil on account o' you tryin' to explain to the Dutchess what you did with the other 35 cents, in your sweet, quiet voice.

Well, dookie, drop over again some time. An' after this, please have the cockroach on a leash.

A THRIFTY MAN.

THE human body is a model for the thrifty man. The latter knows the wisdom of living within his income and laying up resources against hard times. He might have learned his wisdom from his own body. Be he ever so thrifty, he will not live up to the pattern that his body has followed since his birth.

Here are some illustrations taken from Cannon's "Wisdom of the Body":

A man weighing 150 pounds has about one hundred pounds of water in his tissues. Of this a certain part is incorporated into his structures and is an essential part thereof. But, in addition to that, his tissues are flooded with an excess of water held there for emergencies. He can lose 10 per cent of his water, or about ten pints, and be in no hurry to replenish the loss and suffer no particular harm.

To carry on the work of the body a certain amount of sugar in the blood is required. We call this amount 100. If the amount rises to 180 the excess flows over and is eliminated by the kidneys. It can fall to 70 without doing great harm. If it falls to 45 convulsions begin. In addition to the sugar in the blood a great reserve of sugar made for the purpose in glycogen is stored in several appropriate warehouses in the body. A man can starve for days without totally exhausting the supplies in these glycogen warehouses.

The body needs fats for its daily work. The excess is converted into lecithin, a storage form comparable to glycogen. Every one knows of how globules of fat which, taken together, make layers, pads, and rolls, are stored around the body for use in hard times.

Physical work requires proteins, both for repair of worn tissues and for fuel. The excess of protein is stored in the liver cells as protein granules. When the food supply runs short the body checks on these granules to supply the daily needs. The body needs a considerable amount of lime. If we set the level of this need at 10, we find that it can be drawn down to the 7 level without doing harm. Below that there are varying manifestations of lime hunger. At level 5 convulsions start. The great reservoir for the storage of rather loose lime is in the shafts of large bones—near the heads thereof. In fact, nature has provided a way of storing a surplus of everything we need except oxygen.

Since air is everywhere, and since this mixture of gases is one-fifth oxygen, it seemed that there was no need of having any gas bags filled with oxygen to be held in reserve. In man's specifications there is no provision for storing up oxygen. It is true that the lungs are never more than one-fifth emptied, and that the blood carries to the tissues more than four times as much oxygen as it surrenders, and that the tissues contain a little more oxygen than they need. But it is also true that the margin of oxygen safety is very much narrower than is any other. Therefore, men quickly become breathless on exertion. Even after they are through exerting their tissues remain in air debt for several minutes, as shown by a period of somewhat rapid pulse and disturbed breathing.

Should we ever train ourselves to fly at very high altitudes or should we go on frequent excursions to Mars, we would first have to acquire a capacity for storing oxygen comparable with that we now have for storing sugar, fats, water, lime, and salt.

TEACHING CHILD TO EAT.

Mrs. P. writes: My little girl is 4 years old and I have never been able to teach her to eat. The only meal she enjoys is her breakfast, and I have to feed her every bit of that. Would you advise a tonic? My family doctor advises me to let her alone and she will eat when she gets hungry, but it seems that I have waited long enough.

REPLY.

Your doctor is right. Your child is likely to eat as she should if you will let her alone at meal times. If you continue to try she will get worse. The very best plan is to have her eat with a group of children of about her age. They will teach her. Within a month of such teaching and control you will find that she is cured, that is, provided you will keep in the background.

3. My husband is continually worried about this. Can you tell me if there is any danger.

REPLY.

1. It is.

2. Bites are somewhat more dangerous than other wounds because they are so apt to become infected. Cat bites are no worse than bites of other animals, or of man.

3 There is not much. In the first place, this cat is not suffering from rabies. In the second place, the bites are probably slight. However, the boy is not indulging in the safest form of indoor sport.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 7, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Will President Wilson attempt to end the great war by offering his services as mediator? This is the question that came to the fore today while the President and his advisers were studying the official text of the German reply to the American ultimatum. The peace possibility received unusual attention because of the general conviction that a break between the United States and Germany has been averted. Msgr. Bonzano, the papal delegate to the United States, delivered to President Wilson today a message from Pope Benedict urging America to remain out of the war and suggesting mediation.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Riding like fiends through a wild country at night, American troopers yesterday at Ojo Azules—the Blue Spring—routed 142 Villista raiders in a two hour fight, killed 42, wounded many, captured some men, mules, and ponies, and came out unscathed. Their 36 mile ride through a strange land will go down in cavalry history as a "brilliant piece of work," in the words of Gen. Funston's report.

DUBLIN.—John McBride, a Sinn Fein leader, the eighth Irish rebel to be executed, was shot to death today, it was officially announced. Two others sentenced to die obtained commutation of their sentences to life imprisonment. They are Thomas Hunter and William Cosgrave. McBride, with a number of other Irish sympathizers, fought through the Boer war with the Boers, but escaped to Paris after the Boer surrender. He later toured the United States in the interest of the home rule leaders.

BERLIN.—The official report issued from general headquarters says: "Near Givenchy-en-Gohelle a British attack was repulsed. On the left bank of the Meuse artillery and infantry engagements in the district southeast of Haucourt are in progress. We were again successful. The battles have not been terminated."

CHICAGO.—As a result of puncturing his thumb with an instrument he was using in filling a patient's tooth, Dr. Frank Timmerman, a dentist, died of blood poisoning. He had practiced dentistry in Chicago for twenty years.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Navy League of the United States filed suit in the District court against Henry Ford for $100,000 damages. The league charges Ford with having published in an advertisement in a local newspaper statements of a "libelous and defamatory character."

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Chauncey Blair, 4830 Drexel boulevard, has sold fourteen paintings from her collection of medieval and renaissance art at a price reported to be $250,000, although she refused to state exactly the amount. The pictures went to the Kleinberger galleries in New York and Paris. Mrs. Blair has spent many years in making the collection, but she said the price was so good that she could not refuse it no matter how much she wanted to keep the collection intact.

CHICAGO.—Today is the anniversary of the event "that brought the war home to the United States." One year ago this afternoon the great Cunard liner Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Irish coast and sank in less than half an hour with a loss of 1,198 lives, of whom 114 were American citizens.

CHICAGO.—The will of Andrew J. Graham, west side banker, was filed for probate, and his widow, Mrs. Minnie P. Graham, is the sole legatee. The estate consists of $1,000,000 in personal property, $1,500,000 of real estate and $590,000 in life insurance, in addition to his interest in the banking firm of Graham & Sons. The banker left nothing to charity.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor, Arthur Pearson Scott, associate professor of history.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What was the importance of the Roman empire for western civilization?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space Monday.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What did the Greeks contribute to western civilization?

ANSWER:

The Greeks were the first people to apply reason, fearlessly and thoroughly, to the solving of human problems and to the explanation of the universe about them. From this developed both philosophy and science, which for the early Greeks were different aspects of the same love of knowledge. In addition, the Greek sense of beauty and harmony expressed itself in art and literature. In sculpture and architecture they produced works which later generations not only enjoyed but regarded as models and standards. In literature the Greeks created practically all the forms in which later western writing has been done, such as epic and lyric poetry, the drama, historical prose, and even the short story and a kind of novel.

THE POSTAL CLERK'S SALARY.

Chicago, May 1.—I have been a railway postal clerk for twenty years, and because of the extra study requirements and slightly higher salaries we have been frequently referred to as the "aristocrats of the postal service," but it was not until recently that we were ever dubbed a "bureaucrat."

With taxes on our modest home being assessed at $195.56, with 3½ per cent of our salary deducted for retirement fund, with payments of $600 a year, principal and interest, on our home, and with three children to feed, clothe, and educate, I can assure you it is necessary to practice the most rigid economy to merely meet our obligations. A cut in salary will mean that we will be unable to pay our taxes and the giving up of the idea of owning a home.

I do not believe THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE would deliberately insist that the salaries of postal workers should be cut when it would entail such hardships. Your policy of curtailment of the various government bureaus during the present crisis is laudable indeed, but in your zeal I ask you to keep in mind the lower salaried employé and be fair to him. He well earns and needs all that is paid him. JOHN L. REILLY.

COSTLY POSTAL ECONOMIES.

Chicago, April 30.—The apparent economies resulting from a reduction of wages of postal employés would eventually cost far more than will be immediately saved, because such action would so destroy confidence as to create a large labor turnover as soon as business conditions revive. Labor turnovers are expensive anywhere, but especially so in the postoffice, where new men start at a relatively high salary and must be given three to five years of training before they reach a standard of efficiency most economical to the government.

At present the government job looks mighty good to people who three years ago would have disdained the thought of working for $2,100 a year. It is of course natural to be envious of any one whose salary has not yet been cut, but it should be remembered that security from the fluctuation of the private labor market has always been one of the few attractive features of the postal service—and small compensation for the many undesirable points.

If it is the conviction of business men that present economic conditions will continue far into the future, it is fair to look to a readjustment of government postal wages to conform to the salaries which men of ability command privately. Otherwise, it seems hardly fair to penalize a group of men whose pay comes in very small part from the general tax fund. C. R. STEELE.

A WAY OUT.

Chicago, May 2.—Is there any reason why the voters of Cook county should not be able at the regular November election to vote on a maximum amount of money that each corporate body of the county should be given yearly to carry on its work, say for a period of five years? Would not this, in a large measure, assist our taxing bodies and greatly aid the county in selling its bonds? F. J. TUCKER.

MR. BARRETT'S RESIDENCE.

Chicago, May 2. — The remarks of "Square Deal" appearing on April 26 entitled "Ward Committeeman" just show to what extent some individuals will go in an attempt to misrepresent the facts to the public mind and by such misrepresentations to falsely and unjustly blacken a man's character.

He makes reference to the residence of George F. Barrett, committeeman of the 21st ward, as on the extreme south side. Any person who is acquainted with Mr. Barrett and his activities knows that he never had a residence south of 22d street during his entire lifetime in the city of Chicago. It is true that George F. Barrett is a candidate for chairman of the Republican central committee. What man in public life has not the aspirations and ambitions to advance himself?

JOHN A. PELKA.

GARDENS AND HAY FEVER.

Chicago, May 1.—Will you please direct the attention of those in authority to a most commendable right which may turn into a most regrettable wrong—the gardens for the unemployed?

As people become less dependent the broken ground will be abandoned to weeds. It seems only just that people using the gardens now should, as they gain independence, plant grass seed before abandoning the garden. In many subdivisions virgin soil is being turned.

Because we do not drop dead on the streets when suffering with hay fever we get little sympathy in spite of the hard work done by the Woman's club. Must we suffer for years to come because we were forgotten in the mad rush for food and gardens? A "VICTIM."

POLICE EFFICIENCY.

Chicago, April 29.—May we have the privilege of commenting on Chicago police efficiency, through your paper, and to express our thanks to the police of the Lawndale and Robey stations for the prompt and courteous service rendered in locating our automobile? The police having little information as to its identity found it within three hours after it was reported stolen.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN J. MARSALA JR.

A $5 DEPOSIT.

Chicago, May 2.—Our neighborhood movie theater raffled off a radio, giving each adult patron a ticket on which to write name and address. The radio was raffled off and some one in the neighborhood won it. About three weeks later a man called at my door with one of the tickets I had deposited at the show, telling me that I had won a $500 lot in some subdivision owned by some large real estate concern. This concern had donated the radio, receiving the tickets with the names and addresses in return.

Well, to make a long story short, I was asked to pay $5 deposit for an appointment with this real estate concern to see the lot, the said $5 to be returned to me after the appointment. I kept the appointment, but was not interested in their proposition, and when I asked for my $5 they refused to give it to me. I have the whole agreement black on white and am taking steps to recover my money. E. S.

SHOW DEALERS GAVE FOOD FOR CAPONE CHARITY

Serritella's Benevolence Ends with City Job.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Dominick Pantela and John Carrino, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary; George Brooks, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Walter Stanton.

Foodstuff solicited in the name of State Senator Daniel Serritella, city sealer under a former city hall régime, was delivered to the soup kitchen on South State street when Al Capone, Public Enemy No. 1, now in Atlanta prison for income tax dodging, claimed to have financed for the benefit of needy persons.

Daniel Serritella

The jury in Judge James J. Kelly's court which is to decide next week whether Serritella and Harry Hochstein, his former chief deputy, are guilty of conspiracy was apprised yesterday of the delivery of the foodstuff to the South State street address, but a defense objection kept Capone's name from the record.

Tells of Giving Meat.

Capone's connection with Serritella was revealed while Walter A. Krull, 1036 Circle avenue, Forest Park, manager of the Novak Stock Yards market, was on the stand as a defense witness. During cross-examination of Krull by Assistant State's Attorney Harold Keele it developed that the first donation of meat solicited from Krull was ordered sent to the State street soup kitchen.

The defense retaliated by proving that Krull's firm not only contributed to Serritella's Christmas basket fund, but also to State's Attorney Swanson's recent campaign fund. The size of the donation to the Swanson fund was not brought out.

"Philanthropists" Give Little.

Serritella, Capone, and other politicians, according to the testimony yesterday of some forty or more defense witnesses, built up their reputations as philanthropists and champions of the starving by distributing Christmas baskets filled with foodstuffs not purchased by themselves but obtained through donations from merchants on the South Water market. One witness did say that Serritella dug into his own bank roll to the extent of $245 to make up some 300 baskets which were needed to fill up the quota called for by the First ward constituents of the state senator.

The donations from the merchants were obtained in Serritella's name through James Lenguadora, former president of the Commission Wagon Drivers union.

Charity Ends with City Job.

The merchants denied making the donations in exchange for expected favors from the city sealer. Several deputy city sealers said that under the Serritella régime the orders were the same as they are under the present administration. And another point emphasized by Defense Attorney Ben Short was that the Christmas baskets were for Democratic and Republican residents alike, even though Serritella is the Republican committeeman.

Prosecutor Keele developed the fact that Serritella, after leaving his city office, was not concerned about the welfare of his constituents during the Christmas holidays of last year.

The trial will be resumed Monday, when both defendants will take the witness stand, according to Attorney Short. The trial should be finished by Tuesday or Wednesday.

SOLDIERS KILLED BY TRAIN

PRIVATE JOHN W. HOUSTON. PRIVATE CHARLES C. CRAFT. CORPORAL DAVID LEVINE.

THREE SOLDIERS KILLED AS FLYER CRUSHES TRUCK

Fort Sheridan Trio Hit in Michigan.

Three enlisted men from Fort Sheridan were instantly killed yesterday near Augusta, Mich., when a truck in which they were riding was demolished at a grade crossing by the Wolverine Limited of the Michigan Central railroad.

The victims were Corporal David Levine, 25 years old; Private John W. Houston, 23 years old, of Battery E, 3d field artillery, and Private Charles O. Craft, 21 years old, of headquarters company, 81st coast artillery.

Sent to Camp Custer.

The men were members of a detachment sent from Fort Sheridan on Monday to Camp Custer, Mich., in connection with staff maneuver exercise of the 6th corps area to be held this month.

Army officers and Kalamazoo county authorities started inquiries into the accident. Two others have been killed at the same crossing within a month. Levine and Houston were members of athletic teams at Fort Sheridan and their battery recently won the Knox cup for the best trained field artillery until the regular army. Levine's family lives in Jersey City, N. J.; Houston's in Muskegon, Mich., and Craft's in Assumption, Ill.

Freight Solicitor Killed.

Joseph L. Loughmiller, 45 years old, 1334 Wenonah avenue, Berwyn, a freight solicitor for the Illinois Central railroad, was killed yesterday when his automobile went into a ditch at Lebanon, Ind. Four other members of the family were bruised. The party was on its way to the funeral of Mrs. Loughmiller's father at New Albany, Ind.

Two automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the motor death toll for 1932 to 377. The victims:

Hubert Blume, 29 years old, of Milwaukee, Wis. Fatally injured last night when he fell from a truck in which he was riding in Western avenue near 30th street. Blume leaned out of the cab of the vehicle and his head struck the support of a viaduct at the intersection, hurling him to the pavement.

William Botheroyd, 3 years old, 2746 Rutherford avenue, son of John Botheroyd, a city fireman. Killed when he ran from the yard of his home beneath the wheels of a dairy truck.

Mrs. Bernice Tonyan, 22 years old, 1629 Lincoln street, North Chicago, daughter of Police Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest, was in a critical condition last night at the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan. She was injured early yesterday when an automobile in which she and her husband, with another couple, were riding, overturned in a collision with another car at Jackson and Washington streets, Waukegan.

Mrs. Tonyan suffered a double fracture of the neck. Last night her physician, Dr. L. E. Bovik, called into consultation Dr. Floyd Cannon of Waukegan, Dr. Kellogg Speed of Highland Park and Dr. Frederick Christopher of Evanston to determine whether an operation should be performed to relieve her of a paralytic condition.

As a result of the same accident Mrs. Marie Cray, 139 Argonne drive, North Chicago, may lose her right hand. Tendons and arteries in the wrist were severed. Neither Mr. Tonyan nor Mr. Cray was seriously hurt. Passengers in the other car were Attorney John Noll, 1411 Grand avenue, Waukegan, and Attorney Karl S. Moras, 520 Sheridan road, Highland Park. They were unhurt.

Gordon and James Wood, 5535 Ellis avenue, were in a hospital at Chatham, Ont., yesterday, with serious injuries suffered the night before when the automobile in which they were riding cut in front of a motor bus and was knocked into the ditch.

EXTRACT OF FELT HAT INJECTED, CURES ASTHMA

New Orleans, La., May 6.—(AP)—The successful hypodermic use of an extract of felt hat to cure a case of asthma induced by handling the hats was described here today at a meeting of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists.

Dr. J. M. Black of Dallas told of the cure.

The woman patient, he said, suffered from a persistent case of asthma, but showed no organic trouble.

"We diagnosed the case af an allergic infection," he said. "In other words, her system was peculiarly sensitive to some outside substance. We discovered that she worked in a millinery store and handled felt hats made of rabbit hair all day. So we applied the test, scratching her arm, and smearing the wound with rabbit hair. The scratch became inflamed and swollen. The treatment consisted of taking a felt hat from the store, preparing an extract from it and hypodermically injecting it into the woman. It cured her."

CARL FISHER 10 MILLION PROJECT IN RECEIVERSHIP

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—The $10,000,000 shore development at the eastern tip of Long Island, sponsored by Carl G. Fisher and his associates, went into receivership today. Announcement was made that plans are now "well under way" for the operation of the properties this summer under new management. The Pennsylvania and Long Island railroads are coöperating in these plans, it was said.

The corporation, which was launched in 1925, purchased 7,600 acres, of which 1,500 were under water, and later spent more than $7,000,000 for the construction of the Montauk Manor hotel, Montauk Downs Golf club, Montauk Yacht club, a polo field, tennis courts, and other improvements.

The corporation declared it has outstanding obligations of $3,700,000. The Bankers Trust company, as trustee, hold a first mortgage of $2,741,000 and a second mortgage of $1,000,000, secured by 4,800 acres of land owned by the corporation.

UNPAID ASPHALT WORKERS MAY STRIKE TONIGHT

Eight hundred members of the Asphalt Workers' union, who have not been paid by the city for seven weeks, may go on strike tonight and call out 1,200 other workers in sympathy. This was forecast by Michael Carozzo, president of the union, when he called a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Musicians' hall, 179 West Washington street.

Mayor Cermak, it was said, hopes to avert the strike by raising funds with which to pay the men before the meeting.

C. R. WALGREEN
PRESIDENT
Mr. W. E. Donahue
Advertising Manager
The Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois
Dear Mr. Donahue:
During the past ten years - 1922 through 1931 - we have concentrated our advertising expenditures in the Chicago Tribune. During this decade, our business in the middle west has increased several hundred per cent, and we are confident that this growth has been aided year after year by the Tribune.
Our business must have results - positive results that ring the cash register bell - in order to justify its advertising expenditures. It is against this practical measure of actual results that we have been pitting this money with the Tribune for a decade. The answer is favorable, and proves that the Tribune has a result-getting power of tremendous effectiveness, not only in Chicago and its suburbs, but throughout the middle west.
Yours very truly,
WALGREEN CO.
President

Typical of the fine Walgreen Super-Service Drug Stores.

IF . . . the great Walgreen chain of drug stores boosts its sales through using the Tribune most . . . why look further for the best way to get results in Chicago!

First in Chicago—by a tremendous margin— that's the Tribune!

First in reader interest! The Daily Tribune has 329,000 more total circulation—and 178,000 more in Chicago and suburbs—than any other Chicago daily paper! And Tribune home-delivered circulation is far greater than that of all other Chicago papers combined!

More families read the Tribune—more families who are steady, substantial, prosperous buyers!

This means the Tribune is first in results, too!

Chicago's retailers know this to be true—and these retailers know how to make every advertising dollar pay!

Walgreen Company—operators of one of the nation's biggest drug store chains—in 1931 placed 35.8% of all its Chicago advertising in the Tribune!

Though Walgreen used six Chicago papers the Tribune carried more than twice as much Walgreen advertising as the second paper—and more than the second and third papers together! Walgreen has favored the Tribune overwhelmingly for ten years!

In total retail advertising the Tribune in 1931 was 1,790,000 lines in the lead!

Facts! Not dull facts—but facts that tell a thrilling story of dominance! Facts that say, "The Tribune is the paper for you!"

DARROW PLEADS FOR PARDON FOR 'HONOR SLAYERS'

Kelley Opposes Departure of Mrs. Massie.

BY CLIFFORD GESSLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, May 6.—Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel, today sent a formal petition to Gov. Lawrence M. Judd asking a pardon for Mrs. Granville Fortescue and the three naval men convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai. The petition was tendered the governor by Lieut. H. C. C. Johnson of the navy, who assisted Attorney Darrow in defending the group.

The petition said:

"We do respectfully pray that your excellency do grant full and unconditional pardon of the crime and offense charged and the sentence pronounced heretofore commuted and served."

Wants Citizenship Restored.

Attorney Darrow, who said he believed the pardon would be granted, appealed to the governor in order that full citizenship, deprived by the commutation of sentence, be restored to Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H Massie and the two sailors, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones.

Although Gov. Judd is expected to act on the pardon petition tomorrow, it appeared that Lieut. Massie, his wife, Thalia, and Mrs. Fortescue may be forced to sail for the mainland on Sunday without the governor's action on the plea. The governor retired to his country home at Kawailoa today. It is located on the other side of Oahu island and is difficult to reach.

According to friends closely in touch with the Massies, they are undecided whether to leave Honolulu on Sunday. The sailors, Lord and Jones, will sail tomorrow for the San Diego Cal., submarine base aboard a destroyer.

Demands Mrs. Massie Remain.

Special Prosecutor John C. Kelley today asked Mrs. Massie to remain in Hawaii to appear as the prosecution witness at the retrial of the four surviving youths accused of her rape. His request was made in a statement after Darrow had filed his petition for a pardon. Kelley did not indicate whether any attempt would be made to force her to testify a second time against the natives. The first trial resulted in a jury disagreement.

"I am opposed to Mrs. Massie leaving the territory of Hawaii at this time," the prosecutor said. "The Ala Moana assault case should be retried at once. Mrs. Massie's departure will render retrial of that case futile. I believe that out of respect for herself, her family and her country she should remain and face the ordeal, however painful. The territory of Hawaii and the rest of the United States demands this be done."

Kelley's statement was made after Mrs. Massie had announced that she had sent a letter to the prosecutor asking him to inform her of any plans involving her remaining in Honolulu.

Mrs. Massie Awaits Reply.

"I am awaiting Mr. Kelley's reply to my letter," she said. "I have never had any word from him about the retrial and I simply wish to hear from him officially before leaving."

Naval officials today denied that there was any organized movement to boycott Honolulu merchants, but privately it is well known that such a move is being made. It is not unanimous as many wives of naval men, employed in Honolulu business houses, have no sympathy with such a boycott.

FOOTBALL STAR KILLS FIANCEE AND HIMSELF

Panola, Ala., May 6.—(AP)—William S. (Country) Oliver, 28 year old former University of Alabama football star, killed his sweetheart, critically wounded his brother, and committed suicide today in an apparent fit of insanity.

Miss Lollie Simmons, 21, was his first victim. He shot her through the head and side and pushed her body from his automobile. Then he drove to the home of his brother, Clate Oliver, shot him in the back, and fired a bullet into his own heart.

Clate Oliver was taken to a hospital in Electric Mills, Miss. He said his brother drove up shouting, "I'm going to kill you."

The big athlete was a versatile football star, playing at end as well as in the back field. He was employed as an automobile salesman in Birmingham until two months ago, when he resigned because of ill health and came to his home here. He had suffered a nervous breakdown a year ago.

The Oliver family are extensive landholders in western Alabama. Miss Simmons was a school teacher.

WILLIAM GLASON, STAGE COMEDIAN, WINS A DIVORCE

William (Billy) Glason, vaudeville comedian, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court from Mrs. Helen M. Glason of the Monterey hotel, 4300 Lake Shore drive.

The divorce was granted after Glason had amended his original bill, in which he charged adultery, to charge desertion. It was testified that Mrs. Glason left him in November, 1930. She filed a suit for separate maintenance a month ago and Glason has pending a suit for $100,000, charging alienation of affections, against Albert Pollak, a furrier, whom he named as co-respondent in his original divorce bill.

Glason agreed to pay his wife $50 a week for the support of herself and their child and gave her jewelry valued at $2,500.

DAIRY WORKERS AGREE TO $5 CUT IN WAGES

Expect Raw Milk Price Decision Today.

BY PAUL POTTER.

A weekly salary reduction of $5 was accepted unanimously last night by members of the Dairy Workers union, representing about 2,000 inside workers. This is in line with the $5 weekly cut taken recently by the drivers.

About 1,500 members of the workers' union voted upon the pay cut in a special meeting at Car Men's hall, Ashland avenue and Van Buren street, after proposals of the dealers had been outlined to the men.

The workers had been receiving a basic salary of $44 a week. The new rate will be $39.

Expect Decision Today.

Meanwhile, another phase of the milk situation in Chicago, the raw milk price dispute between local dairy companies and the 18,000 milk producers in the metropolitan area, is expected to be settled today, as the result of meetings yesterday and last night of Dr. Clyde L. King, of Philadelphia, arbitrator, with representatives of the two groups. Another meeting will be held this morning at the Hotel La Salle.

While adverse sales conditions have brought about the demands of the dealers that the farmers accept a reduction in their prices, Dr. King said yesterday he does not believe they are as serious in Chicago as in many other large cities with whose conditions he is familiar.

Upholds Farmers' Stand.

"It is certain that the farmers are in no position to accept a cut in prices for their product" stated Dr. King. "At the same time I do not find distribution costs of milk in Chicago excessive compared to most other large cities, when butter fat content of your milk and the stringent health requirements of the market are considered."

Dr. King declared that since union labor already has approved a reduction of about 12 per cent in wages to drivers and inside workers, he is not considering the labor question.

Finds No Demand for Cut.

He said that no evidence is available that consumers are demanding a lower price for milk, and that with a reduction of 2 cents a quart in 16 months the Chicago prices are not out of line with other cities or with most other necessary foods.

"The fact has been established that dealers have assumed their share of reduced income from milk sales in the Chicago area, along with labor and the farmers," stated Dr. King. "I also find no restrictions of an artificial nature on size of loads per route or other unfair practices."

An aldermanic subcommittee headed by Ald. David L. Sutton, which called on milk distributors to appear yesterday to show why they have not reduced milk prices from 12 cents to 10 cents a quart, continued its hearing yesterday without a report. It was announced that Mayor Cermak has engaged the firm of J. L. Jacobs and company to make an independent survey of factors influencing the cost of milk in Chicago.

U. OF MINNESOTA PROM LEADER IS KIDNAPED

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(AP)—Richard Morean, co-president of the senior class at the University of Minnesota, saying he had been kidnaped and held in a cottage at Balsam Lake, Wis., appeared at a hotel late tonight to lead the university senior prom. However, he was taken to his Minneapolis home by his father.

Few of those who danced to the strains of a jazz orchestra in the ballroom knew that the prom leader had been found. The grand march was held up pending his arrival, but when he had not appeared at 11 p. m. the 250 couples began to dance without him.

Morean told detectives he had been kidnaped by four men in a black sedan, bound and gagged and taken to Balsam Lake, Wis., where he was kept in a cottage until early tonight. At the time, he said, his captors took him to a roadside not far from the cabin, and abandoned him, still bound. He succeeded in freeing himself, he said, and boarded a bus for the Twin Cities.

ACCUSE EASTMAN IN BOY'S DEATH AS TRIAL OPENS

Parents Reveal Treatment Given in Hospital.

The parents of a boy who died in the Keystone hospital a year ago accused Dr. Louis K. Eastman, owner of the hospital, of being responsible for their son's death at the opening of Dr. Eastman's trial before the state medical board yesterday on charges of malpractice and extortion.

The boy was Louis Rediger Jr., 13 years old, 5446 Fullerton avenue. He suffered a fractured pelvis when a car struck the rear of a feeder bus on which he was hitch hiking on the evening of March 25, 1931. The boy died 26 days later.

Police took him to the Keystone hospital, three miles from the scene of the accident, although St. Anne's hospital was two miles closer, according to testimony of the boy's father.

Find Boy in Hospital.

"His mother and I were sitting at home listening to the radio when a call came from the hospital that Louis was injured," the father said. "We got there within twenty minutes and found him in bed in a private room. He seemed pretty bright and said he felt no pain."

The father, a sewing machine salesman, testified that he told Dr. Eastman at the time that he had little money and could not afford the expense of a private room. The physician assured him, he said, that the medical bill would be taken care of, providing he retained Attorney Charles Scott to sue the motorist who, the hospital has ascertained, was insured. Otherwise, he said, Dr. Eastman indicated that Louis would have to be transferred to the county hospital.

"What was the character of the treatment the hospital gave your boy?" asked Assistant Attorney General Phillip Ringer, who is prosecuting the case.

Tells of Treatment Given.

"I asked him what they were doing for him, and he said they did nothing," the father asserted. "The third week they set his pelvis and put him in a cast. When he was awake the boy had moments of terrible pain. Mostly he lay there and slept."

"Did Dr. Eastman mention anything concerning a punctured bladder?" Mr. Ringer went on.

"He said something about X-ray pictures showing an injury there, but told me they would let nature take its course. Then, about a week before he died, they cut open the cast, operated, and called me in for a blood transfusion, but it was too late."

Doctor Asks Question.

Dr. Wilbur H. Gilmore, member of the medical board, interjected a question. He asked Rediger to state what time elapsed between the diagnosis on the bladder puncture and the operation.

"Three weeks," the father answered. Members of the board evinced surprise.

Frequently while Radiger and his wife Rose were on the stand, Attorney Louis B. Krohn, counsel for Dr. Eastman, objected that their testimony was incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. Each time he was overruled.

"As the boy got worse, we asked the nurse if something could not be done," Rediger went on. "She always referred us to Dr. Eastman. I would try to see him almost every day, but he was always away at a ball game, a prize fight or something."

Earlier in the day another of Dr. Eastman's former patients, Frank Pajewski, 23 years old, 2224 Laramie avenue, testified that the physician had intimidated him into retaining Attorney Scott in a personal injury case.

Pajewski suffered a compound fracture of the right ankle in a collision between a street car and a laundry truck on Feb. 21, 1930. Cragin police brought him to the Keystone hospital, where Dr. Eastman amputated the limb on the following June 10.

Told to Sign with Lawyer.

"When they put me in a private room with a private nurse, I told them I had no money," Pajewski said. "Dr. Eastman said I wouldn't have to worry if I signed up Mr. Scott. Otherwise, he said, I would have to go to the county hospital. He said it was pretty bad over there."

Subsequent to the amputation performed by Dr. Eastman, Pajewski was moved at his mother's order to the Wesley Memorial hospital. Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, staff surgeon at the Wesley hospital, later performed a second amputation.

Mr. Ringer said he had twelve other witnesses to call. The hearing will be resumed at 9:30 a. m. today. Dr. M. L. Harris, former president of the American Medical association, is presiding as chairman of the board.

Book by Lawes Is Human Study of Prison Life

Sees Need of Segregation of Incurable Criminal.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"20,000 Years in Sing Sing," by Lewis E. Lawes. [Long-Smith.] Published last Monday.

IF any one had told me that I would sit up until dawn reading about life in Sing Sing I would mention another institution nearer home, and suggest that Dunning would reach out its long arm and grab that any one. But until 2:37 a. m. is exactly how late Warden Lawes' book kept me up, and that after a long afternoon in Clinton prison and Auburn and Elmira and the New York City reformatory and Sing Sing with him before the evening session. When I saw "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" announced as the May choice of the Book of the Month club I felt like going out and buying a handsome wreath of black laurel to send to Mr. Canby, its editor in chief, as a funeral offering. When I finished reading the book I was looking around for the greenest laurel available for a wreath for him.

LEWIS E. LAWES.

Warden Lawes' autobiography is a fascinating book. It tells very little in actual fact about him, but it tells, as every good autobiography always does, infinitely more than the words say. It tells that he is a truly great human being, who has been tempered by contact with the punishment of crime into a philosopher.

What the pulse beat tells the doctor about the state of the human body, the contact with convicted criminals for a quarter of a century tells Warden Lawes about the state of the social body. He makes plain that he feels that "there but for the grace of God go I" might be spoken by most of mankind—that crime is something that happens to man almost as much as it is something that he does.

Lewis E. Lawes is a humanitarian in the truest sense of the word. He is a true minister, no less for the fact that he ministers to men who are behind bars and inside prison gates.

Do not let me, however, give you the impression that "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" has any preaching in it. Warden Lawes is too much of a realist, too keen eyed an observer of the diseases of crime and punishment, to pamphleteer about his work. He needs only to let it speak for itself. And in that speaking the story is so fascinating that it makes a document that you cannot resist. In it are the stories of over 2,300 men with an aggregate of 20,000 years to serve, not the individual stories of each one of the convicts, of course, but the composite stories of all of them, their daily life in prison, the lives that brought them to prison, the lives that await them when they leave.

To Warden Lawes each man is a man, not a number or not merely a convict, but each man is at the same time a pulse beat of the social life of our day.

"Prohibition may be responsible for a large percentage of our crimes of violence," he says, "but violent crimes do not after all constitute the sum total of our problems of behavior." And he finds the economic structure of the day, the eagerness of man to live better than his fellow men the immediate cause of the larger number of crimes, with a bad home environment, parental neglect, and lack of education and training in youth as their fundamental causes.

He very definitely does not believe in capital punishment, and he believes in a lesser rather than a greater length of incarceration. He thinks that a man has been made fit for human contact by ten years of prison life [during which he has been taught the art of human contact as well as a trade] or he has proved himself incapable of social life. If that is the case he should be kept in some spot dedicated to the criminally insane or the criminally incompetent, he believes, and not be trusted to human encounters, which are sure to be disastrous.

Not all prisons, of course, are constructive instruments in human life like Sing Sing, but Warden Lawes makes plain that prison should and can [and often does actually] prepare man to take his decent place in the community.

He feels that the degree of prescribed punishment is too often unfair and prejudiced. He points out the significant fact that no rich offender has gone to the chair.

Warden Lawes' book is bristling and tingling with human interest. He is so definitely and vitally interested in human beings that he gets the reader interested in them . . . not sentimentally, for he deplores sentimentality, but like himself, vitally. He says that great criminal trials are often riddled with sentimentality and that electrocutions make the public simply maudlin, leading them into all sorts of excesses of judgment and action.

As you read the book and think of the men one sees on West Madison street, or used to see under the bridge at the river, cold, uncovered, hungry, Sing Sing seems like a haven of rest and opportunity compared to what they have.

Appreciate Other Lands, Appeal of Book by Maurois

Andre Maurois in "A Private Universe" [Appleton] starts out with this theme, quoted from Aldous Huxley, "no man is by nature exclusively domiciled within one universe." The book contains sketches of foreign culture, interpretations of various sorts, and journals. The first section is entitled "England and Other Matters," the second "Present and Future" and the third, "America."

The thesis of his volume is that everyone should expand his particular view whether it be French or English or German, to include an understanding appreciation of other lands. He should in other words break through the private universe of his own background and training.

One part includes extracts from the author's diary, written while he was in England in 1928. Another called "Chelsea Way: Proust in England" is an attempt by the author to see England from the point of view of one of the strangest and most gifted of French authors. He evaluates in this Proustian fashion, England's art galleries, her country homes, her traits and peculiarities and customs.

The final section contains a discussion of America that is brilliant and stimulating. The author records his observations on America made during his recent stay as a guest professor at Princeton university. His comments on American life and manners are often as amusing as they are penetrating. American food, dress and conversation come in for a good deal of humorous by-play. The American language with its slang and harsh accent attracts the amused attention of the author.

These 2 Books Are Antidotes for Depression

Tell Stories of Creative Genius of America.

BY JOHN ERSKINE.

"The Pony Express," by Arthur Chapman. [Putnams.]
"Daniel Chester French," by Adeline Adams. [Houghton-Mifflin.]

Here are two excellent antidotes to the depression. I happened to read these two books together at a moment when the world news, the reports of business at home, and the fantastic tax evolution in Washington were enough to kill optimism. I finished these two books convinced that, after all, this is a pretty good world, and the country I was born in is not so bad.

There might seem to be little in common between the pony express, which carried the mail to California through peril of flood and storm and Indian ambush, and the work of a great sculptor, but the pony express was a symbol of us in our most poetic moments, and this particular sculptor was the spokesman for our common life at its best.

Regarded simply as a business venture, the pony express was insane and unprofitable, but it satisfied the impulse for pioneering, for communication, for a united country, open and safe from village to village. The linking of our two coasts, whether by wagon train, pony express, telegraph, or railroad, is one of the things of which we have the right to be proud.

As for the sculptor, Daniel Chester French is a standing answer to the facile legend that American life, above all New England life, was unfavorable to art and artists. He was as American in his own sphere of culture as the frontier saddle makers who devised the trappings for the pony mail riders. New England born, he grew up in Concord with Emerson and the Alcotts for the family neighbors, with the revolutionary memories of the town vivid before his eyes and the transcendental philosophizing of the local sages habitual in his ears.

In that society art was at home, however we may have forgotten. Judge French bought a quantity of clay for his children to model. Self-expression, intelligently disciplined yet spontaneous, was expected in that household and in that community, and while Daniel Chester French was still a youth, before he had studied abroad, he had done the fine head of Emerson, perhaps the best portrait of him, and he had made the stirring minute man at the famous bridge.

We have been tempted to make frontier life seem more dramatic by suppressing its solid qualities.

Titanic labor of an unspectacular kind in the pony express system laid the real foundation for the later express companies, for the railroads, the telegraph and all our other forms of communication. Seen clearly in Mr. Chapman's book, they remind us how solid was the fabric of our frontier world, how wisely imagined and how thoroughly organized.

If it is a temptation to remember only the spectacular in the frontier record and to suppress the patient labors of quiet men.

Myron Brinig Book Cleansed for Britishers

Reject Version Published in America.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Myron Brinig's sequel to "Singermann" ["This Man is My Brother"] has just been published in London, but in a curtailed version. It was found impossible to issue it here as it appeared in the United States. An expurgated edition of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" has also been published. Meanwhile a young journalist named Sidney Campion is engaged in producing a study, analysis, and defense of the original "Lady Chatterley's Lover," to which a number of well known writers are contributing comments upon D. H. Lawrence's banned book.

MYRON BRINIG.

And a young novelist has appeared who uses a pseudonym and refuses to allow his publishers to give the smallest hint to the press of his real identity. The author is "Lewis Gibbs," and his novel is called "A Day's Tale." The book is one in which the action all takes place in a single day, and the scene is that of a London suburb. Its quality is very high. It begins with people getting up in the morning and it ends with the same people going to bed at night, and in between these events it has touched other lives, sudden death, and many human secrets.

The author writes extraordinarily well, as if he were an accomplished craftsman. But nobody knows—or nobody can tell—who he is. The fact is not being exploited by the publishers; it is purely a matter of "Lewis Gibbs'" will that his name should be suppressed. But I shall be very much surprised if he fails to produce other work which will force a disclosure.

'ILLINOIS PRINCE' VANISHES FROM ELLIS ISLAND

Ready for Deportation, Romanoff Eludes Guard.

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Michael Romanoff, the prince of Hillsboro, Ill., again has given Ellis island the slip. The orphan boy who grew up to be a social imposter exraordinary was being held for deportation after his latest escapade — stowing away first class on the liner Ile de France—but this afternoon he vanished. Whether he disappeared into thin air on the extremely salty waters of the upper bay none could definitely say early tonight. All they knew was that the prince again was missing.

HARRY F. GERGUSON.

Two Days in Dog House.

Romanoff, or as he is better known on the island, Harry F. Gerguson, came here last week after two days in a dog house atop the liner and three days in one of its better suites. This morning the self-styled prince was granted permission to come to Manhattan to gather up his personal effects.

James Drury, described by authorities on the island as a "go guard" who had acted in a similar capacity hundreds of times, was detailed to go along with Romanoff and bring him back.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon officials reported that neither one had reported since, and the official conclusion had been reached that "something had gone wrong."

Tells of Losing Prisoner.

Drury, it was reported this afternoon, had telephoned his wife, saying he had lost his prisoner and would "be home soon."

Romanoff, who asserts he is an American, but who can produce no birth certificate, escaped from Ellis Island once before by swimming over to the Jersey shore with a propitious tide one December night.

The "prince" essayed his swim clad in a cutaway coat, striped trousers and spats. Between his well polished teeth he grasped an ebony handled cane. Making port at the Battery he announced a pleasant crossing from the island and accepted congratulations on arriving properly clad for the afternoon. Whether or not he was properly clad for this afternoon's adventure was doubtful.

Slated for Early Sea Voyage.

The "prince," or Mr. Gerguson, was slated for an early sea voyage. After his arrival on the French liner and his reception at Ellis Island the authorities had decided it was up to the Ile de France to give him a return ride. So far as the immigration authorities were concerned, the prince was wearing out his welcome there. Word from France was to the effect that the Illinois prince was not wanted there and would not be admitted.

He worked first in the print and gingham department of the wholesale store when it was located at Franklin and Adams street.

BANKER SEEKS ALIMONY CUT; FACES CONTEMPT

Fred J. Read, cashier of the investment affiliate of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company was ordered by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday to show why he should not be jailed for contempt of court.

Mrs. Kathryn Read, 1019 Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, has a bill for separate maintenance pending against Read. Several months ago Judge Trude ordered him to pay $140 a month temporary alimony. Yesterday Read sought to have this reduced to $100 a month, stating that he had received a salary cut, and had incurred heavy obligations, including the purchase of an automobile, stock market losses and the payment of debts left by his father on the latter's death.

But Mrs. Read testified that her husband is paying rent and grocery bills for Mrs. Ethel Much, a divorcée employed in his office. Her attorney, Frank Cantwell, charged that Read had demanded a divorce of her that he might marry Mrs. Much. On hearing this the court entered the contempt order, remarking:

"A man often assumes heavy obligations when threatened with the loadstone of separate maintenance in order to force his wife into a divorce suit."

Surviving Mrs. Carter are the daughter and a son, Attorney Allan J. Carter of Evanston and Dundee. Funeral services and burial will be at 2:30 p. m. Monday at Rosehill cemetery. Dr. Hugh Elmer Browne of the First Congregational church, Evanston, will officiate.

200 OVERCOME BY SMOKE IN N. Y. $2,000,000 FIRE

Blaze on Piers Still Out of Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Manhattan's worst water front fire roared its way through a 1,000 foot pier today, ate at the oil soaked piles of two other massive piers, and tonight was still giving 700 firemen plenty of trouble, although it was being put under control.

The blaze, which began insignificantly at dawn, already has done more than $2,000,000 damage. Tonight giant searchlights cut through thick and acrid smoke as the burning piles supporting the "fireproof" steel and concrete structures continued to smolder under hundreds of streams of water from fireboats, improvised rafts, and land hose.

200 Firemen Overcome.

Cunard pier No. 54, at the foot of 13th street in the heart of the blaze, began to crumble and fall bit by bit into the oil soaked waters of the Hudson river late this afternoon. A hundred pieces of fire apparatus had fought for twelve hours and 200 firemen had been knocked out by smoke and treated in an emergency hospital set up on the water front.

The fire began early this morning when smoke wisps were seen trailing from an oil soaked pile under pier 54, berthing place of the Aquitania and the Berengaria, queens of the Cunard trans-Atlantic fleet. No liners were docked there.

Workmen fought the tiny blaze with hand extinguishers for an hour, but the flames raced under the concrete structure, feeding on floating oil and grease. Fire alarms began to sound with the regularity of clock strikes until the city's full marine force and a large part of its land smoke eaters were at the scene.

Steel Walls Red Hot.

By noon the Cunard pier was steaming like a great iron kettle over a huge wood fire, its steel sides growing rosy and buckling the heat. Later the entire center section collapsed into the Hudson.

The smoke became so thick that the department's searchlight apparatus was brought into play in midafternoon. The pall spread over the neighborhood, bringing business to a standstill. One spectator was killed when a fire hose ripped loose from a hydrant.

Pier 54, which was a total loss, and the adjoining one, 53, were built at a total cost of $4,000,000, according to the dock department. They were built entirely of concrete and steel except for the piles and wooden understructure. They had been leased by the city to the Cunard line.

Late tonight the fire still burned in pine timbers beneath the pier floor, and showed signs of continuing until morning. Efforts at controlling the fire consisted principally of drilling in the concrete flooring between piers 54 and 56 and in playing streams of water on flames which had spread to the bulkhead shed separating the two piers.

Fat Men

I don't care how fat you are or how much you hate to get out and walk a couple of miles. If you will take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast for 4 weeks and cut down on pastries and fatty meats—

You will feel so good—so energetic and the urge for activity will be so great that you will immediately enjoy a daily walk of several miles—and lose fat.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. Your skin will grow clearer and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kruschen brings.

Just try one bottle of Kruschen Salts; it will last you 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. After you have taken one bottle the old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll enjoy work—you'll sleep like a top and by reducing surplus fat probable live years longer.

A man from Richmond Hill, N. Y., writes: "After 2 bottles of Kruschen I've removed 3 inches from my belt, feel 25% more active, mind is clearer, eruptions have disappeared. Am 48 yrs. old and feel 20 yrs. younger. I get up feeling 100%. Kruschen sure is great!"

To take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY, take as directed above—don't worry—it's the safe way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you 'ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drugstore in the world and if the results one bottle brings—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

W-G-N CHANNEL SHARE DENIED IOWA STATION

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—After six months of consideration the federal radio commission today denied the application of station of KMA of Shenandoah, Ia., for assignment on the channel now used full time by station W-G-N of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Sustaining the recommendation of Examiner Elmer W. Pratt, the commission found that "public interest" would best be served by denying the request and by permitting W-G-N to operate on its clear channel undisturbed by other stations. The application was for assignment during the day time on this channel with 750 watts. It had been contended by Louis G. Caldwell, general counsel of the commission and by counsel for the TRIBUNE station, that serious interference to the reception of W-G-N's programs would result throughout Iowa, from such an assignment as had been proved by previous experience.

KMA is operated by the May Seed and Nursery company, described by the commission as "family owned" and engaged primarily in nursery and seed retail. The record showed the station indulged in direct selling of merchandise and in price quoting—both practices frowned upon by the commission.

MELLON REPEATS 4 WORD SERMON OF J. P. MORGAN

"Never Sell America Short," His Advice.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan's four word sermon, "Never sell America short," was preached again today by United States Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon to a gathering of bankers and business men at a luncheon in London's city hall.

ANDREW MELLON.

"A great and patriotic American who lived much in England and loved his country once said to a compatriot, 'Never sell America short,'" said Mr. Mellon. "I would reiterate what Mr. Morgan said then, and I would apply it to England no less than to my own country.

Sees More Solid Foundation.

"None of us has any means of knowing when or how we shall emerge from the valley of depression in which the world is now traveling. But I do know that as in the past a day will come when we shall find ourselves on a more solid economic foundation and the onward march of progress will be resumed."

The ambassador said that often it is difficult to obtain a true picture on one side of the ocean of what is happening on the other.

"Over here," he said, "you read that our congress is having difficulty balancing the budget, and one is apt to get an impression that there is a lack of will on the part of either the congress or the country, whereas the opposite is the case. The country has determined that the government shall set its own house in order and that the public credit shall be protected at all costs."

Hails Hoover's Leadership.

Mr. Mellon said the important thing to remember is that congress is seeking to levy over a billion dollars in new taxes and that that is not an easy thing for any legislative body to do.

President Hoover, he said, "has shown leadership of the highest order," and when the full effect of the legislation he has inspired is felt, "banking and business organizations will be in position to take advantage of any improvement in the general situation when it comes."

Some surprise was noted when the customary toast to the President of the United States was omitted and only the king was toasted, after which the guests began to smoke.

ENGLAND AUDITS INDIA'S FINANCES AHEAD OF TIME

'Finds' That Country Can Balance Its Budget.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—The audit of India is contained in the report of the federal finance committee. It is the first body of a group of committees created at the Indian round table conference in London to release the result of "on the spot" investigations which have been going on for months.

The examination of the tangled finances of the states and provinces of India leads the committee to the conclusion that the future federation of India will have an approximate budget of around $250,000,000. Speculative assessment places the revenues at $253,800,000, and expenditures at $240,230,000.

Customs Chief Revenue.

The committee, headed by Lord Eustace Percy, centered its discussions around the years 1935-'36. By doing so, they labored on the theory that the present period of low prices of commodities would then have been passed and that a reasonable amount of prosperity will have returned. Politically, the chief assumption on which the deliberations were based was the separation of Burma from India.

The chief source of revenue in the problematical budget is yields from customs, which were placed at $159,880,000. Income taxes were estimated to yield $51,600,000.

The expenditures were chiefly military. They were placed at $140,000,000 and debt services at $53,240,000. A surplus of $13,520,000 was envisaged.

The net deficit in the provinces at the time of a federated India is estimated at $11,430,000 and the committee strongly advised the provinces against assuming further debts.

Excise Tax on Matches.

The only fresh source of revenue discoverable was an excise tax on matches, which, it is estimated, would raise about nine million dollars, increasing the surplus by that amount. Although the visible assets of a federated India are 450 million dollars below the estimated liabilities of three billion 543 million dollars, the committee declared it would be possible to write down the public debt far enough to balance the ledger with savings and added assets which its investigations did not touch.

New Symphony Season Seems to Be Certain

Association Near Terms with Union.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Clouds have broken as far as the Chicago Symphony orchestra is concerned. Unless something unforeseen takes place to block the proceedings of a final conference, next Monday afternoon will see Chicago assured of its great orchestra for another series of years on terms agreeable both to the Orchestral association and the Chicago Federation of Musicians.

According to James C. Petrillo, president of the federation, there is already a mutual though as yet unsigned agreement between the association and the federation to the effect that there will be fewer concerts, 100 instead of 126 in the season, as has been the case up to now, and a lowered wage scale, $75 a week a man instead of the present scale of $85.

One matter, the number of men in the orchestra, still remains to be adjusted. The Orchestral association desires to present its season with an orchestra of eighty-seven men; the Federation of Musicians is holding out for the reemployment of the present number, ninety-seven. The question of ten musicians will therefore be debated Monday afternoon, and if and when it is settled, new agreements will be signed.

George Lytton has been the harbinger of peace in the discussion. He is neither a member of the Orchestral association nor of the Federation of Musicians, but is a business man interested in music and the president of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, an amateur organization of ninety-five representative Chicagoans. Through his efforts the two sides have been brought to their present agreement, and in his office next Monday the final matters will be taken up.

Other matters than economic have had a bearing upon the discussion. Certain changes would probably have come up regardless of hard times. The cut in the number of concerts is one. One hundred and twenty-six concerts in twenty-eight weeks has always been a severe, not to say exhausting grind upon the participants. For years past Mr. Stock has found it necessary to go to Europe each summer and take a month's cure at Bad Gastein, Germany, in order to fit himself for the coming season, and though the players did not follow his example, they found themselves well tired out by spring.

It seems possible that the twenty-six concerts to be dropped will be the two series of popular concerts and young people's programs. Both have been well patronized, but the admission price has been kept so low that they figured as a loss in the season's operations. If they are resumed they will probably be played by the Civic orchestra, an organization of talented young players who are taught orchestral routine by Mr. Stock and Eric Delamarter.

The new wage scale works out as a device which has advantages to all concerned. While the men will receive less money a week, the reduction in the number of concerts will cause them to be paid about the same rate per concert. If there is any change on this basis, it is slightly in favor of the men.

As to the number of players, it would seem to be purely a matter of economics as against an orchestra of the size that Mr. Stock has built up in the past and upon which he has calculated his musical effects. The saving of the salaries of ten men for twenty-eight weeks will be $21,000. Upon this sum rests the fate of the final adjustment.

Florence Eckman Lohrber, soprano, appeared in a song recital at Kimball hall last evening. Her program was extensive in scope, running from Handel's "Where'er You Walk" and Haydn's "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair" of the ancient school through the drama of the operatic "O Don Fatale" from Verdi's "Don Carlos" down to the modern strains of Sibella's "Girometta" and Hageman's "Do Not Go, My Love." She is an artist of good looks, poise, and an excellent voice with a number of whose possibilites she is well conversant.

She was assisted by Elizabeth Moritz, pianist, of whom something important is due to be heard as soon as she consents to appear in a full length recital. Mme. Moritz is an uncommonly interesting artist, with both the technic and the flair for giving distinction to the music she is playing. This applies to the less inspired compositions of Grahms as well as his more fiery works. A pair of Chopin and Liszt works were included on her later group.

Two Chicagoans Will Be Presented at Court This Season

MISS LOUISE DEWEY.

Court in June

Miss Marjorie Goodman and Miss Louise Dewey are to be presented at the Court of St. James's at the last two of the four courts to be held next month, Miss Goodman on the 23d and Miss Dewey on the 24th, unless it is possible to have her presentation switched to the 23d so she can be in the same group with some of her English friends.

Only the lists for the first two courts, on June 12 and 13, have been published, and that is why the names of these two young Chicagoans were not included in the lists.

Miss Goodman, who has been studying in Florence this winter, will be joined by her mother, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, who will sail late this month to meet her daughter and to go to London with her. Louise Dewey and her mother, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, are planning to sail on June 10 on the Paris, just after Louise is graduated from school at Farmington. They will be joined in France about the 1st of July by Mr. Dewey and the young son of the family, Peter, who is at St. Paul's school, and the four will spend the summer in Normandy.

A Glimpse of First Summer Clothes Awaits Shopper Today

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THERE are a lot or things to buy this week-end shopping day . . . new arrivals that sort of tell you what you will wear this summer, previews, or teasers to whet your clothes appetite so that you will not lose interest, regardless of what the weather may do.

Summer clothes and accessories are going to blaze with color, according to the first samples, good refreshing splashy effects that ought to accomplish gay and interesting results.

After six weeks of intensive promotion, knitted sports clothes are here to stay . . . the knowing clothes hound has at least three or four outfits now, and before the summer has sweltered itself into history she will have almost an entire wardrobe of this good looking can't wrinkle stuff.

And how the colors riot among the knitted and simulated hand knitted weaves. The displays around town of knitted fashions resemble wild colored posters, high shades of brilliant blue, scarlet, orange, a wild shade of green, to say nothing of dusky new tones that look like the colors from the dress parade uniforms of medieval knights and Florentine pages, weird metallic greens and rusty reds and rich warm pinks and yellows.

One newly unpacked suit consists of three pieces . . . a skirt and semi-tailored jacket of chenille knit boucle . . . the sweater blouse can be worn either over or under the skirt . . . this blouse is of white with contrasting colored designs the same tone as the skirt and jacket . . . the neck is round with a draw string that quaintly laces and ties with balled ends at the front. You can select any shade, but two outstanding colors that will make fashion history are beige and cherry red.

There will be plenty of barbarism afoot this summer—sandals for summer wear only, are direct descendants of the mere sole and few straps that shod the feet of ancient Romans that trudged along the Appian way centuries ago—but these 1932 versions out smart the old timers with color combinations that rival anything a Caesar ever looked at. Don't be timid, walk out in the wildest combination you can find, for competition is going to be keen. Even conservative souls will not hesitate to wear sultry shades of every wild primary color. New summer sandals are mostly of fabric, with high heels and a slender sole of one solid color and strapped with narrow strips of leather or fabric in as many as four and five different colors. It sounds complicated but the general effect is especially smart with light summer frocks and suits and this wild colored ground work is almost compulsory with ensembles of clear white.

For those of us that are faithful to white footwear for summer, the shoe designers have really planned some successes that will be foot notes of superlative smartness wherever they are worn. Classic pumps in white are made entirely of small holed mesh fabric used as insets over the toe and along the sides. Others of white kidskin are made with eyelets that are quite a bit larger than the usual size of eyelets. They are big enough to look like, and be called portholes.

New hosiery for the mesh and lace enthusiasts are now ready with the newest summer shades to properly accompany these new shoes. Two new arrivals among the lace patterns are called queen's lace and illusion and they are as delicately fragile and sheer as their names indicate.

Marionettes Open Run at Goodman Theater Tomorrow

Tatterman's marionettes, a delightful troupe of forty modest actors and actresses, will open a week's benefit engagement at the Goodman theater, starting tomorrow.

Proceeds will be shared by the North Avenue Day Nursery and other charities under the sponsorship of the Junior League theater and many prominent men and women.

For the adults the night program will present "Stringing Broadway," a sophisticated musical revue, satirizing Broadway, the radio, Hollywood, professional reformers, and others. For children a special program, "The Legend of the Lightning," has been arranged. This play, derived from the folk tales of the Pueblo Indians, is directly sponsored by the Junior League theater.

The children's play will be presented at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

'A Riot,' Describes Style Show of Other Days by Friday Club

Gown Worn by Leader of Charity Ball in 1894 Among Those Modeled at Fortnightly.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE young women who are giving away all their old clothes today to rummage sales and the like will be sorry probably in years to come that they weren't as forehanded as their mothers and had saved at least a few of the costumes which they wore on momentous occasions [where they would store them in this day of tiny apartments and atticless houses, we don't know], for what will they do when they have to take part in an old fashioned show similar to the one staged yesterday by the members of the Friday club at the Fortnightly as a sort of gala spring festival?

The show was "a riot," so those of the members to whom I talked told me, and every one laughed until tears ran down her face at the fashions displayed in "Pomp and Circumstance," which Mrs. Parmalee McFadden titled the clever revue she had planned.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers, in the lovely old gown that she wore to lead the grand march at the charity ball of 1894, was the first on the program.

Then came Miss Helen Gilbert, in a gown that had belonged to Mrs. Arthur Meeker's mother, of the vintage of the elegant "seventies"; Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson as a belle of the gay "eighties"; Miss Marie Rozet in what was the "last word" in the fashionable world at the beginning of the century; Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. David S. Cook Jr., and Mrs. Howard Shaw illustrating "High Life in Lake Forest"; Mrs. Charles W. Dempster in a costume that was smart in the naughty "nineties"; Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin for "Riding with a Beau"; Mrs. Arthur Bissell in the gown she wore "When Arthur Asked Me"; Mrs. William A. Nitze and Mrs. James Weber Linn outfitted for "A Bicycle Built for Two"; Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter in a starched white dress and a red tam o' shanter, carrying black rubbers, as "A Farmington Girl"; Mrs. Walter S. Brewster as "A Bathing Beauty," in a black silk suit that was, O, so modest with high neck, sleeves, and long enough to cover most of her limbs, as legs were called when suits like that were worn; Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Edward H. Brewer, and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham in the gowns they wore when they were very young at "A Lake Geneva House Party"; Mrs. Brewer also was "Bonne Nuit" in a nightgown that was very different from the ones worn today; and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee as "The Bride" in Mrs. McFadden's wedding gown [she was married about 35 years ago, I believe], with Miss Peggy Hambleton and Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell as her attendants.

Miss Hambleton wore a gown that she wore when she played with Helen Hayes in "What Every Woman Knows," and Mrs. Bissell wore one that had belonged to her mother-in-law. Songs illustrating the various periods represented in the fashion pageant were sung by Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, and Mrs. Paul S. Moyer, all dressed in old fashioned costumes.

Helen Stanley to Be Bride Today.

Miss Helen Stanley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edwin Stanley of 1530 North State parkway, and Victor Elting Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Elting of Winnetka, will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church. A small reception for the families and a few friends will be held at the Casino after the service.

Miss Barbara Stanley will attend her sister as maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley [Hortense Henry], Princess Josephine Galitzine [Josephine Dennehy], Mrs. Walter Field McLallen Jr. [Marguerite Watson], Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. [Elsa Armour], Mrs. Herbert P. McLaughlin [Corinne Brewer], and Miss Constance Hasler. All of the bridesmaids made their debuts with Miss Stanley two seasons ago.

John Elting will serve as his brother's best man and the ushers will include John Irving Shaw, Malcolm Stevenson, Bruce Thorne, Gardner Brown, Solomon B. Smith, and W. Edwin Stanley Jr.

Mr. Elting and his bride will reside in Cedar Rapids, Ia where he is engaged in business.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Lucia Higbie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Higbie of 2650 Lake View avenue, to James Draper of Hinsdale, will be solemnized at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Thorndyke Hilton chapel of the Chicago Theological seminary, with the Rev. William H. Boddy of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Only the immediate families will be present. After four months at Lakeside, Mich., Mr. Draper and his bride will reside in one of the north shore suburbs.

Seabury-Fisk Marriage Today.

An Oak Park wedding of interest today will be that of Miss Martha Louise Seabury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury of Oak Park, to Burnham Morris Fisk, son of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Fisk of Oak Park. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in Grace Episcopal church, and will be followed by a reception at the Seabury residence at 420 North Euclid avenue.

Miss Clara Seabury, who has just concluded her sophomore year at Swarthmore college, will be her sister's maid of honor. A younger sister, Miss Betty Seabury, has come home from the Knox school at Cooperstown, N. Y., to be bridesmaid.

James Cunningham of Chicago will be best man for the groom, and the ushers will be John Munro of Highland Park, Anthony Michel of Oak Park, Richard Lott of Warrenton, Pa., Mortimer Collins of Grand Rapids, Mich., Howard Lyle Simmons Jr. of Oak Park, and Llewellyn Wright of Chicago.

The bride and groom will reside in Oak Park after their return from a wedding trip.

The opening of the three day spring exhibition of students of the Ropp School of Art yesterday afternoon brought a fashionable gathering of both students and art patrons to the school at 100 East Chicago avenue. Between 5 and 6 o'clock dozens of men and women strolled slowly through the hot, crowded rooms and inspected the work of the students with far more interest than is usually given to exhibitions of established artists.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Ropp were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, both of whom were busy answering questions and showing off the work of the school's best artists; Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Philip B. Maher, Miss Harriet Clifford, and Mrs. William Burry Jr.

Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson of 1517 Dearborn parkway will open her residence this afternoon for a musical program to be given under the auspices of St. Katharine's school at Davenport, Ia., to benefit the Bishop Theodore Morrison memorial at the school.

Many Shows for Youngsters.

There will be lots of entertainment for the very young members of society this week-end, with a puppet show in Lake Forest today [it was given there last night, too], the Jack and Jill players' production of Alice Gerstenberg's "Water Babies" this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon at the Chicago Woman's Club theater, and another puppet show at the Goodman theater tomorrow afternoon given by the Tatterman Marionettes and sponsored by the Chicago Junior League theater.

The Lake Forest show, or shows, for there will be one at 11 o'clock this morning and another at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, will be given by a group of Winnetka women at the Country Day school, the proceeds to be given to the charities to which this group of clever women contributes the receipts of performances. "Barnacle Bill and the Mermaid" is the title of the comedy to be given and we understand all the very young Lake Foresters will be at today's performances, the young ones having attended last night's.

Miss Gerstenberg's dramatization of Charles Kingsley's book, beloved by all children, is being given its first Chicago production by the young Jack and Jill players under the direction of Miss Marie Agnes Foley. There is to be a performance at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and another at the same time tomorrow afternoon.

Theodora Wagner Wedding Plans.

The wedding of Miss Theodora Wagner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Brentano Wagner of 3500 Sheridan road, to Guy Asa Osborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Sanders Osborn of Kenilworth, will be solemnized next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Blackstone hotel and will be followed by a reception for relatives and intimate friends. Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson of the Fourth Presbyterian church will officiate at the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Eric Foote of New York, will be her matron of honor, and her cousin, Miss Marguerite Bruere of St. Charles, Mo., will be maid of honor. Mrs. William Cummings of Hubbard Woods, Mrs. Herbert Paschen, and Mrs. John Smalley will be bridesmaids. The bride will be given in marriage by her father.

Guy Sanders Osborn will be best man for his son and the ushers will be J. Donald Scott, Frederick Cross, Dean Hole, and Ernest C. Wunsch of Detroit.

Dr. and Mrs. Wagner will give the bridal dinner this evening at the Tavern club. A trousseau tea was held on Thursday.

Miss Mary Penfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chapin Penfield of Evanston, has chosen Saturday, June 18, as the date of her wedding to Waldo Morgan Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hubert Allen of Hubbard Woods. The ceremony will be performed at 3:30 in the evening in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church in Evanston. Go just alike, yet each believes his own.—Pope.

BY MAE TINEE.

Good Morning!

Elissa Landi gives a potent performance as the heroine of this Fox melodrama. I like her, don't you? She's so poised and natural! And her smile, which brings out a dimple in an odd place, is so winsome!

In the role of Laura she's very much a victim of circumstances. If one man isn't doing her wrong, another is! Her husband, who's running for mayor when the picture opens, is a blackguard. She divorces him and marries Paul Ramsey. This is a real love match and progressing famously till a pair of jealous old codgers, the father and uncle of the husband, start picking on poor Laura. The singer, for whom she write music, means her no good—and her perfectly innocent relations with this snake, portrayed with rare understanding by Gilbert Roland, prove the T. N. T., to which her enemies touch their matches.

O well—don't worry too much! I'm sure you'll like the ending.

Miss Landi has excellent support and the director handled scenario and players adeptly, with one exception: and if I'm wrong here don't hesitate to put me right in your usual kindly fashion. The exception is a trial scene in which the first witness to take the stand is one for the defense—called by the attorney for the defense. I thought a case was always opened by the prosecution. [Possibly the state was supposed to have finished its case.]

"The Woman in Room 13" has lots of suspense and excitement. It succeeds in stirring within you active likes and dislikes—and when a movie can do this it hasn't moved in vain.

See you tomorrow!

Sanitarium Staff Will Co-Operate in Youth Week Plans

The Municipal Tueberculosis sanitarium with its personnel of 84 doctors and 274 nurses, will coöperate with the Chicago Medical society in plans for Youth week, May 8 to 14, Dr. Frederick Tice and Dr. Allan J. Hruby, directors of the sanitarium said yesterday. They said the plan of the 5,000 members of society to examine free of charge public school children is one of the most progressive health efforts in years.

"It will undoubtely uncover many cases of tuberculosis, heart disease, nervous diseases, nutritional disorders, tonsil defects, and eye conditions," the directors said.

The sanitarium, it was revealed, is conducting a survey of more than 600 children from tubercular families. There are at present, the directors said, 3,322 known cases in the city.

The object of the Chicago Medical society is to diagnose tuberculosis, heart disease and other diseases in the early stages. While complete cure is still possible. The examinations will be made in the office of a private physician, each schoolchild receiving a card which is to be filled out by the doctor after the examination.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Morrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. Roland is forced to steal jewels which are in his keeping for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is sent to collect ransom from Lord Whiddon, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is Sir Henry. Prowling through the house Roland becomes locked in the room used to imprison the captives. The Whisperer's next victim is the young daughter of Renbold Harner, minister of development in Australia, who is in London with special credit from his government to place orders for British made farm machinery. Harner refuses to use his government's money for ransom. Miss Harner is thrust into the room where Roland is also a captive. Roland fires at one of the Whisperer's men who opens the door and escapes with Miss Harner. Roland returns to Connie's and is taken captive.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

A DANGEROUS ALLY.

The ceiling was of wood, not so substantial as that of the paneling but still strong and hard enough to be a quite hopeless proposition without tools.

"Hm! Better think this out! What was it he said about Tantalus?"

The fight had put the immediate thought of the Whisperer out of Roland's consciousness. Some stuff about dying of thirst!

He was, now he came to think of it, very thirsty. There had been the gag in his mouth all that time, and then the fight.

"Well, there's no need to start dying of thirst till I've got through that fruit first!" He laughed and made for the sideboard at the end of the room.

One glass stand held a large, juicy pineapple. On another was a pile of oranges. On a third a rich cluster of black grapes.

"Grapes are a lot better than nothing, my boy—grrh!" The last was an agonized shout.

Within five feet of the sideboard he stood, unable to move forwards or backwards, while an intense pain shot up his legs paralyzing them.

For three seconds or more he endured the pain, then flung his head back so that he overbalanced and rolled clear of the electric plate on to which he had walked.

"Ingenious devil!" Roland went back to the armchair and sat down. It was several minutes before his glance happened to fall on the long box like a cricket chest—several minutes before he grasped its significance.

"Wireless—with transmitter!"

"They forgot to take it away as he told them."

In sheer excitement he lay back in the armchair and roared with laughter. The police, he knew, listened day and night on "the little boxes" in the constant hope of picking up something that might be useful.

Within five feet of the sideboard he stood, unable to move.

And what about the Whisperer? There was no stunt on, and so he would not be listening in. At least, there would be no harm in trying.

He snatched up the mouthpiece of the transmitter—then hesitated. If he were to call the police he himself would be arrested. Better than dying of thirst!

"Hullo! Hullo! Hullo! Victim of the Whisperer speaking." He kept this up for five minutes—then remembered that there was a transmitting apparatus exactly similar in the car which the Yard had captured from him on the Great West road.

He called this information and repeated it. He put on the headphones and waited. Ten minutes later a voice spoke.

"Scotland Yard speaking. Who are you?"

"Roland Blatch," he answered. "I joined the Whisperer's gang and he caught me trying to betray him. He has locked me up somewhere and is leaving me to die of thirst. . . . No, I don't know where I am."

"We'll try and find you. If you can keep on speaking for a couple of hours we're bound to find you with the radiogoniometer. It doesn't matter what you say. Just speak a little every thirty seconds or so."

"Right you are! Many thanks," said Roland, then repeated it, and every thirty seconds repeated the phrase. Then, to vary the monotony, he started thinking aloud.

"Blatch speaking. This is splendid. The Whisperer will feel damned small. . . . Damned small. . . . Damned small."

The thrill of the fight was upon him—the fight against the Whisperer. He no longer cared about his own peril with the police.

At the end of an hour Scotland Yard spoke to him. "Keep it up. We have five vans on the job."

Five vans at different points of the compass! In each van a radiogoniometer—that wonderful instrument. He pictured it working.

Towards the end of the second hour something of the thrill had passed away. But hope still beat high. At least he would not die the horrible death the Whisperer had planned for him.

Then Scotland Yard spoke again.

"There's no need to go transmitting—you may want to rest a bit."

"What!" cried Roland. "I say, what's the idea? Is it——"

"I'm sorry to tell you that this method is no use," came the answer. "Our transmitter is speaking directly to you. But yours is on a different wave—and it is being retransmitted to us."

"O, I say, hang it all, can't you track out the retransmitter?"

"No more than we can on all the other stunts. The retransmitter keeps shifting—it's probably on a moving van. We'll do our best for you."

"They'll do their best for me," muttered Roland. "That's what they say to all the Whisperer's victims. And so far they've done nothing."

He lay back in the armchair in the very depths of despair. He had neglected to remove the headphones.

Suddenly to his amazement another voice spoke—the Whisperer himself.

"You heard me tell Number Two to move the apparatus. But I had previously told him to ignore that order. Between us, Mr. Blatch, you and I are adding a new twist to the myth of Tantalus—thanks to wireless!"

"Like to do a deal, Whisperer? Let me out of this and I'll tell you all I know about you."

"Useless, I fear, Mr. Blatch. I will pay you the compliment of saying you are too dangerous for me. You injured my reputation over the Harner affair. You will now restore it—in your own person. In your loneliness. You will not be able to resist the temptation of the transmitter. You will constantly talk with Scotland Yard. I place no restrictions on your conversation with the police. They will try to keep up your spirits. You will tell them your symptoms while madness—thirst madness—creeps on you. And you will go on hoping. . . ."

. . . . . .

Roland awoke in the armchair and blinked at his surroundings. Then with a rush came memory and the horror of realization.

His watch told him that it was half past six, and from the fact that it had nearly run down he deduced that he had slept some eighteen hours. No chink of daylight penetrated his prison.

His mouth was dry and his throat parched. The sideboard with its load of fruit, protected by its electric barrier, seemed to grin in mockery.

"I'm going to end it somehow." Vigor came creeping back with the resolution. "Would it be possible to fuse that electrical contraption?"

He got up and took another look at it. Some five feet from the sideboard the wooden floor gave way to the metal platform painted to resemble it. There was no hope of being able to jump straight on to the sideboard.

He made an experiment with a chair, then with the armchair, and in each case got a painful shock. A couple of hours passed while he thought out new plans that came to nothing.

"If I can fuse this I can get at the fruit and at least spoil the Tantalus part of the program. I might mess it about with wires and chance it."

But there were no wires He flopped back in the armchair, and realized that the armchair was fitted with springs.

He turned it upside down, clawed at the canvas bottom, and pulled out half a dozen springs which he uncoiled and flattened as far as he could.

He had not the least idea how to proceed. He threw one spring on the live area and nothing happened—another and another, with the same result.

"Hell! This stunt's no good!" he cried, and kicked the last spring in savage exasperation.

Instantly the lights went out.

"That's a fat lot of good!" he told himself ruefully. He sat still in the darkness, wondering what to do next when there came the smell of burning—then smoke.

He coughed and rose to his feet. Flames were coming from somewhere near the sideboard. He ran to the other end of the room. More smoke. He lay on the floor and, his perceptions quickened by the fear of death, sensed the position of a ventilator near the door.

Cohan to Return to Movies After Years of Absence

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 6.—After fifteen years, George M. Cohan again has succumbed to the tinkle of the movie cash register and will come to Hollywood next month to co-write and play in "The Phantom President," a burlesque on national politics which the Paramount company is making.

Constance Bennett was displeased over publication of a paragraph to the effect she was letting her hair resume its natural brown. When information was requested concerning this reported change, Miss Benett sent word that she positively was "going to continue being a blond and would not change her color of hair."

George Arliss has a clause in his contract which stipulates he shall work only six hours a day.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Bob Montgomery, and a group of friends set sail from San Pedro yesterday for a month of cruising down the Mexican coast in the C. B. De Mille schooner Seaward.

Last Monday I told you about "Mother's Mix Ups"—dry ingredient mixtures for simple cakes, muffins, biscuits, and griddle cakes which could be prepared at home and stored away to speed up the meal getting process when time was short or company dropped in. But just as I expected, that little time saving hint brought a barrage of remonstrances from kitchenette cooks. They have informed me in no uncertain terms that their "in-a-door" cooking facilities don't offer an inch of room for storing "mix ups." And I will have to grant that, like the mumps, there is nothing to do about it.

For the home with a moderately roomy cupboard this plan proves excellent and time saving; for those of us who still hold the salad bowl on one hip while we mash potatoes with the opposite hand on the one working surface of our kitchenette cubicle, there will simply have to be other ways found of beating the clock.

Here are a few, for instance, which I have discovered cut down my cooking time immensely. If you've already tried these and think of others, why not send them in, and let us pass the good word along?

These early fresh tomatoes, to start with, which are just demanding to be welcomed into spring salad, present a real skinning problem, especially if they aren't dead ripe. We can't have them jagged, and the usual dipping in hot water or turning over the flame on a skewer necessitates a complete reicing. Instead, try this skinning stunt. Take a paring knife and, using the dull edge, firmly rub it over the complete surface of the tomato, giving especial attention to the greenish spots and the stem end. Now insert the point of the knife under the skin at the smooth end—and just glory in the speed with which the jacket slips off! No more worries about lukewarm tomatoes or deferred dinners while the salads chill!

And here's another time saver that may be new to you. Don't take time each cake baking day to cut layers of waxed paper for the bottoms of your baking pans—and run the risk of those important leavening bubbles escaping. Instead, take time out some day to cut a dozen or more "bottoms" for each of your favorite cake pans—two layers of heavy waxed paper work the best. Slip them into envelopes labeled "round," "square" or "oblong," and tuck into a convenient shelf corner. They'll now be ready at a minute's notice.

Emergency meals and snacks are also much simpler to evolve if we keep a few semi-prepared foods in the back of the refrigerator. These long rolls of ice box cookie dough hide in the rear of mine. They're carefully wrapped in oiled paper, and come out—have a dozen cookies chopped off—and go back to hiding whenever I have a hot oven and a yen for a crisp, crunchy tea accompaniment. Pastry is another food which may be made up ahead of time and kept on hand for a week or more with the aid of good refrigeration and careful wrapping.

RICE OMELET.

2 eggs.
1 cup hot boiled rice.
¼ cup chopped green pepper.

Beat the eggs until frothy and add the salt and rice. Stir in melted butter and green pepper. If desired, add one-fourth cup milk. Turn into a hot frying pan with an additional teaspoon of butter and cook slowly until firm. Brown slightly under an oven flame and serve immediately.

Sails to Arrange Wedding

Miss Margaret James, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James of Chicago and London, sailed yesterday on the Olympic for England to visit her sister, Mrs. Gordon Stannus, in London and to make plans for her marriage late in July to Charles Clarence Smith of London. Miss James has been immensely popular since her family came here from London (her mother was the former Louise Brega of Chicago) about seven years ago. Mrs. James expects to go over for her daughter's wedding to the young Englishman, sailing early in July, but Lieut. Col. James fears that business here will prevent his leaving Chicago. Visit to Girls of the Follies Is One Great Big Beauty Feast

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Whenever I go backstage at the Follies I wonder why I haven't had the business acumen to auction off this assignment of mine to the highest bidder, so I could buy a couple of shiny new bracelets. [I'll let you know in time next year, boys!]

It's an experience riding up and down elevators and to and from dressing rooms, carrying such cargo of beauty as only a Ziegfeld elevator is privileged to hold. It's another experience to stand gaping at any one of the dozens of these girls, wondering how come the movies missed her, to be jostled rudely out of the way by a piece of sliding scenery on its own mission bent.

It's a busy spot backstage where visitors don't belong. And it's a good spot to look the girls over and be assured that it's not all stage setting that earns the Follies girls' their beauty reputation. They bring to the scene collectively and individually as tidy an assortment of form, feature and sparkling youth as these eyes ever expect to see under one roof.

If you had to choose "the most beautiful" among them you could do it just as well blindfolded. Whichever girl you put your hand on would do. Of course, there would be the possibility this year that the bandage might be blown off by the sheer force of that spectacular personality, Lupe Velez. That girl has it, they, them, those, brains, and a pair of eyes! And eyelashes, brothers—but we'd better not go into that! There's dynamite in 'em.

And don't set up any argument with Lupe about woman's place. She says it's in "independency." You'd better let it go at that. Maybe you can tame her after you catch her. But you'd better count on a right smart season of wit-matching and on a vitality that's devastating unless you're well up on your daily dozens.

Lupe, surrounded by the aforementioned coterie of pure, unadulterated feminine pulchritude, represents nothing if not the triumph of vital, dynamic personality over form and feature, no matter how fair. Lupe has form—and a good one, too. She has eyes, as mentioned, and hair with a quite probable henna wash over its dusky threads. She has a great Garbo idolatry. Garbo can't be wrong in looks, frocks, acting, anything, in Lupe's judgment.

Norma Shearer is a close runner up. Norma's beauty produced this gem from her fiery little Mexican admirer: "Norma Shearer is beautiful. She is such a lady. She is so—so—well, she is like a clear blue diamond compared to the 'flash' diamond beauty of others."

Prof. Boucher Finds Colleges in Renaissance

Wellesley Women Open Conference.

Higher education is experiencing an intellectual renaissance and is making tremendous strides toward bettering methods of teaching, Chauncey S. Boucher, dean of the college of arts, literature, and science of the University of Chicago, told the regional conference of Wellesley college alumnae yesterday.

Prof. Boucher addressed 200 Wellesley women, delegates from eight states and members of the Chicago Wellesley club, at a luncheon in the Woman's Athletic club. The conference, devoted to alumnae work and educational subjects, will close today with addresses by President Ellen F. Pendleton of the college and Dean Mary Lowell Coolidge, also of Wellesley. Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, past president of the Chicago Woman's club, presided at the luncheon.

"Looking back today in the light of present educational standards, schools and colleges of 30 years ago were almost beneath contempt," Prof. Boucher declared. "Our forefathers pushed westward spraying the country with colleges as with an atomizer. The idea of college was quantity. It was only in the later stages of development, around 1900, that we began to tackle the quality problem seriously. Then we began to split education into levels, a student graduating from one to another. The elementary and high schools took up the problem first, then the graduate schools. The colleges literally stagnated.

"The college has been overburdened with student activities, the pursuit of knowledge being left to the faculty. But the curriculum is becoming completely different now, designed to serve the purpose of a well balanced education.

"The most critical field of all now is to deal with the one vital essential of the whole education process—educational measurement. The formula has been 120 semeste hours equal one degree. Students got into the habit of thinking of each course as a little game with the professor to beat him out of a credit, the joke being on the institution.

"The measure should not be the number of hours served, but the intellectual development of students and making allowances for the differences in the capacity and the ability of the student. The ambition of leaders in education is to get the attention of teachers and students away from forms to substance. And we are getting more accurate measurements of ability with the new methods. This will mean a new day."

Redfern Buttons Up Full Length Evening Wrap of Apple Green Satin

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris has taken the full length evening coat under its wing and guaranteed it protection as a style favorite. There are floor length evening coats that tie on, some that put their faith in a few fasteners, and others that are just careless and depend on their owners to keep them in place.

But the newest full length evening coat says "Thank you; I'll take care of myself." It is designed by Redfern and you can see just by looking at the sketch that it keeps its word. It has a capelet that is quite short and fitted which is cut circularly in front, showing the narrow banded puff sleeves of the dress beneath. On this capelet there is a narrow shawl collar which descends not quite half way to the waist. There the buttons take up the story. There are a good baker's dozen of them, fastening the coat down the center front. This coat follows the slim silhouette, descending into fullness near the hem. It trails slightly on the ground in back. It is slightly fitted at the unmarked waistline.

This new creation leaves velvet and such to its chillier sisters and uses a medium weight crêpe satin, which, along with this coat's exquisite cutting, gives it its graceful "fall." It is in a pale apple green, and the buttons that make this coat different are covered in apple green satin.

Rum Not Only Issue, Warning to Methodists

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 6.—[Special.]—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here was warned tonight not to let its fight to preserve the 18th amendment blind the church to other equally important national issues.

The warning was made in an address before the conference by William R. Castle, acting secretary of state.

The speech reiterated the assertion made in an address by the secretary in Washington last Wednesday that President Hoover was an ardent peace advocate and was opposed to official boycott because official boycott, being of the nature of a blockade, would lead quickly to war.

President Hoover's love of peace is not a partisan matter, Mr. Castle declared, and has nothing to do with whether the President is personally approved or not. The President, he asserted, has been eagerly seeking a formula which would make the Kellogg pact more effective "without incurring the danger that this country would have to fight to preserve the peace."

Raucous Voice Scares Chap AwayfromAltar

Over Breakfast Cups It Would Annoy.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It's no particular news that a raucous quality of voice is a distinct girl-liability. We've heard preached time and again the appeal of the girl with the well modulated tones. But it is unusual to find a young man, engaged to a girl, suffering eleventh hour torments about the advisability of going through with marriage to one whose voice jars on him every time she opens her mouth. In explanation of this particular instance, the man is a student of music, with a keenly sensitive ear, though music is not his profession.

The girl has all the other attributes man could wish for in a wife. She is of excellent character, fine family and an all round good companion. BUT the voice is unusual in its raucousness. The man admits that he may be deemed a crank, if not a prissy person. Not so, he protests. He's tried not to notice the voice; not to let it blind him to the girl's other charms. But without success.

Well, marriage breaks are not always due to the big irritations. It's those small, gnawing intrusions on the nerves that add prosperity to the divorce lawyer's business. Just the other day we spoke of how etiquette breaches drive sensitive women to judging their men critically on these small points. But a voice is something that goes on forever—in marriage. Breakfast, luncheon and dinner you hear it. If you mind—marriage isn't going to toughen your ears against the sound. This we remark because the man in question rather hopes that marriage might soften the ear blows.

Better to get the voice toned down—on the mend, anyway, before the Big Day. It's a rare voice that cannot be improved, these days, what with all the good vocal instructors there are. But how to go about advising the girl that she is in need of such training is a delicate task for the gentleman most interested. A curious thing about persons whose voices offend is their almost consistent unawareness of it.

This is observed in their criticism of other voices that are harsh to the ear. They cannot be aware of their own vocal failing and be so critical of others. So, they are in for rather a blow when informed of their own shortcomings. But love has a palliative way of handling such crises. The girl's many other and superlative charms could be exploited between hints that her voice is not up to them.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Would Welcome Clothing.

"Do you think you could get some clothing and shoes for a destitute family? The man deserted his wife some time ago, leaving her with two girls, 12 and 14 years old. She works when she can find something to do, but there has been almost no employment for her and she cannot buy the children the garments they need. Their shoe sizes are 4 and 5½. V. R."

Perhaps we can partially atone for the father's neglect of his family by providing the wearing apparel which is so urgently needed. Any of the garments your young daughters have outgrown or discarded would prove helpful.

Asks for National Geographics.

"Will you ask through your column for ten or twelve copies of the 'National Geographic' magazine? It does not make any difference how old these are. I want them for a man who is in the hospital and will be confined for several weeks more. O. S."

Subscribers to the "National Geographic" should be able to fill this invalid's request with no difficulty. The numbers you've finished with will be most acceptable.

Reveal Julia Lathrop as Retiring Girl in Her College Day

Julia Lathrop, internationally known child welfare worker, who died in Rockford on April 15, was revealed yesterday as a "shy, retired young woman who had no confidence in herself" during her student days in Vassar college.

The description was made by Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, a lifelong friend, at a memorial service held in Hull house for Miss Lathrop and Mrs. Florence Kelley, both of whom were associated with Jane Addams for many years. Mrs. Kelley died Feb. 17 in New York.

"Julia Lathrop made no impression on her fellow students in college. The eastern girls were not particularly interested in a quiet girl from a middle western town," said Mrs. MacLeish, who attended Vassar and was a classmate of Miss Lathrop's sister, Anna. "When she went back in 1905 for the twenty-fifth reunion of her class few remembered her.

"This woman became one of the great influences and forces in the life of this country, a blessing to children and mothers."

Mrs. Kelley, a crusader against child labor for more than half a century, and a resident in the famous Henry street settlement in New York for 30 years after she left Hull house, was recalled as the first state factory inspector in Illinois, instrumental in obtaining the first state factory bill and the first child labor bill.

"She was characterized by a realistic imagination, a grasp of reality and a living, vital quality," said Miss Edith Wyatt. "Both she and Miss Lathrop spoke for the inarticulate, and both were eloquent."

Prof. A. A. Bruce of the Northwestern university law school recalled the year following the World's Fair when both Mrs. Kelley and Miss Lathrop went into the homes of persons ill with smallpox during the smallpox epidemic in the Hull house neighborhood and cared for the sick.

Normal Baby Often Stutters, Say Experts

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It is not always possible to diagnose with sureness the cause of a difficulty Often a few hours in a home or a few conversations with a mother would clear up points that a letter might leave obscure. All we can do in this department is to base our advice on the written information we receive in letters.

The question from today's correspondent is clearly put: "About a year ago my oldest baby girl [then 2] stammered for a few weeks, but I ignored it and tried to be very quiet and patient with her and it disappeared. However, the younger one now suddenly stammers badly. This baby occasionally uses her spoon with the left hand. Several times we have changed the spoon to the right.

"The child is unusually healthy, has always had perfect sleeping habits and has presented no problem in any other way. She is very active and energetic and we have never stimulated her nor taught her baby tricks, or done anything other than give her a quiet happy babyhood. I should appreciate any advice or reading. What can I do other than ignore the stammering and be quiet and talk slowly myself?"

Answer: That is all you can do, with one important addition. See that no one ever attempts to change her if she does things left handed. Just now when she is acquiring the difficult technique of feeding herself in addition to that of talking it is particularly bad. Changing a child's "handedness" is a strain and might easily account for the stammering. Otherwise,

I am writing an article on left-handedness now which will appear next Sunday or the one following. I am sending you reading matter.

Simple Remedy Will Prevent Gladioli Pest

BY PAUL POTTER.

Some growers of gladioli have been reporting damage to the flower spikes from a tiny insect which prevents the florets from progressing beyond the bud stage. In other cases the injury is confined to discoloration of the foliage.

This injury is due to "thrips," an insect which winters over on the corms (bulbs) and attacks the new season's growth without most growers realizing the source of the difficulty. Before planting the glad corms from your last year's stock, if you have experienced this troublesome injury, a simple treatment may be used which kills the thrip in any of its four stages and does not injure the corms.

Napthalene flakes are scattered among the corms in a pan or deep dish at the rate of one ounce of flakes to 100 corms. Then store for a time at a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit. An air tight container is not necessary, but may be used. Burning of all old stalks or refuse in the old glad bed is also necessary before cultivating for the new planting this spring.

Glads may be planted at any time in May and as late as July first. The late season varieties may be stored in a pan in the back of the refrigerator, to be planted about June first or later. They consume but little space.

It is usually advised that the corms be set about an inch apart in a trench four inches deep.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Poor old Hack Wilson. His sun is rapidly setting.

Some 30,000 folks, 20,000 of them women guests, tried to goad him into deeds of consequence yesterday, but the Hack they once knew wasn't there. Just when the going was toughest in a brilliant battle he bounced around the outfield like a rubber man on a hard floor. His bat was as silent as a tubeless radio. And over the remains of the player who once sat atop a hero pedestal, the Cubs, with a revised lineup, brought down the Dodgers by fighting to a 3 to 1 decision which restored them to first place.

This one was no everyday affair. The Cubs had to struggle well into the middle of the afternoon to wear down 20 year old Van Lingle Mungo before they could redeem a run picked off Guy Bush's delivery when Lefty O'Doul boomed a homer into the seats in the fourth. With sensational support, particularly one play by speedy Rollie Hemsley, the homer was the finish of Bush's serious troubles and his mates finally gave him a winning margin in the eighth. But they had to have help in the rally and Wilson gave it.

Fielding Only Part of It.

During the rally Hack, staggering around almost helplessly, let two drives go through him for extra base hits. If the Cubs had planned to show up their old buddy, they couldn't have done better. And that was only a small part of his day's misery. The bat that once meant havoc didn't peep in four attempts. Once he was thrown out by English. Once he fanned. But the biggest shower of grief fell on his pudgy form in the sixth, when, with the bases filled and one out, he bounced gently into a double play. In his only chance after this he was tossed out by Jurges. And Chicago's the place where Hack wanted to show up the men who canned him.

In figuring out a new combination which might produce runs, Manager Hornsby overlooked Stanley Hack, the $42,000 third baseman. Hack was allotted seating space on the bench. Woody English, regularly a shortstop, took the vacancy and batted third. His only hit was one of the two on which Wilson reeled and tumbled ignominiously in the eighth. A moment later Wilson suffered the same distress on a drive by Stephenson. In between these two episodes was a long, legitimate drive with which Johnny Moore broke the deadlock.

Herman Doubles; Gets no Aid.

The Cubs started off as if they might have had plans for the early interment of Mr. Mungo. After Richbourg had been tossed out, Herman sailed a two bagger into the right field

Sox Whip Washington 5-3, and Do It Like Champions

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Who was it that halted the first place Washington Senators this afternoon after a half dozen wins in a row? Who was it that gave Prof. Monte Weaver his first licking of the season after he had tamed the Yanks and A's in four earlier starts? We bet you already know, but if you don't we hasten to tell it was nobody but those long suffering White Sox from Chicago.

BOB SEEDS.

The score was 5 to 3 and as the teams appeared today there was no question that the Sox possessed the class in a show put on for 10,000 individuals who think the Senators are a cinch to win the pennant.

The Sox played errorless ball every minute; Pat Caraway pitched elegantly until he began to tire in the sixth, and Red Faber was the master of old in a relief rôle. The Sox made seven hits to nine for the Senators, but only one of the Sox smacks, Berry's single in the seventh, went to waste.

Tidy Up the Hall of Fame.

Bob Seeds, with a triple which drove in a run in the first, and on which he later scored, a single in the eighth, after which he scored the winning run, and six nice catches in the outfield, was one of the Comiskey standouts. Then there was Bob Fothergill who drove in the third run in the first inning with a single and led off the ninth with a double that blossomed into a run. And please don't ignore the alert work of Elias Funk. Elias ran for Fothergill in the ninth and took third on a fly to Left Fielder Manush to get into position for a dash home in the course of a double steal with Charles Berry.

Luke Appling, the team's leading hitter, didn't get a hit because he was robbed on a great catch by Manush, but his day was a success nevertheless, for the game surely would have been blown out of the water if Luke hadn't made a leaping one hand catch of Cronin's drive in the eighth as the first factor in a double play that halted one of those rushes in which the Sox so frequently have been the victims.

That Old Early Lead.

The Sox came out of the first inning in possession of a 3 to 1 lead. Rothrock started things with a single to right and scored immediately on Seeds' triple to the left field corner. Bob came home on Seiph's long fly to Manush. Then Kress walked. Red took second, but Blue was out after Myer had made a miracle grab of his grounder past Judge. Fothergill singled to left, scoring Kress, but Weaver threw out Appling.

The 3 to 0 lead seemed in immediate jeopardy when Myer opened up the Senators' half with a triple to left.

Golden Gloves Fighters Win National A. A. U. Titles

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, May 6.—The great three-day chin stropping and nose bending tournament of the A. A. U. to decide the national amateur boxing championships came to a close in the Garden this evening. There had been 146 fighters from various sections of the U. S. A. and the territories in the original lineup, and 31 reported for further action in the final and semi-final rounds tonight.

There were to have been 32 fighters and 24 bouts, but Joe Cintorino of Batavia, N. Y., came down of a sickness, so his opponent, Sam Julian, of Cleveland, enjoyed the equivalent of a horsetrack walk over in the semi-final and the brawls were reduced by one.

The first champion to be officially identified from among the large collection of fighters was Lou Salica, a fly-weight, of the New York Golden Gloves team. He won two decisions, the semi-final from Tony Valore of Cleveland, and the final from James Perrin of New Orleans. This pleased him very much.

Carter 126 Pound Champion.

Richard Carter, a colored boy, also of the New York Golden Gloves, was the next champion to be recognized. He beat Holman Williams, also colored, a Detroit boy, in the feather-weight final. They went three rounds to a decision.

The bantamweights followed the feathers and a third Golden Gloves fighter won his title. This was Jimmy Martin of New York. He outpointed Sam Julian of Cleveland in three rounds.

The final fight for the lightweight title was a great bore and suggested a pair of Michael McTigues in a no-decision bout in Chillicothe. Nat Bor of Fall River won the title after three drowsy rounds with Jim McCarron of Boston.

Eddie Flynn of Loyola university of New Orleans, the only defending champion on the bill, retained his welter-weight title after a rough three round tussle with Andy Bozzano of San Francisco.

There were two Chicago fighters in the final round. The first of them, Fred Caserio, won the middleweight title by a decision from Joe Biddle of Little Rock. Both boys seemed tired and the fight was clumsy.

The other, Max Marek, lost a decision to Homer Brandis of San Francisco for the light heavyweight championship. Marek buried his head in his soggy gloves in a gesture of disappointment when the verdict was read, but he had lost beyond question.

Amateurs Fail to Fill Arena.

I am afraid we must admit that the public preference still cares for a slight tang of larceny. The house was by no means full for the amateurs, notwithstanding the earnest campaign of William [Doc] Morris, the reformed wrestler, and, if such there breathes, an honest man, who handles the propaganda for the A. A. U. and the sincere coöperation of all the papers in town.

Mr. Morris, who used to munch the

Tick On Second and Cold Check Third.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6. — The 58th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs tomorrow is going to be a horse race, say what you will about the depression, folks.

If one could find a soothsayer able to pick the winner he would go away from Churchill Downs tomorrow night with his pockets bulging with greenbacks.

Soothsayers, however, cannot be found on the eve of what may turn out to be the most exciting Derby ever run. Maybe they also have been hit by the depression and couldn't get here.

In the absence of fortune tellers and gypsy crystal gazers then, why isn't one guess on the Derby outcome as good as another? That's what we thought.

So our guess is Stepenfetchit first, Tick On second, and Cold Check third. The Bradley entry of Burgoo King and Brother Joe can run for Mr. Sweeney as far as we are concerned.

Give Sweeney a Chance.

Why Stepenfetchit? Of course, that question would have to bob up.

Well, didn't he run a remarkable race behind Evening in the Chesapeake stakes last Saturday. And here's a little tip. Evening, not eligible for the Derby, may be the best 3 year old of the year. Evening is a filly, but before this young racing season is over she's liable to make Top Flight, the one time Derby future book favorite, look like a soiled trey diamond. This filly Evening can run fast and far. O, you deny it? Well, try to catch her in the great 3 year old specials later on.

As this fellow Stepenfetchit was right at her heels last Saturday, eating up ground, after meeting up with a lot of bad luck in the early stages, and threatening to grab Evening by the throat, who wouldn't pick him to win the Derby? Stepenfetchit will not be going alone, either. He races for Mrs. Jock Whitney and will have a good tough running mate in Over Time, which will have Earl Sande in the saddle.

It'll Be Ensor's Day.

Stepenfetchit will be ridden by Buddy Ensor and it will be a Horatio Alger tale if Ensor gets the Whitney colt home. Ensor for seven years was not welcome on New York turf. He was ruled off. It is said he would take a nip now and then, and about three nips later would crawl into the steward's pogoda to tell the judges how near sighted and blind they were. Finally he sobered up and he is now traveling the comeback trail. He doesn't think Stepenfetchit can lose.

Ensor's comeback and Stepenfetchit's chances have shuffled Earl Sande into the background. Sande, too, is staging a comeback. His fight is against increasing weight. If Stepenfetchit falters, Sande may bring Over Time on to win and score his fourth Derby victory. No jockey has ever ridden four Kentucky Derby winners.

But It's the Derby.

Tick On will go to the post the favorite at 8 to 5 or 9 to 5. One should respect favorites in this great race. Seven favorites have triumphed in the last ten renewals of the classic. But with Top Flight out and Burning Blaze a hopeless cripple, the 58th Derby tomorrow hardly stacks up as a race which a favorite can win.

Of course, Tick On has four legs and any horse with four legs has a chance to win. That was the theory on which Bet-a-Million Gates operated years ago. It's still good.

With it all this is the Derby, and there's going to be a thrill in the running. A mighty thrill, perhaps; a greater thrill than those folks enjoyed back in the boom days when favorites so often raced first past the line of finish.

Fields Defeats Firpo in Pre-Derby Battle

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, decisively outpointed Henry Firpo, Louisville middleweight, to win a newspaper decision tonight in a ten round nontitle bout, feature of the annual Derby eve fight card.

PLAY LEADING DERBY ROLES

Tick On, owned by Mrs. L. G. Kaufman, which is the favorite to win the fifty-eighth Kentucky Derby today. Jockey P. Walls will be aboard the eastern three year old which is believed to be fast enough to lead a field of twenty or less across the finish line at Churchill Downs at about 6 o'clock, Chicago time.

Earl Sande has won three Kentucky Derbies. He's hoping to make it four with Over Time this afternoon.

Kentucky Derby on Air; Tune in on W-G-N at 4:45

For the eighth successive year, W-G-N will broadcast the Kentucky Derby from Churchill Downs this afternoon.

Quin Ryan will describe the race through a microphone placed in a cupola on top of the clubhouse. Harvey T. Woodruff of THE TRIBUNE sports staff and Al Sabath, veteran Chicago horseman, will assist.

The broadcast will start at 4:45 p. m. Chicago time, which is approximately one hour before the running of the race. The races preceding the Derby and the crowd, with its assemblage of notables, will be described in the hour before the stake event is run.

Microphones have been placed at various points at the track to bring the crowd's cheers and the thud of the horses' hoots to W-G-N's listeners.

CHIEF WHITEBIRD, 92 YEARS YOUNG, REACHES CHICAGO

Chief Frank Whitebird, 92 years old, stepped off the Ashland Limited in the North Western station yesterday to lead a group of Indians who arrived in Chicago to attend the National Outdoor Life exposition at the Coliseum all next week.

"Feel like a young brave," said Chief Whitebird, answering a reporter's query with a smile. "My secret of youth? Well, I might say that Indian women know how to cook good food."

LEG INJURY ENDS SIMPSON'S DRILL FOR OLYMPICS

Columbus, O., May 6.—[Special.]—George Simpson, Ohio State university's greatest dash star, will be unable to compete in the Olympic tryouts. A weak tendon in his left leg, which cost him a place on the United States team in 1928, has reasserted itself.

Simpson, who recently returned to Columbus from the west coast after representing the Los Angeles A. C. in a series of eastern indoor meets, has been unable to practice since last Friday, when he pulled up lame while practicing starts at Ohio State university.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—Bedded down in their stalls among the stables on the far side of Churchill Downs are twenty 3 year olds taking their final night of rest before the bugle call of "Boots and Saddles" summons them to the post tomorrow afternoon for the fifty-eighth running of the Kentucky Derby.

Not bedded down in their stalls or anywhere else is the advance crowd of Derby followers, gathered from far and near, determined to forget for once, at least, the current business depression and to enjoy, before and after, that free Masonry of the turf, that freedom from conventionality which characterizes the great Kentucky day of days when a breeding state pays homage to the thoroughbred, one of its principal products.

Derby time in Louisville is like nothing else in the country. Here are the pleasure seekers of the continent, those pleasure seekers to whom Derby day is just a lark with horses as the excuse and those pleasure seekers with a genuine love for the horse. Relieving the drab ensemble of the early week when even the optimists shook their heads, special trains from Chicago and New York poured their quotas into Louisville today, causing an almost unbelievable contrast to conditions which had prevailed.

Noise Making Starts.

Hotel managers who had been inquiring whether your room was satisfactory, something hitherto unknown because in former years you could take it or leave it to a long waiting list, even beaming. French Lick, Lexington, and other nearby gathering points for those motoring to the Blue Grass classic, reported capacity crowds.

This last minute influx entirely changed the complexion of Churchill Downs this afternoon and the city tonight. It changed to noise or disorder, whichever you prefer, the funeral quiet of preceding days or more particularly nights. So here is gathered a free spending, happy go lucky Derby crowd, not as free spending or happy go lucky as when steel was 220, instead of 27, or when Radio was 108 instead of 4, but still free spending and happy go lucky according to its means.

Fewer Chairs Thrown.

This spirit was communicated to the hotels tonight where those private parties not at surrounding breeding farms or at French Lick are quartered. True, fewer chairs are droping into the courtway of the leading hotel, fewer empty bottles of that which contains more than ½ of 1 per cent are crashing into this same areaway, but they are dropped with all the enthusiasm of carefree Derby crowds whose climax of celebration never exceeded that of the wild 1926, Bubbling Over's year.

That was the season when all those on an inner court, from the fourth floor to the top, visited back and forth in shirt sleeves and kimonos from open windows, when a trio on the sixth floor loud speakered they needed a tenor who answered from the ninth floor and asked the room number, and soon afterward a really fine quartet burst forth in song.

Perhaps behind 1926 in abandon, this Derby crowd is still a true Derby crowd showing its loyalty, its enthusiasm, and its violation of the eighteenth amendment as befits the occasion.

Quiet Prevails at Stables.

This prelude of celebration, inevitable to the Derby, the same kind of prelude which once caused a national figure in finance such a headache that he was unable to visit the track and see his colors carried to victory in the Derby the following day, is only that of the onlookers. Over in those 20 stalls of stables on the far side of the track are the colts which have drawn this concourse of people. No merry making, no carousing, no chairs or bottles here.

Outside most of these 20 stalls are cots, occupied by a colored swipe whose mission is to guard against harm to the colt which he has rubbed down and humored through the weeks of preparation for the final test. Ordinarily the swipe sleeps in the help quarters at the end of the barn. Not so on the night before the Derby. Perhaps a dog, gentle with the stable help but ferocious to marauders, nestles his head against the hostler. Only a few had guards awake all

STRETCH SPEED GIVES BURNING UP AURORA VICTORY

Record Payoff Increases Daily Double Betting.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Burning Up, the speedy Black Tony colt which scorched Chicago tracks last year, was just a horse which might have been called Cooling Off for the greater part of the May Blossom handicap, the feature at Exposition Park, Aurora, yesterday afternoon. Those in the ladies' day crowd of more than 10,000 who had wagered on him to win groaned when Supreme Sweet, No More, and Gold Step fought it out to the turn into the stretch and still no sight of Burning Up.

The speedy trio in front continued the argument well into the stretch and it looked as if Goggles McCoy, who had grabbed the rail when they straightened out, was going to bring Gold Step into the winners' circle. He was having the better of a whipping match with Neel on Supreme Sweet and Cunningham on No More, but they might as well have saved their energy, for Burning Up had decided it was about time to blaze away.

Leaves Trail of Dust.

Burning Blaze came up on the outside of the leading three with such a rush that they saw nothing but smoke and cinders when he went past them. He paid $5.40 to win in the $2 mutuels. Gold Step was at $3 to place and Supreme Sweet, which took the show end from No More, paid $4.18 for third.

The ladies' day crowd, together with the regulars, made such a throng that late comers among the motorists were forced to park their cars in the airport across the way. There will be eight races on the program today, and bulletins on scratches and the result of the Derby at Louisville will be supplied to the crowd by the public address system throughout the afternoon.

Those in the crowd who played All Forlorn in the opening race, a four and one-half furlong duel for 2 year old maidens, looked anything but that when the Jewell Brothers' filly outlasted Cloister's Dream to win by a length. All Forlorn took the lead near the top of the back stretch and held it to the finish, although Cloister's Dream came fast in the stretch. Lady Westy took the show money from Stately Lady. All Forlorn was in the field, which had plenty of support at the mutuel windows, and returned $7.06 for each win ticket.

Daily Double Picks Up.

Jerry Hallisey's victory in the daily double of Thursday, when the combination of Tufinuf and Knockabout paid the record price of $3,132.24, inspired an increase of 40 per cent in the business at the window selling combination tickets on the second and third races. Yesterday the holders of a ticket teaming Buzzy Boo in the second and Quorum in the third were rewarded with $43.96, the lowest daily double price of the meeting thus far. One hundred and fifteen betters held tickets on the pair.

Whereas more than 1,600 daily double tickets had been sold on Thursday when Hallisey held the only ticket on Tufinuf and Knockabout, nearly 2,700 were sold yesterday. If White Flame, a long shot yesterday on which only one double ticket was sold, had won the third race, and had paired with Buzzy Boo, the daily double would have paid $5,056.48.

Rain Routs Rail Birds.

A pelting rain drove the rail birds into the stands during the running of the fifth race, which saw Rough Rider, the property of Mrs. Emil Denemark, who also owns Burning Up, come up in the last furlong to beat out Speedy Charley, which had led from the start, under a vigorous ride by King. Rough Rider had been slighted in the betting and paid $22.42 to win.

Lucky Carter, 4 year old gelding owned by C. W. Moore, was claimed out of the sixth race by R. B. Allen. This was the first horse of the meeting to be taken under the new open claim rule.

SMITTY—HAPPY, DATES ARE HERE AGAIN

FEEDBOX DOPE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—[Special.]—Tick On, the black coated son of On Watch, which is ante-post favorite for the Kentucky Derby, was seated at a table reading the morning papers when The Wake sought his Derby views. These papers were opened at the financial pages, while on the table were two books entitled, "Causes of Previous Depressions" and "Mistakes at Washington."

This type of reading matter seemed appropriate for a colt owned by Mrs. L. G. Kaufman of the banking Kaufmans of New York and Chicago. Tick On rose as we approached and bowed courteously rather than effusively, whinnying "Good morning, Mr. Wake."

Adopting his "Mr." attitude, but seeking to break the ice for a rollicking talk such as we had enjoyed with several others, we replied, "Good morning, Mr. On, just called to say hello, although my note at the bank doesn't mature for another thirty days."

"You are indeed fortunate," replied Tick On with dignity, and we realized this was to be a serious interview. "Naturally it's of the Derby you wish to converse. Now let's look at this race in the light of statistics. Strictly on that basis, Burgoo King and I figure as the most sound, considering earnings, depreciation, and obsolescence.

"There are others, of course, who fulfill public wants and will meet the unique retail demands of a Derby day crowd. Mrs. Whitney's pair comes in that category and I look for improved earnings from them this year despite slack public consumption. Economic, too, has the right kind of name and apparently had stepped up speed production. Whether he will go on is questioned by some who recall his father rather faltered and lost enthusiasm when the project at hand was long drawn out.

"Liberty Limited, I always fancied, was something of a gusher, being owned by the oil Waggoners. He was capped during part of his training, but now is flowing over the track freely. Cold Check might be a menace. His race in the Derby preparation purse was really much better than the clearing house figures showed. He was coming with a nice burst of speed at the end.

"If you concede that Burgoo King and I have the best history of performance, then compare our records. The Pimlico last fall at 1 1-16 miles gives common meeting ground. Burgoo was third, three lengths behind Top Flight, the winner, after being in the first division all the way. Thus we may assume he had no unusual complications. I was a head back of Top Flight at the end. Being conservative, I was slowly away from the post, suffered some interference on the way, and those present were kind enough to say I would have won had the race been a sixteenth farther. If you recall, it was the only time during the year that the Whitney filly was fully extended. Thus having set up these adequate reserves, especially with regard to Burgoo King, it would seem my prospects encourage at least mild purchase of mutuel tickets Saturday as an investment. I certainly do not approve of speculation, nor could I countenance short selling of any of the others, especially with the present temper at Washington.

"Look again at my 2 year old record. Ten starts, with three victories, including the Hopeful stakes, three times out of the money. Total earnings, $57,350. At least that's sound and conservative.

"I lost my only start this season to Springsteel in Maryland. Away poorly and met all kinds of trouble. Undoubtedly best in the race, according to the auditors.

"In the present depression hysteria, with all values deflated, it is possible some of these wildcat colts, stimulated by premiums and large commissions, may take the Derby. If our one time sanity prevails, I look like the best. There's nothing more I can say, Mr. Wake."

Comradeship Pays $60.40 at Sportsman's

Upsets featured racing at Sportsman's park yesterday afternoon. It was not until the running of the fourth event, the feature attraction of a fair card, that one of the choices bowled down to the wire in front.

In the opening dash Comradeship, ridden by E. Gross, furnished a surprise by leading Red Note and Thistle Dick to the finish. The black colt paid his backers $60.42 for each $2 invested.

Kiddem Fulfills Promise.

Kiddem did just what his name implies, when he won the second heat in a driving finish with Harold Jr., while Princess Val brought up the show end. Jockey Seabo fell off Col. Cloister but escaped injury.

McKell, neglected in the speculation, despite his fine effort last time out, came from the rear to beat Princella, the favorite in the third race. The pair finished a nose apart.

Rain Drives Spectators Inside.

Just prior to the running of the fourth a heavy rain drove the 5,000 spectators to shelter. After a short delay at the post Chattachoochee, the choice, jumped into a long lead and won in cantering fashion from More Space and Orkin, while Beige was lost in the shuffle.

Eight well filled races make up today's card with post time changed to 2 o'clock. It was announced that spectators will be given a full description of the running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Lott and Vines Clash Today in Net Match

Three members of the United States Davis cup team—Ellsworth Vines, John Van Ryn, and Francis X. Shields—will appear in exhibition matches at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, Ridge and Granville avenues, this afternoon. The first match will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Vines, 20 year old Californian, who won the national singles championship last year, will meet an old rival in George Lott of Chicago. They have met twice, Lott winning in the Newport invitational meet, and Vines triumphing in the finals for the United States title last year.

Van Ryn will open the program against Shields, third ranking player. This match will be followed by the Vines-Lott duel. Van Ryn and Lott, who won the Wimbledon and French doubles championship, then will meet Vines and Shields in the doubles.

Lott, who has been in Chicago for several days, yesterday defeated Paul Stagg, captain of the University of Chicago tennis team, 6-2, 6-0, on the Maroon courts. Lott, paired with Scott Rexinger, was leading Stagg and Max Davidson, 4-3, in the first set of a doubles match when rain halted the contest.

Vines, Van Ryn, and Shields will arrive this morning at 9:30 o'clock from New York on the Broadway Limited. The players who will appear today, together with Wilmer Allison, Texas, the other member of the United States Davis cup team, will meet Mexico at New Orleans next month. They recently routed Canada.

Marriner Out; Merhar Will Box Wistort

Joe Merhar, Butte, Mont., heavyweight, was signed yesterday to replace Les Marriner against Pete Wistort in an eight round bout at White City Monday night. Marriner is troubled with an old arm infection. The revised card follows:

A new boxing club for the promotion of outdoor shows at Twenty-first street and Kostner avenue has been incorporated wih Joe Triner, a director of the Chicago Stadium, president. Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Stadium, is secretary and treasurer. Al Miller, former manager of King Levinsky, will be matchmaker. The organization will be known as the West Side Boxing club and is attempting to sign Tony Canzoneri and Harry Dublinsky for a bout on June 16. The first bout will be held June 9, Miller said.

Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle, will arrive tomorrow from Rochester, Minn., to confer with Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, on the Petrolle-Battling Battalino fight May 20. He will leave Monday for Boston with Charley Retzlaff, who boxes James J. Braddock next Friday.

Dave Shade, middleweight contender, left Chicago yesterday for New York. A badly cut lip will keep Shade idle for a month.

Prince Saunders and his manager, Al Sweeney, leave for Eau Claire, Wis., Tuesday where Saunders battles Santiago Zorilla next Friday.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY RALPH KRESS.

[As Told by Edward Burns.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—I had established a pretty fair reputation as a shortstop in high school at Richmond, Cal., just across the bay from San Francisco and the Standard Oil company of California which has a great refinery at Richmond, gave me a chance to play baseball and also hold down a job.

RALPH KRESS.

You see, the refinery maintained its own baseball league of four clubs and naturally it wanted some employes who actually could play the game. I was employed as shipping clerk in the barrel house. We members of the baseball teams worked until 2 p. m. on days we did not play and then were excused for practice.

"You lucky stiffs," the other workmen used to yell at us when we would take off our overalls and dash for the doors.

On days we played, which was twice a week, we were excused at noon.

In our little league were such well known players as Babe Borton, once of the White Sox; Chick Autry, a big league catcher; Willis Butler and Devereux. Boston tried to sign me up for Seattle. Butler overhead him and came to me, saying:

"Red, I think you would do better to let me place you rather than sign with Seattle. I can send you to the big leagues."

Naturally, I was impressed. Butler had formerly played with the St. Louis Browns and it was to the Browns he sent me, only a kid of less than 19 years of age. Of course, I was not ripe for the big show and I was farmed out to Tulsa for one season. All we were taught at Tulsa was to hit. We had seven regulars hitting over .320. The next year I came to the Browns and stuck there until traded last week.

Sox Bunch Hits to Beat Senators, 5-3

Manush, however, followed with a fly to Rothrock which scored Myer, but seemed to calm Caraway. West fouled to Berry and Cronin filed to Seeds.

The Senators tied the score at three all before a double play brought a pause in the fifth. Reynolds singled to right and Judge did likewise. Reynolds reaching third and Judge second on the throw to third. Bluege's fly to Rothrock scored Reynolds and Spencer's single to center scored Judge. Weaver then hit into a double play, Caraway to Kress to Blue.

Fonseca Takes a Poll.

Caraway was yanked in the sixth without a man passing beyond second. Myer walked, and Manush and West filed out. Cronin also walked and Pat had thrown two balls to Reynolds when Manager Fonseca called a halt. After consulting Catcher Berry, Lew had a chat with Caraway and then called in Faber. Faber whizzed a strike past Reynolds and on the next one Carl popped a nice gentle fly to Blue to retire the side.

Things looked pretty tough at the start of the Senator seventh. Judge was credited with a single when Appling and Blue both went after his grounder and Faber couldn't get over to first. Bluege bunted past Faber for a single, Judge stopping at second. Spencer fouled to Rothrock and Weaver forced Bluege, Judge taking third. Appling threw out Myer.

The Sox took a 4 to 3 lead before anybody was out in the eighth. Seeds beat out a single to deep short and reached second when Cronin threw the ball away. Selph lined a single to left, scoring Seeds. Kress forced Selph and Blue hit into a double play.

Joy Supplants Agony.

Manush opened the Senator eighth with a single to center and moved to second on West's sacrifice. Appling then made his leaping one hand catch of Cronin's drive and threw to Kress to double Manush off second.

Fothergill opened the ninth with a double to left center and Funk was put on to run for him. Funk went to third on Appling's fly to Manush. Berry was given an intentional pass. Faber tried to execute the squeeze play, but popped to Weaver. Berry and Funk staged a double steal, Funk scoring. Myer threw out Rothrock.

Reynolds led off the Senator ninth with his second hit, a single to left. Judge filed to Rothrock. Rice batted for Bluege and filed to Funk. Harris batted for Spencer and walked on four pitches. Kuhel batted for Weaver and grounded out to Appling to end the game.

The White Sox announced the signing of Clarence Fieber, a young pitcher of San Francisco university, today. Fieber is a big left hander, scaling 204 pounds and standing 6 feet 4 inches. He has been ordered to report immediatcly.

HYDE PARK BEATS SAN ANTONIO 'Y' IN VOLLEY BALL

Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. volley ball team defeated San Antonio, 15-16, 15-12, 15-10, last night in the eleventh international open tournament at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. Hyde Park was world champion for three years, while San Antonio won the championship last year.

Davenport, Ia.; Kansas City, Kas., and Pittsburgh, Pa., all state champions, were eliminated last night. Besides Hyde Park and San Antonio survivors, are Auburn, Ind.; Division street, Chicago; Eau Claire, Wis., Evanston, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Rochester, N. Y. All teams continue to play until they have lost two matches.

Joliet Y. M. C. A. won the veterans' tournament, defeating the Hyde Park Y veterans, 15-11, 15-9.

Senators Rely on Crowder to Even Sox Series Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Alvin Crowder is due to perform the pitching chore for the Washington Senators tomorrow. Vic Frasier is the White Sox's best bet, but the summer weather prevailing here may bring Ted Lyons out of hiding.

Manager Fonseca showed today that he has grown tired of watching his pitchers trying to get themselves out of jams. With two out in the sixth and with two men on as a result of walks, Caraway threw two balls to Carl Reynolds. Faber came in, threw one strike past Carl, then made him pop to Blue for the third out.

When Reynolds came up to the plate the first time Caraway took his signal from Berry and threw a strike. It then was discovered that Umpire Bill Dineen was wandering around the ball park some place. So the effort didn't count. The incident caused great giggling among the lady customers.

It was Faber's first win of the year and his 248th for the Sox, as compared with 197 losses.

Charley Berry's handling of Caraway was a joy to behold. And he even called down old Red when he got to working too fast in the jams.

Manager Fonseca benched himself for Rothrock. Lew did this because, what with his managerial worries, he hadn't been hitting to any perceptible degree.

For a time it seemed that nothing ever would break for the Sox. Fothergill, a victim of fielders' treachery for days, probably would have broken up the game in the sixth but for the fact that Manush made the best catch in his life to capture Bob's potential triple with two on. Earlier the first inning riot had been curtailed by Buddy Myer's one hand pickup of Blue's apparent hit.

GOPHERS BUNCH HITS IN 2 INNINGS TO BEAT N. U., 5-2

Minnesota bunched hits in the first and sixth innings to defeat Northwestern, 5 to 2, in the first of a two game series at Roycemore field in Evanston yesterday. Walfrid Mattson, veteran Gopher pitcher, held the Wildcats to four hits and struck out eight. The two teams will meet again today.

The Gophers got off to a three run lead in the first inning when they collected three singles off Lefty Harris. Two more runs were scored in the sixth inning when Fencl let Cielusak's fly get away from him.

Northwestern scored its first run in the seventh when Remus walked, stole second, and ran home on Fencl's single. Sullivan's single in the ninth scored Harris for the Wildcats' second tally. Score:

Batteries—Mattson and Shannon; Harris and Potter.

Bloomington, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—Indiana university baseball team defeated Ohio State, 5 to 4, today. The victory was the tenth for the Hoosiers, with only one loss. Wrigley, Buckeye pitcher, issued three passes in the first inning which resulted in runs. Score: steam clam ears of a long list of freight yard wrestlers in the I. W. W. centers of the far west, merely announced that the greatest A. A. U. tournament ever held was about to be solemnized in the Garden at a cost within the means of any one with any money whatever to frivol away on sport. Perhaps it is that truthful restraint is a vice rather than a virtue, and that the doctor should have sugared the propaganda with casual mention of Boo Boo Hoff and midnight agreements and stealth.

Ohio State	000 300 010—4 6 3

Golden Gloves Fighters Win A. A. U. Titles

Flynn Skilled Fighter.

Of course Eddie Flynn was the head man of the evening in all classes below the heavyweight. He is a proud and haughty boxer, with more know-how than most professionals short of the champion class and a few grades beyond the familiar type of amateur. Flynn is also a fair haired boy, with a picture profile and such a lean and beautiful frame as might have stepped down off a modern statue in some museum. The old statues run to rather more width and heft at the waist than the modern ideal, but Flynn's general outline suggests an upper case V and his center is a washboard of muscle and strength.

In his semi-final fight Flynn knocked down Charley Crovatta for a count of six in the first round with a right to the chin that shot out and back like a blue spit from a third rail. Crovatta didn't know what hit him, but he was no more in doubt than the nearest patrons who were turning from one to another asking, "Did you see what it was?" Crovatta was game and he lasted three rounds, losing the decision.

The show closed with a tingle of surprise as George Schultz of Cleveland withstood the massive rushes of Fred Feary, Stockton, Cal., high school boy, for two rounds and part of the third. But Feary dropped him for a count of eight near the close of the bout and the title went to the Pacific coast.

Marcy, Loyola Boxer, Loses Stadium Bout

The first intercollegiate amateur boxing tournament in the central states got under way last night at the Chicago Stadium. Twenty-six boxers from ten universities and colleges competed in all divisions but the flyweight class.

Coach Yakochi, Hawaiian bantamweight of Purdue, had been stricken with appendicitis. There is only one other flyweight, Elliot A. Draine of Iowa, and he automatically will become the intercollegiate titleholder. Seven other champions will be crowned tonight at the Stadium, when eleven bouts will be held in the seven classes, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

Joe Oakley, University of Michigan featherweight, won a three round decision over Anthony (Bud) Marcy of Loyola univeristy, Chicago. The outstanding fighter last night was John J. Walsh, St. Thomas college (St Paul) welterweight, who knocked out two opponents. Summaries:

Malone Assigned Task of Fooling Dodgers Today

Pat Malone will have his chance today in the third of the Cubs' series with the Dodgers, alias the Robins. The one time terrible Dazzy Vance may be named to look after Brooklyn's pitching affairs.

Burleigh Grimes will be making his first start of the season within a few days, possibly against the Giants. If possible, Manager Hornsby will let him finish one or two games before giving him a starting assignment.

Sherwood (Red) MacKenzie, the left handed phenom picked up down east last summer and turned over to the Los Angeles club, was back in a Cub uniform yesterday. An effort will be made to find him a new place of employment. He hurt his elbow in a fall while at training camp, but says the effects of the mishap have vanished.

Johnny Frederick, the Dodgers' center fielder, never moves from his position to the bench without stepping on second base. He thinks it brings good luck, but it hasn't helped to get him out of Brooklyn.

An umpire is entitled to one bum guess an afternoon. Umpire Donnelly took his on Bush after Jurges had singled in the seventh. Jurges was forced and Bush beat the relay to first base by fully a step but was called out.

Before striking out in the sixth English fouled off eight balls in a row which in cash was the equivalent of $10.

'Tis May, and for Angler It Is Paradise

BY BOB BECKER.

"And now, sir, that we are entering into the month of May, I think it requisite to beg not only your attention, but also your best patience: for I must now be a little tedious with you and dwell upon this month longer than ordinary; forasmuch as this month alone and the next following afford more pleasure to the fly angler than all the rest."

Thus wrote Charles Cotton in 1676 in part two of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler" as Cotton, a well known and skillful fly fisherman wrote a "Discourse of the Art of Fly Fishing" for the "Compleat Angler."

Called Walton "Father."

Cotton, a very dear friend of Izaak Walton's, was one of the master fly fishermen in England in the 17th century. And so close was he to Walton that he called the patron saint of angling "father."

We have been reading parts of Cotton's "Discourse" during the last few weeks because his description of natural insects on the trout streams of England, his instructions on how to make artificial flies and methods of angling on the top" are fascinating as well as instructive. But one of the most interesting things about this treatise on fly fishing is the letter to Walton telling of his surprise regarding the announcement of a "sudden new" edition of the "Compleat Angler" and how he was rushed to get his treatise done in ten days. He writes to his friend this quaint old English sentence:

Rubs Up His Memory.

". . . having but a little more than ten days time to turn me in, and rub up my memory . . . I was forced, upon the instant to scribble what I here present you. . . ."

Cotton (a far more experienced fly fisherman than Walton) has written he considers May and June great months for the fly fisherman. He lists the flies which "he takes notice of" in May. Their names are interesting to most of us who toss artificial feathers to trout. Here they are: Turkey fly, great hackle, black fly, light brown, little dun, white gnat, and both the cow lady and the cow dung. The description of the cow lady pattern is as follows: "A little fly . . . the body of peacock's feather; the wing of a red feather—or strips of the red-hackle—of a cock."

Cubs, Aided by Wilson, Beat Dodgers, 3 to 1

corner. Instead of being surprised over this the young Mungo took a deep breath and slipped over a called third strike on both English and Moore. And this was no flash. He continued at the same pace. There wasn't another Cub on base until Richbourg scratched a hit to short with two out in the third and the fifth arrived before another Chicagoan attained the status of a base runner. This honor went to Grimm, who walked after one was out.

For a while Bush had a record even more dazzling than the one compiled by Mungo. Not a member of the Dodger troupe survived in the first two innings. Mungo himself broke the spell by singling to center after two were out in the third. Then with rain descending and the wind doing a good job of blowing from over the back of the stand, O'Doul led off in the fourth with his homer, which barely cleared the bleacher screen. Umpire Klem promptly called a halt for twenty-five minutes. Bush had no difficulty during the remainder of the inning.

Wilson's Embarrassing Moment.

The setting in the sixth for Wilson's most embarrassing moment began with Mungo's singling to center for the second time. Frederick popped a one base safety to right. Grimm slapped down O'Doul's slow bounder close to the bag and recovered in time to accomplish a putout. Stripp walked and up came Hack. Bush still was a bit wild and threw three wide ones before getting over a strike. The pudgy one went after the next pitch and bounced it perfectly to Herman. A throw to Jurges and a relay by the latter to Grimm did the business. Hack limped worse than ever when he walked out to his right field post.

Herman singled after Richbourg had fanned in the home sixth and that's what started the Cubs' tying run. English whiffed, but only after he had worn down Mungo by hitting foul balls. Moore followed with a single to left and Stephenson filled the bases by waiting for a pass. Mungo's first two throws to Hemsley were wide, so the Dodgers went into a huddle and the decision was that a change should be made. Shaute came in and, not unlike all southpaws, completed the pass for Mungo. This forced Herman to score. Grimm a moment later grounded to Cuccinello for a force out.

Hemsley Dazzles Dodgers.

The dazzling bit of defensive play with which Hemsley awed the customers, not to mention the Dodgers, occurred in the seventh. Wright led off with a single to left. Cuccinello bunted toward first, but the ball hadn't rolled five feet before the catlike Hemsley was on it. The batter didn't even have time to get ahead of the ball, so Hemsley tagged him and then whipped it to Jurges to nail Wright going into second. Bush had a little more trouble when Lopez opened the eighth with a hit, but nothing came of it.

There was one gone in the eighth when the Cubs got on the job of tearing apart the 1 to 1 deadlock. English lined to right and Wilson, forgetting he isn't as young as he used to be, dived for the ball. He bounced around on his stomach and the ball bounced to the fence for a triple. Moore lined a clean three bagger over short, and English scored. That was enough for Shaute. Quinn appeared and Stevie lined to right. Hack reached for the drive but it wasn't there so he had to piece himself together and chase it to the fence. Stevie went to second and Moore counted. Hemsley was thrown out and Grimm walked, but a double steal failed.

Red Lucas Holds Boston to Four Hits.

Cincinnati, O., May 6.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today trounced the Boston Braves, 14 to 1, for the second victory of the series.

With Lucas at his best, Boston gathered only four hits against the Reds' 16. The defeat dropped the Braves to second place.

Lombardi's double in the third, following a single and a walk, was good for two runs. In the fifth, triples by Grantham and Heath and another Lombardi double helped roll up six runs. Singles and a double by Babe Herman in following innings completed the disaster thrust upon Cantwell and two relief pitchers. Score:

WALGREEN GETS CHICAGO AVENUE BOUL MICH SITE

BY AL CHASE.

With the closing of a lease yesterday by the Walgreen company for the southwest corner of Michigan and Chicago avenues, that big drug chain secured its first Boul Mich location north of Randolph street. The store just secured formerly was occupied by "The Tailored Woman," and was lased for fifteen years from the Life and Casualty company of Chicago and the Mutual Casualty company of Chicago.

The new store will have a frontage on the boulevard of 44 feet with 35 feet frontage on Chicago avenue. Basement space also is included in the lease. The terms were not disclosed but the lease will become operative on the day the lessee opens the store, which is expected will be in about three weeks. The Walgreen company now has in the neighborhood of 470 stores in Chicago and other cities.

$43,000 Evanston Lease.

William H. Scott, north shore undertaker, with three establishments in Evanston, one in Wilmette and a fifth in Winnetka, yesterday leased the three story building at 1460-62 Sherman avenue, from Joseph and Antonia Perkovic for a ten year term beginning June 1, 1932, at a stated term rental of $43,000. The property will be extensively remodeled at an expense of approximately $20,000, and will be used by Mr. Scott for his sixth north shore undertaking establishment.

The Franco-American Hygienic company has leased for three years the entire second and third floors of the building at 1732 South Michigan avenue, from the Harry Alter company. The lessee will use the space for an office, show room and for the manufacture of cosmetics. B. S. Schlessinger, of Gordon Strong & Co., was broker.

Herman J. Jacob and John F. Grigoleit, co-partners as the Kimbark Arms Hotel company, have renewed their lease on the six story building at 6447 Kimbark avenue from the Kimbark Arms Building corporation, for five years from May 1, 1932, at a stated term rental of $90,000. The hotel contains forty-eight rooms.

Peterson, of the Evanston office of Quinlan & Tyson, was the only broker. Russell Whitman and Claude H. Coon, of Whitman, Miller & Coon, and Hargrave A. Long were attorneys.

Joseph H. Salomon has purchased from the Chicago Title & Trust company, as trustee, the eighteen apartments at the southwest corner of Lakewood and North Shore avenues, for an undisclosed consideration. He gave as part payment the six flats at 656 Buckingham place. Roger E. Williams & Co. represented the buyer and A. E. Oblander & Co. and Kane & Co. the seller. AVERAGE PRICE REFLECTS LARGE DROP IN STOCKS

Mart Seen on 'Cash and Carry' Basis.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Just how cheap are stocks now selling? Everybody knows that prices are low—so low, in fact, that it is necessary to go back a number of years to duplicate them. Now, before you read what follows, see how close you can guess to the average prices of all stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange. All ready? Then let's go.

On May 2 there were 1,267 stock issues aggregating 1,324,594,185 shares listed on the New York Stock exchange. Their aggregate market value was $20,319,088,631. Therefore, the average market value of all listed shares was only $15.34 a share. These are the figures given out by the exchange yesterday in its monthly report.

Average Decline $3.30.

Every one also knows that stock prices underwent considerable shrinkage last month. Here are the figures. On April 1 there were 1,269 listed issues aggregating 1,314,158,762 shares. Their aggregate market value was $24,510,826,280, or an average of $18.64 a share. Therefore, April witnessed a total decrease of $4,191,737,649 in market values, or more than 17 per cent, while the average value of each share declined $3.30.

From other data it would seem that the stock market is almost down to a "cash and carry" basis. Total borrowings against collateral by members of the New York exchange were only $379,016,662 at the end of April. This figure is a new low record. During the month they declined $154,036,397, or more than 28 per cent. These brokers' borrowings amounted to only 1.87 per cent of the total market value of all listed shares, which also is a new low record. The ratio stood at 2.18 per cent at the end of March and 3.40 per cent at the end of April, 1931.

Incidentally the New York Curb exchange announced yesterday that the short position in all securities as of May 2 was 57,258 shares, against 83,550 shares as of April 15, 1932, a decrease of 26,292 shares. This is the lowest total since Dec. 15, 1931, when the short interests amounted to 53,258 shares.

OIL SALE DETAILS

Sale of the interest of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in foreign properties of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was practically concluded yesterday. This was announced by Edward G. Seubert, president of Standard of Indiana, who also gave out additional details.

The deal is being carried out on the basis of book values of the Pan-American foreign properties as of April 30, 1932, estimated at $146,000,000. Standard of New Jersey will pay $50,000,000 in cash and the balance in its own stock at book value as of Dec. 31, 1931. Standard of New Jersey has not yet issued its 1931 report, but on Dec. 31, 1930, its stock had a book value of around $49.50 a share. The closing market price of the shares yesterday was 25½. Thus, while Standard of New Jersey is giving stock to a book value of $96,000,000, its current market value is considerably less.

Will Transfer Interest.

Standard of Indiana will transfer its 96 per cent interest in the Pan-American properties and minority stockholders of Pan-American will be offered a basis no less favorable.

"The net result to all Pan-American stockholders will be that they will have an opportunity to accept for their interest in the foreign situation $14.65 in cash and more than one-half share of Jersey stock for each share of Pan-American stock now held by them," Mr. Seubert said. "They will have remaining an interest in Pan-American's domestic properties amounting to approximately $10 in cash or its equivalent and approximately $14 book value of additional assets per share.

"Book values were agreed upon as the basis for the deal as being fairer to both parties than an attempt to arrive at market values under the present disturbed conditions. Standard of Indiana will receive out of the total consideration approximately $48,000,000 in cash and 96 per cent of the Jersey stock payment. Cash and marketable securities amounting to approximately $35,000,000 and properties of a book value of approximately $48,000,000 will remain in the Pan-American domestic setup in which the Indiana company retains its full interest."

Sees Big Market for Refrigerators in America

From less than 10,000 electric refrigerators in use in 1920 there now are more than 3,500,000 in use, Louis Ruthenburg, president Copeland Products, Inc., and chairman of the refrigeration division of the National Electrical Manufacturers' association, announced yesterday.

"Approximately 20,441,249 homes in the United States are wired for electricity. This indicates an initial market saturation of 17.12 per cent, leaving 82.88 per cent of the market yet to be supplied with electric refrigeration."

Walgreen Co. April Sales 16.5 Pct. Under Year Ago

Sales of $3,896,774 for April were reported by the Walgreen company. This is a decrease of 16.5 per cent from the $4,664,679 reported for April last year. For the first four months of the year sales totaled $15,954,187, compared with $17,762,287 in the corresponding period of last year. This is a decline of 10.2 per cent. The company, it was announced, had 463 stores in operation during April.

Federal Banks Picked to Play as Santa Claus

BY SCRUTATOR.

The Goldsborough bill instructs the federal reserve banks to go fetch the moon.

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States that the average purchasing power of the dollar as ascertained by the department of labor in the wholesale commodity markets for the period covering the years 1921 to 1929 shall be restored and maintained by the control of the volume of credit and currency," reads the bill as passed by the house of representatives.

"The federal reserve board and the federal reserve banks and the secretary of the treasury are hereby charged with the duty of making effective this policy."

Locating Santa Claus.

This is simply a letter to Santa Claus. The federal reserve system is intrusted with the job of fixing the price of all commodities at once by fixing the price of money. The bill doesn't say how this is to be done; it merely says "Do it."

Throughout the world is strewn the wreckage of economic machinery set up in futile attempts to fix prices for wheat, cotton, sisal, currants, coffee, sugar, rubber, etc. What assurance is there that the attempt to fix the price of everything at once would escape a like fate?

The late Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York from 1914 to 1928, when a similar proposal was being considered in March, 1928, said to members of the house committee on banking and currency:

"I do not believe, and have never believed, that any method of fixing the general level of commodity prices can be devised which would enable a monetary and credit policy by a bank of issue to accomplish that object.

"The theory that the volume of credit and money in circulation alone controls the price level I think is not altogether to be accepted. There are other theories of price changes which obviously cannot be dealt with by legislation at all."

Riding Two Economic Horses.

Even if the federal reserve banks should possess the ability to control the price level by regulating the volume of credit and money in circulation they would not be able to exercise their power to that end, for the simple reason that the federal reserve system, like a circus performer, rides two horses and it is continually falling between them.

In 1919, for instance, when the treasury had to do its Victory loan financing, the federal reserve banks reduced their rediscount rates to make possible the sale of government bonds at a low rate of interest. The reduction stimulated speculation at the wrong time.

The bull market of 1928 and 1929 probably would not have risen to such dizzy heights had not the New York Federal Reserve bank earlier reduced its rediscount rate to help England stay on the gold standard and continue to be a heavy purchaser of American goods.

Big Buying of Bonds.

At present the federal reserve banks are buying 100 million dollars of United States government securities weekly, the alleged purpose being to force cash into the vaults of member banks by absorbing their United States government bonds.

Two things are wrong with this argument:

1. If a bank held such bonds it could get cash on them without selling them to the federal reserve.

2. A large part of the securities being currently bought by the federal reserve banks are new government issues just off the press.

The reserve banks' chief current accomplishment, therefore, is not the forcing of credit through banks but the manipulation of the market for the government securities when there is heavy financing to meet the deficit.

In the light of these and other incidents that have occurred since 1918 it is clear that the policy of the federal reserve board and the federal reserve banks must, of necessity, be affected by a multitude of considerations that have no direct bearing on price levels.

Also, what was the "average purchasing power of the dollar" from 1921 to 1929? And what would the economists do about the purchasing power of the apple buyer's dollar in a year of poor apple crops?

A managed currency would bring out as many index numbers as there are economists.

W. E. ATKINSON TAKES H. L. CLARKE'S PLACE FOR FOX THEATERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—Following the recent changes in management of the Fox Film corporation the Fox Theaters corporation, controlled by General Theaters Equipment, Inc., has elected W. E. Atkinson president, succeeding Harley L. Clarke, former chairman of Fox Film.

The noteholders' protective committee of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Fox Theaters corporation, has advised holders of the 6½ per cent convertible notes on which interest was defaulted on Nov. 1 and interest and principal on May 1, that slightly more than 67 per cent of the issue of $12,458,200 has been deposited with the committee.

"No plan of reorganization," the comittee states, "has yet been formulated nor will the committee be in a position to make any definite recommendations in this regard until a substantially larger amount of the notes have been deposited.

"Further, in the interest of keeping expenses down to the lowest practicable minimum, the committee is considering the discontinuance of general communication to nondepositors unless such depositors directly request that their names be retained on the committee's records."

OIL FIRM TO PAY DIVIDEND AFTER YEAR SUSPENSION

Action Follows Gain in Profits.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Resuming dividend payments after a suspension since March of last year, the Ohio Oil company today ordered a payment of 20 cents on the capital stock, payable June 15 to stock of record May 17.

The company is one of the former Standard Oil units. It was formerly a producing company exclusively, but in recent years has entered the field of distribution of oil products. The company's decision to resume dividends is supposed to have been based on its strengthened inventory position in connection with the recent advance in crude oil prices and the improving outlook for the petroleum industry.

The company reported a sharp increase in earnings for the March 31 quarter. After depreciation, depletion, and all other charges the net profit amounted to $1,656,106, compared with $196,392 in the same period last year.

Omit Radiator Dividend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—"To insure the maintenance of existing strong financial position of the company," directors of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation have decided to omit the quarterly dividend on the common stocks, it was announced today. The company had been paying 10 cents a share quarterly, or 40 cents a year. Regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share was declared on the preferred stock, payable June 1 to holders of record May 16.

Like other corporations engaged in the building trade, American Radiator's earnings have been hurt severely by the continued low levels of new construction volume. C. M. Wooley, chairman of the board, at the stockholders' meeting last month, intimated that conditions would determine the action of directors relative to common dividends.

Gross sales last year declined about $37,000,000, and after all dividends the company sustained a deficit equal to 3 cents a share on the common stock. Since the close of 1931 little if any pickup in activity has taken place in the building trade. Last January the board reduced the common rate from 15 cents to 10 cents.

Hathaway Bakeries, Inc., voted a dividend of 37½ cents a share on the $3 cumulative class A stock, compared with 75 cents quarterly heretofore.

Aluminum Industries Dividend.

Aluminum Industries, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share against 25 cents in the previous quarter.

Directors of the Cabot Manufacturing company have declared a quarterly dividend of $1, payable May 16 to owners of record May 5, compared with $1.50 heretofore.

The Ohio Oil company has declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the common stock, placing the stock on an 80 cent annual basis. The last previous paymentwas made on March 14, 1931.

PARAMOUNT TO PAY EMPLOYES' LOSSES IN STOCK

Hollywood, Cal., May 6.—[Special.]—John D. Hertz of Chicago, new chairman of the Paramount-Publix Film corporation finance committee, made an announcement that startled the entire motion picture industry when he took the floor at the annual convention of Paramount executives, departments, and exhibitions chiefs here and said the corporation officials had decided on a policy of readjusting the losses of all employés who had purchased Paramount stock through the corporation.

Hertz declared the company would pursue a new policy of profit sharing for all employés and that the policy would be launched as soon as general business conditions permitted.

Crude Rubber Rises 1 Cent Pound in Active Trading

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Crude rubber prices surged upward nearly a cent a pound today in one of the most active sessions in recent years on the Rubber exchange, the advance followed news from Washington of adoption by the senate ways and means committee of a tariff on rubber. Near the close of the market the No. 1 standard contracts [futures] were selling 9-10 of one cent above the forenoon lows and ¾ of a cent above the previous day's finals.

$13,000,000 IN GOLD SHIPPED TO HOLLAND FROM NEW YORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—Announcement was made today of the shipment of $13,000,000 earmarked gold to Holland on the liner Volendam, bringing the total withdrawals of earmarked gold by the Netherlands to about $26,000,000. In addition, the Volendam will carry some small shipments of metal made possible by exchange premiums this week on the guilder in the foreign exchange market.

It was announced from Holland two weeks ago that the Dutch Central bank would repatriate at once all the gold held under earmark in this market, the total held being estimated at $40,000,000.

In view of the fact that several inquiries have been made for insurance upon gold to be shipped on the liner Olympic, also sailing today, it is believed that several consignments of metal will be dispatched on that vessel, consigned to France, Switzerland, Belgium, and to Holland. These consignments are exchange transaction shipments due to exchange premiums on all four currencies.

Heavy shipments were made to all countries, with some metal to Germany and to England as well, on the liner Bremen, which departed early in the week.

Foreign exchanges manifested considerable nervousness over the dollar today, although they again assumed an easier tendency toward the close. Most of the day quotations were higher.

France to Maintain Balances.

PARIS, May 6.—(AP)—The Agence Economique et Financiere said today it learned from an authoritative source that the Bank of France is not considering recalling its holdings from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It added, however, that the bank is free to follow any policy it sees fit. The two banks have communicated frequently by telephone during the last few days.

Poles Sell Dollars.

WARSAW, May 6.—(AP)—Wild reports about "inflation policies" of the American congress today brought a flood of American dollars to Polish banks. For twelve years Poles have regarded the dollar as a second national currency. Many mortgages and long term credits have been based on the dollar payable in New York.

CANADA PLANS TO SEND GRAIN IN BRITISH SHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6.—The annual coastwise flow of about 50,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain through American ports, mainly Buffalo, is to be stopped by Canadian government legislation. The carrying business is to be given to Canadian ships.

Alfred Duranteau, minister of marine, announced to the commons today a bill which he said was "to bring the Canadian law with regard to coastal shipping on the great lakes on a par with American law." As America makes it illegal for a Canadian ship to carry grain from an American to a Canadian port and transship to another American port so the new Canadian law will make it illegal for American vessels to load grain at Fort William,, transship into another vessel at, say, Buffalo, and convey the grain to Montreal, Sorel, or Quebec for export.

The bill also contains provision that 75 per cent of a shipping corporation stock must be British owned to have that corporation legally regarded here as British.

Babb Named President of Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Max W. Babb was elected president of the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company, succeeding Otto H. Falk, who becomes chairman of the board. W. A. Thompson, formerly controller, and William Watson, general works manager, were elected vice presidents.

APPROVES BILL TO EXTEND I. C. C. RAIL CONTROL

Holding Companies Up in Senate.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Legislation to place railroad holding companies under the interstate commerce commission was approved today by the senate interstate commerce committee. The committee authorized introduction in the senate and approved the bill which has already been approved by the house interstate commerce committee.

The bill would permit the interstate commerce commission to supervise the operations and issuance of securities by railroad holding companies. It would prevent the future acquisition of stock by a holding company in a railroad if the commission found acquisition might interfere with its own consolidation plans.

Would Control Voting Power.

The commission might also, after hearings, order a holding company to stop voting stock it now holds in carriers if it found the stock was being voted in contravention of its consolidation plans or the public interests. The house bill was drafted after a year and a half investigation and has the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company today asked the interstate commerce commission to approve a loan of $10,000,000 from the Reconstruction corporation. The money would be used to pay interest obligations, bank loans coming due, and equipment trust certificates. The company offers as security $10,747,473 of first mortgage bonds.

Frisco Gets New Loan.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—The loan of $1,800,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the St. Louis-San Francisco railway, which was being held up pending the transfer of certain collateral, was formally turned over to the road today through the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

C. W. Michel, assistant to the chairman of the company's board of directors, said that the money would be used immediately to pay overdue taxes to the states of Kansas and Alabama.

In the meantime officials of the road are preparing plans for a reorganization of the organization's capital structure. The interstate commerce commission, in approving the $1,800,000 loan, stipulated that the company must reduce its fixed charges. It was also provided that a plan to this effect must be submitted before July 1.

U. S. STEEL CORP. GIVES WORKERS 15 PER CENT CUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—The United States Steel corporation today cut wages and salaries 15 per cent, effective May 16, and the indications point to similar action by the large and small American steel producing companies in the near future.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, announced tonight that his company would make similar adjustments in wage and salary rates.

The 15 per cent cut by United States Steel was somewhat of a surprise to the financial community and to some branches in the industry itself, as it had been expected that 10 per cent would be the maximum at this time, with possible further cuts in the event that conditions in the industry fail to improve.

Last October wages were reduced 10 per cent and salaries 10 to 15 per cent for the first time since the depression set in. In view of statements by steel leaders, it is not expected that the reductions will be passed along in the shape of lower prices of steel products.

When the U. S. steel directors recently failed to vote any dividend on the common stock, the action had been anticipated since the first quarter dividend meeting, when the official statement indicated that unless there was an improvement in the business the payments would not be continued.

Action Expected.

At that time there were some close observers of U. S. Steel who felt that should the dividend be eliminated at the second quarter meeting of the board there would be a simultaneous announcement of a wage cut.

When this failed to materialize there was a considerable amount of disappointment expressed by the independent producers among themselves, as the United States Steel corporation usually leads the way in inaugurating wage scale changes.

Continuing declines in the unfilled tonnage figures issued each month by the Steel corporation showed plainly that the volume of business was not improving, but was getting definitely worse, and with the passing of the common dividend more attention was given officially by the Steel corporation and the big independent producers to the question of wages.

Foreign Steel Dumping.

As a contributing factor came the news that foreign steel makers were dumping structural steel in this country at prices which, according to leading American producers, were unquestionably under the cost of production.

This unloading in one month amounted to approximately 40,000 tons. Steel makers found little if anything was being done to prevent it or to enforce the tariffs on such steel and this also had its effect in precipitating today's action.

There has been some slight improvement in operations in the steel industry, according to the most recently published statistics, and the reviews of the industry, but it is not believed that this has been sufficient or will be sufficient for some time to prevent a still more intensive economy campaign throughout the field.

Steel's Wage Policy.

It has always been the policy of U. S. Steel, and for that matter of the larger independent producers in the industry, to pass along to labor and other employés a share of profits in the way of increased wages. Sustaining the high wage scale during the period of the depression has been a costly policy, but the producers have done it, hoping that the depression would end and the volume of business grow to a point where profits could be made again.

In the industry U. S. Steel has often been characterized as a prince or a pauper and when one of the speakers at the recent James A. Farrell farewell dinner given by the American Iron and Steel Institute used that simile he said: "We have seen steel the prince, it is not a pauper now, but I would say that many of its princely vestments are now in hock."

Action Is Delayed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2.—[U. P.]—Independent steel companies of the Pittsburgh district have taken no action on wage reductions to conform with the 15 per cent decrease announced by U. S. Steel corporation today. This was learned this afternoon. It was indicated that decision on whether they would maintain their present rates or follow the lead of the Steel corporation probably would not be made for a few days.

Expected to Follow Suit.

Youngstown, O., May 6.—[U. P.]—Leading steel companies in the Youngstown district are expected to follow the lead of the United States Steel corporation and reduce wages on May 15 by 15 per cent. Reliable authorities close to the steel magnates said that directors of the various companies are expected to act on the reduction within a few days.

Earnings of 94 Industries 88% Below Early in 1929

New York, May 6.—Initial tabulation of first quarter 1932 earnings emphasizes the further drastic reduction in net income being experienced in the third year of depression, says the Standard Statistics company of New York, in a current survey, which continues in part: "A four year earnings comparison for 94 identical industrials can now be made. This shows aggregate 1932 first quarter net of $28,887,000, as compared with $104,900,000 in 1931; $193,083,000 in 1930, and $245,248,000 in 1929. Based on present representation, therefore, it is apparent that earnings of industrials have declined more than 88 per cent from first quarter 1929 experience."

Banks Delay Insull Trust Stock Auction

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Hope for an early unraveling of the legal tangle arising from the proposed auction of the Insull collateral by the New York banks was expressed in financial circles.

Postponement of the proposed sale until Friday, May 13, was announced yesterday by the New York banks. This was the second delay. The sale originally had been scheduled for last Wednesday, but was halted at the last minute when receivers for one of the Insull investment trusts obtained an order from Federal Judge Lindley enjoining the auction.

Doubt Scope of Decree.

Advices from New York indicate that the eastern bankers feel that the injunction granted here has no jurisdiction in New York. No action will be taken, however, until the question of legality has been decided on by their own lawyers. In the meantime counsel for the eastern banks will confer here next Tuesday with attorneys for the Chicago banks also holding Insull collateral.

Hope was expressed yesterday that this conference will result in a plan of united action. What that plan may be was uncertain yesterday, but it is believed that a public auction of the stocks may be avoided.

The collateral which was to have been offered for sale at a minimum price of $10,325,000 consists of 77,516 shares of Commonwealth Edison, 50,931 shares of Peoples Gas, and 24,554 shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois.

Waive Dividend Claims.

Receivers for Insull Utility Investments withdrew their claim in federal court here to the dividends on these stocks. They previously had claimed those dividends should be turned over to them by the banks. The paper withdrawing the claim set forth that the receivers claimed the dividends, but the bank creditors demanded them and threatened suit unless they received them. It was contended by the banks affected that in any event the dividends would not liquidate the indebtedness of the company to its pledged creditors.

Whatever the outcome of the present legal skirmish, there appears to be little likelihood that any of the collateral in question will come into the open market. For the last week the shares of the various Insull operating companies have shown a steady tone.

Yesterday both Commonwealth Edison and Public Service scored price advances on the Chicago exchange in line with the general market trend. In New York Peoples Gas also advanced sharply.

SWIFT ISSUES STEADY

Shares of Swift & Co. and Swift International continued to occupy the spot light in the dealings on the Chicago board yesterday. Heavy offerings in both issues continued but the prices held steady, aided largely by the upturn in the general market. The volume of transactions in both stocks reached record high levels, with a total of 92,000 shares changing hands. Good support for both stocks enabled Swift & Co. to close unchanged and Swift International to finish a fraction higher.

Elsewhere in the list prices were moderately higher on buying stimulated by the quick turnabout in the New York market. The lower priced Insull stocks failed to share in the improvement.

FINDS PROMISE IN STEADINESS OF PACIFIC TRADE

HONOLULU, May 6.—(AP)—Reviewing recent trade history of the Pacific, James A. Farrell, chairman of the national council, today saw "elements of distinct encouragement."

In an address prepared for the national and Pacific foreign trade council conventions, he noted that "trade across the Pacific has disclosed a greater resistance to depressing influences than that of other parts of the world."

Farrell's hopeful expressions came the day following repercussions of the recent Japanese-Chinese conflict. Japanese attending the sessions had criticized the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods. King Chau Mui, Chinese consul, replied yesterday that China had always been friendly toward her neighbors "except when Japan sticks a gun in China's side and holds her up."

New York, May 6.—Missouri Pacific lines reopened the southern division shops at North Little Rock, Ark., returning 700 men to work after a shutdown since March.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—With the news blowing in its favor for a rare change, the stock market spread its sails today and spurted forward on the liveliest sprint in nearly three months. Gains among the more active issues ranged as high as 4 or 5 points. Stocks which have an investment appeal, like American Telephone, United States Steel preferred, Norfolk and Western and the like, were in particularly brisk demand, betokening something like returning confidence in high financial places.

Volume picked up to around 1,500,000 shares.

Hoover Message Helps.

The administration drive to get the budget balances, the defeat of the veterans' bonus proposals in committee and the United States Steel corporation's action in cutting salaries and wages another 15 per cent were the prime factors of the improved order of things. The President's overnight "reminder" to congress on the necessity of action on the government's economic problems stirred long dormant hope of a balanced budget in spite of the long session of political log-rolling. The market started off on the right track at the very outset. By midmorning rumors were afloat of the impending steel wage cut and the formal announcement of the decision in the afternoon gave the list the fillup it has so long needed. Traders with short accounts got extremely busy and prices spurted briskly in all directions.

Gets Ahead of Ticker.

All sections of the list shared in the celebration. At one point the rush of buying was sufficient to outdistance the ticker by more than two minutes—a phenomenon not witnessed before in many blue moons.

Railroad and utility shares, which have been bearing the brunt of selling here lately, jumped out in front and upturns of 2 to 4 points were the rule in the leaders of both groups. American Telephone got back to par in the early afternoon and went soaring on to 101¼, a gain of 4½ points on the day.

Peoples Gas rose 3 points on top of the improvement it showed early last week and the week before. Consolidated Gas was up 2⅞ at the close, and Brooklyn Union Gas sprang ahead nearly 5 points.

Norfolk and Western showed the way with an upturn of 4 points. In the carrier group Union Pacific was up 4 points, while New York Central, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, and others bettered their standing by 1 to 2 points or more.

United States Steel recrossed the 30 mark and finished the day brandishing a gain of more than 3 points, with the preferred doing more than twice as well. Westinghouse moved against the shorts in vigorous fashion and so did American Can, the latter to the tune of a 4¾ point jump.

Other brisk movers included Allied Chemical and Dye, Air Reduction, Auburn Auto, Industrial Rayon, McKeesport, Eastman Kodak, Coca Cola, and J. I. Case, all up from 3 to points.

Oil Shares Also Advance.

In the oils department, Pan-American B lunged ahead 8⅝ points on its favorable deal with New Jersey Standard. Houston Oil enjoyed good demand and the Standard issues counted themselves in on the party in a body. Ohio Oil was helped additionally by its earnings report showing notable improvement.

A few scattering issues for one reason or another were unable to share in the improvement. Federal Mining and Smelting preferred uncovered a thin market and dropped into it with a thud. It lost 20 points on a few sales. Fairbanks Morse preferred was off 9.

Allied General Corporation Shows Gain in Values

The quarterly report of Allied General corporation for the three months ended March 31, 1932, shows an increase in the asset value of the corporation's $3 convertible preferred stock from $31.09 per share on Dec. 31, 1931, to $34.20 per share on March 31, 1932, based on market prices of securities held and after allowing for dividend reserve.

The increase in the net assets of the corporation, based on market prices, from $1,210,984 on Dec. 31, 1931, to $1,263,726.35 on March 31, 1932, more than offset an operating loss of $8,702 for the quarter.

Chrysler Reports Loss of $2,066,458 for Quarter

New York, May 6.—[U.P.]—Chrysler corporation today reported for the first quarter of 1932 a net loss of $2,066,485 after interest, taxes and other charges, compared with a net loss of $979,927 in the corresponding period in 1931. The regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share was declared on the capital stock payable June 30 to stockholders of record.

TRADE BALANCE FOR MARCH GOES IN FAVOR OF U. S.

Exports, $155,254,002; Imports, $131,341,209

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—The United States had a favorable foreign trade balance of $23,912,793 in March, with exports of $155,254,002 and imports of $131,341,209. Total exports, however, were approximately $79,000,000 less than in March, 1931.

Final revised figures for the month showing distribution of exports and imports by grand division disclosed that exports of five countries showed increases during the month, as compared with the same month in 1931. Greece, the Irish Free State, British India, China, and the Philippine islands showed slight increases in the amount of American goods purchased.

GRAIN HEARING TO REOPEN IN KANSAS CITY

A recess was taken yesterday in the reopened hearing on grain freight rates which has been in session here for three weeks before Examiners Arthur A. Mackley and George J. Hall of the interstate commerce commission. W. J. Cunningham of the Great Western railroad was the last railroad witness to be called.

The hearing is to reopen at Kansas City on Wednesday when testimony will be taken regarding general economic conditions affecting the railroads and agriculture. After leaving Kansas City the examiners will go to the Pacific coast to gather evidence, following which they will go to Fort Worth and Minneapolis. Final evidence is to be presented in Chicago, possibly in October or November, according to the plan.

COTTON MOVES HIGHER

The cotton trade apparently is favorably inclined to the federal farm board proposition to dispose of 650,000 bales of stabilized cotton in the next crop year. Chairman Stone of the farm board suggests that various institutions lending on farm mortgages should consolidate their activities locally.

Crop reports from New Orleans were favorable that dry weather prevails throughout the cotton belt with the exception of a few scattered showers.

Opening prices were around the lowest and the close at almost the highest of the day. Liverpool closed 7 points net higher.

Closing trades were at around the top prices with net gains on futures in Chicago 15 to 19 points and in other markets 15 to 17 points. Spots in New York advanced 20 points to 5.90c with New Orleans up 15 points to 5.85c. Galveston, 5.95c, and Houston, 5.80c. Prices follow:

BUYERS OF WHEAT MORE CONFIDENT; PRICES ADVANCE

Reports Persist Soviets Plan More Purchases.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Buyers of wheat futures showed more confidence yesterday than for sometime past. Strength in stocks, a belief that the senate was finally making an effort to balance the budget and further reports that Russia was after wheat in the world market combined to bring in fairly general buying. The market dipped early, but quickly reversed its trend and the close was at the top, with net gains of 1@1⅛c, May leading. The latter finished at 55⅛@55¼c; old July, 57⅛@57⅝c; old September, 59⅝@59¾c, and December, 62⅝@62¾c.

There were numerous unfavorable crop comments from the winter wheat belt as well as further rains in parts of the northwest to help along the advance in futures, but the trade as a whole was not inclined to pay attention to routine developments. The steady decline in stocks of late has had a depressing effect on grain, and the reversal of the trend in securities came as a surprise to the trade. Shorts rushed to cover and found offerings light. Commission houses absorbed the surplus in the pit on the early dip, while on the advance there was selling by holders of offers.

Russia Buys Australian Flour.

Rumors that Russia would buy further liberal quantities of wheat will not down. Liverpool closed strong and 1¼@1⅝c per bu higher on a report that a cargo of Australian flour had been bought for shipment to Vladivostok, and London cables asserted there was a possibility of as high as 10,000,000 bu wheat being taken. The orient was said to have been a buyer of Manitoba wheat for shipment via Vancouver, with sales in all positions finally estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bu.

Advance in futures checked the export business in wheat to some extent. Winnipeg was ⅝@1c higher for the day, with May closing at 61⅝c in Canadian funds which were around 10⅜ per cent discount. Warmer weather was reported as needed in Europe for the best development of the new crop abroad. Spring seeding is said to be delayed in Russia by scarcity of seed grain as well as motive power.

Corn in Strong Close.

At no time was there any material pressure on corn futures. A small dip early brought in a good class of buying and while there was nothing said regarding export demand there was a marked disposition on the part of the shorts to take the buying side. Prices advanced 1¼c from the early low and finished at the top, with net gains of ⅞@1c with May at 30c; July, 33⅜@33¾c; September, 35¼@35⅝, and December, 35@35½c.

Country offerings of corn to arrive remain small, with 20,000 bu booked by local handlers, while shipping demand was less aggressive, sales being 34,000 bu. Farmers are busy with field work and no material increase in offerings is expected until corn planting is well along. At one time yesterday May corn at Kansas City was at a premium of 1½c over the same delivery in Chicago, but the latter went to a premium over Buenos Aires at the last.

Oats showed a firm undertone and with scattered buying the market advanced and closed ⅝@⅞c higher, with May at 23⅜c; July, 23c; September, 23@23¼c, and December, 24⅞c. At the last the May future was 3c above the recent low.

Seaboard exporters reported there were inquiries in the market from London for rye shipment to Vladivostok. The possibility of export business developing when the latter started a buying movement in futures, which continued to the close, with the finish at net gains of ⅝@1½c with May leading. The latter was 38⅝; July, 40c, and September, 42⅞c at the last.

PIT NOTES

News developments of the last few days have been more favorable to the buying side of wheat and corn on breaks. The sudden appearance of Russia as a buyer of wheat for Siberia has given traders more to think about. The impression prevails that, should the stock market show a disposition to advance and hold the gains, wheat would do materially better. Professional and commission house buying has taken a good deal of wheat out of the market, and the short interest has been reduced, making a technical situation that needs close watching.

Corn specialists, who have been bearish in a few instances, lean more to the constructive side of the market because of the low price, also because corn is relatively $4 a ton lower than oats. Country holders are less disposed to sell, but a good movement is expected to continue for about a week. Shipments to eastern and lake eports are regarded as significant by cash handlers, although they would like to see a better general consumptive demand with export buying. One of the leading cash handlers says Argentine corn is selling too low for American corn to be taken for export, despite the present low prices.

"Export of wheat from Aug. 1, 1931, to April 30, 1932, have averaged less than 4,000,000 bushels per week," says the Uhlmann Grain company. "If this rate is maintained during the rest of the 12 weeks to Aug. 1, the carryover will be 129,000,000 bushels, based on the government estimate of 204,000,000 bushels."

"Country offerings of corn were decidedly small and we think it will take an upturn to about 35c for July to bring about substantial increase in the movement," says S. C. Harris. "There has been a moderate increase in the speculative trade, and we believe people are beginning to appreciate the fact that the corn market has been subjected to very thorough liquidation."

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Cottonseed oil was quiet today, but the undertone was steady in sympathy with the strength of cotton, lard, hogs and grains. Sales were only 2 contract or 300 barrels. Final prices were unchanged to 9 points higher. Crude was 2¾c bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.00c; May, 3.23c; July, 3.38c; Sept., 3.49c; Dec., 3.70c. EGG FUTURES HIGHER

Egg futures advanced to new highs for the year on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, continuing the slow upturn of the last week. Closing levels were up ⅘@⅚c. Butter was unchanged to ⅛c higher. October eggs sold at 16⅝c and May at 15c for the new highs, closing at these prices. New buying in October started shortly after the opening and continued to the close. Active profit taking and new hedging failed to weaken the market. The storage figures encouraged the advance, the four markets reporting a net inward movement of 22,000 cases less than last year. Butter news was slightly bearish, but sellers were missing and support was moderately active. Sales: Butter, 17 cars; eggs, 30 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 1 car. Prices follow:
